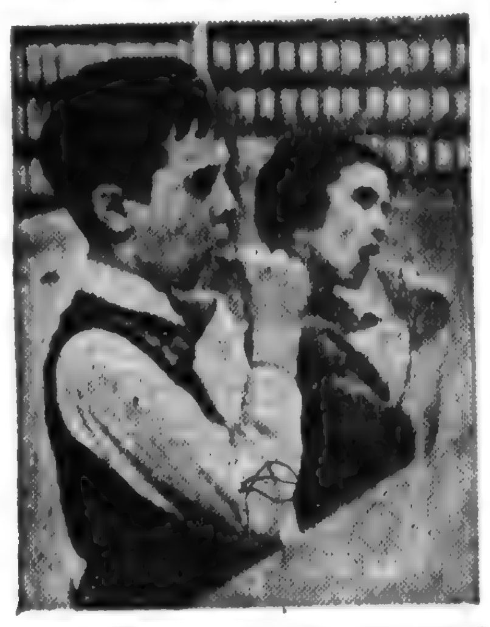
Toothsome Education . . .

A Child Health Day Feature On How New York Schools Are Teaching Dental Hygiene

This unenthusiastic young lady typifies thousands of New York school children who visit Guggenheim dental clinic regularly for lessons in oral hygiene and practical instructions in correct care of the teeth. Objecting at first, they soon find careful attention to the teeth obviates painful dental sessions in the future.



Each youngster's toothbrush is kept in a sterilized rack container at Guggenheim clinic, to be used regularly for "drill" purposes. These students are going through their "daily dental dozen" with vim and vigor.

Off stride, they're being shown the correct brushing movement under supervision of a graduate dentist and nurse. Rubber aprons protect clothing.

Open wide! Youngsters with teeth in bad need of cleaning first undergo a thorough dental scouring, then move to the brushing room where they are taught to keep them spotless.

On the first visit to the clinic, the child's teeth receive a thorough examination. Cavities are filled and, as a last resort, bad teeth extracted. The little patient may decide whether the anesthetic be local or general. This child is taking gas.

TWO INJURED IN A CRASH NEAR AUBURN

Miss Magdaline Wing in Dr. Bonnell Souder Hospital With Fractured Knee, Cuts and Bruises

Two persons were brought to the Dr. Bonnell Souder hospital in Auburn Tuesday evening as the result of a collision of two automobiles at the junction of state roads No. 1 and 8, east of Auburn Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Miss Magdaline Wing, employed by Wilson's, a dry cleaning company of Lima, Ohio, with an agency in Auburn, suffered a fractured right knee, cuts and bruises.

Her Packard 6 sedan was telescoped on the right side in the crash and the top was crushed in. The Packard was thrown in the air and landed upsidedown between two poles and was wedged so tightly that one of the poles had to be cut down to remove the machine. Miss Wing was thrown out of her car. She was on her way to Lima from Auburn. The car was towed to the Holben garage.

Perry Hopkins of Edon, Ohio, is also in the Souder hospital, with slight injuries but will be able to leave on Thursday. He was driving a Chevrolet sedan, the front of which was smashed in. Mr. Hopkins was driving north from St. Joe and collided with the car being driven by Miss Wing.

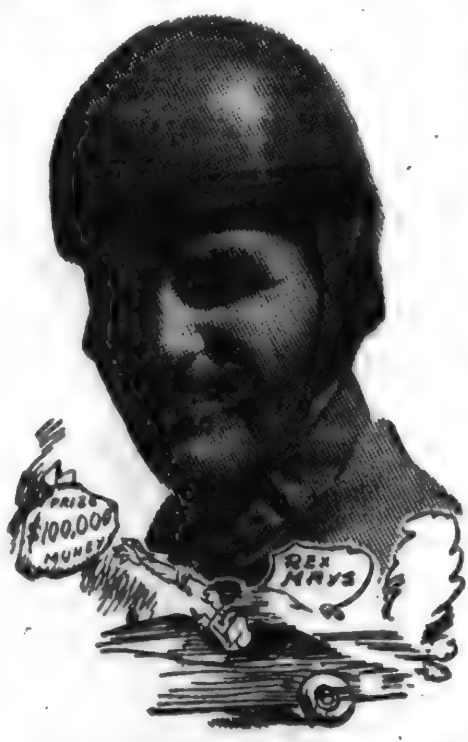
Rex Mays Out Gunning For New Glory in '500'



INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—California, here he comes! Rex Mays has returned to Indianapolis covered with glory as the result of his sensational showing in the international Vanderbilt Cup race last July in New York.

The slim speedster from the West Coast will drive a foreign-made car for Bill White, also of California, in the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway this May 30th.

His sensational speed duel with Rosemeyer, Caracciola and Nuvolari in the New York race proved he ranks tops among drivers of the world. Going into the road race with a car that could not develop horsepower equal to these European speed kings, he outdrove them for 300 miles, and though he finished third it was clearly an American triumph.

Mays held the pole at Indianapolis in 1935 and 1936, and will drive his hardest to gain it in 1938. He won a host of new admirers by his daring race in New York, and with a better car this year than ever before ranks as one of the foremost favorites in the 26th annual 500-mile race.

There's $100,000 posted in prize money, and Mays wants his share of it.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

A Dairy Herd Improvement Association has been organized in DeKalb County. Charles Weller, of Keyser Township, was elected president; Ray DeBaum, of Keyser Township, vice president; Heber Haynes, of Richland Township, secretary-treasurer. The board of directors consistes of the three above named officers and H. P. Steele, of Wilmington Township; Joseph Lemish and Dr. F. A. Hall, of Keyser Township. Dean Kees, of Concord Township was employed as tester. The new association will be completed June 1st. Any dairyman wishing to join should get in touch with any of the officers or T. E. Myers, County Agent.

Dairymen who desire a profitable herd, one with an average of 300 pounds of butterfat or more per cow yearly, will find membership in a Dairy Herd Improvement Association of real aid. Records kept for four or more consecutive years in 128 Indiana herds show that only eight of that entire group failed to reach this worthy goal.

Increased production resulting from membership in such an organization may be accomplished in one or more of the following ways:

(1) By learning the producing ability of each cow in the herd. Of course, if the low producers are not sold after they are discovered, little is accomplished. Removing the lowest producing one-fifth of the cows in some herds increases the yearly average as much as 50 pounds of butterfat.

(2) By adjusting the daily consumption of feed for each cow to her daily milk production. Where records are not kept many cows are over fed while others do not receive enough for economical production. Feed and milk records make it possible to re-arrange the same amounts of grain so each cow is receiving the proper allowance without feeding any more in total pounds to the herd.

(3) By comparing the production of individual cows month by month enabling the herdsman to detect short comings in herd management, such as inadequate supplies of salt and water or the first symptoms of certain diseases, such as mastitis (garget.)

(4) By checking up on the producing ability of the various cows of the herd, making it possible to decide with greater accuracy the cows from which heifer calves should be raised for herd replacements.

If these suggestions are carefully followed in a disease-free herd, a dairyman may rest assured his chances are good for making a 300 pound herd average in not more than five years, if continuous records are kept. This is almost double the state average. Yearly averages much above this level will no doubt have to be obtained through the use of registered sires selected from outstanding herds. Keeping milk and feed records provide information of vital importance and aid dairymen in developing a sound program of herd improvement.

COLLISION ON ROAD WEST OF ST. JOE

A Pontiac car driven by Ray Karr, of Defiance, O., was badly damaged, when Harold Dunn, of near Spencerville, ran into it at the cross road, 3½ miles west of St. Joe, Monday afternoon. Mr. Karr was driving toward St. Joe when the Dunn car came from the north and plunged into it. It was raining some and Harold told Mr. Karr that he failed to see him. The impact drove the car into the ditch, smashing the rear left fender, running board and rear wheel on Mr. Karr's machine. The Dun car was crippled some but was able to drive away. Harold did not carry insurance of any kind, while Mr. Karr was covered.

Mr. Karr was brought to St. Joe by Burley Ensley, of Auburn, who appeared shortly after the accident, and Harry Weaner, of Newville a brother-in-law of Mr. Karr was called, and came and assisted in getting the car in shape to drive home. Mr. Karr was bruised on his left side by the impact.

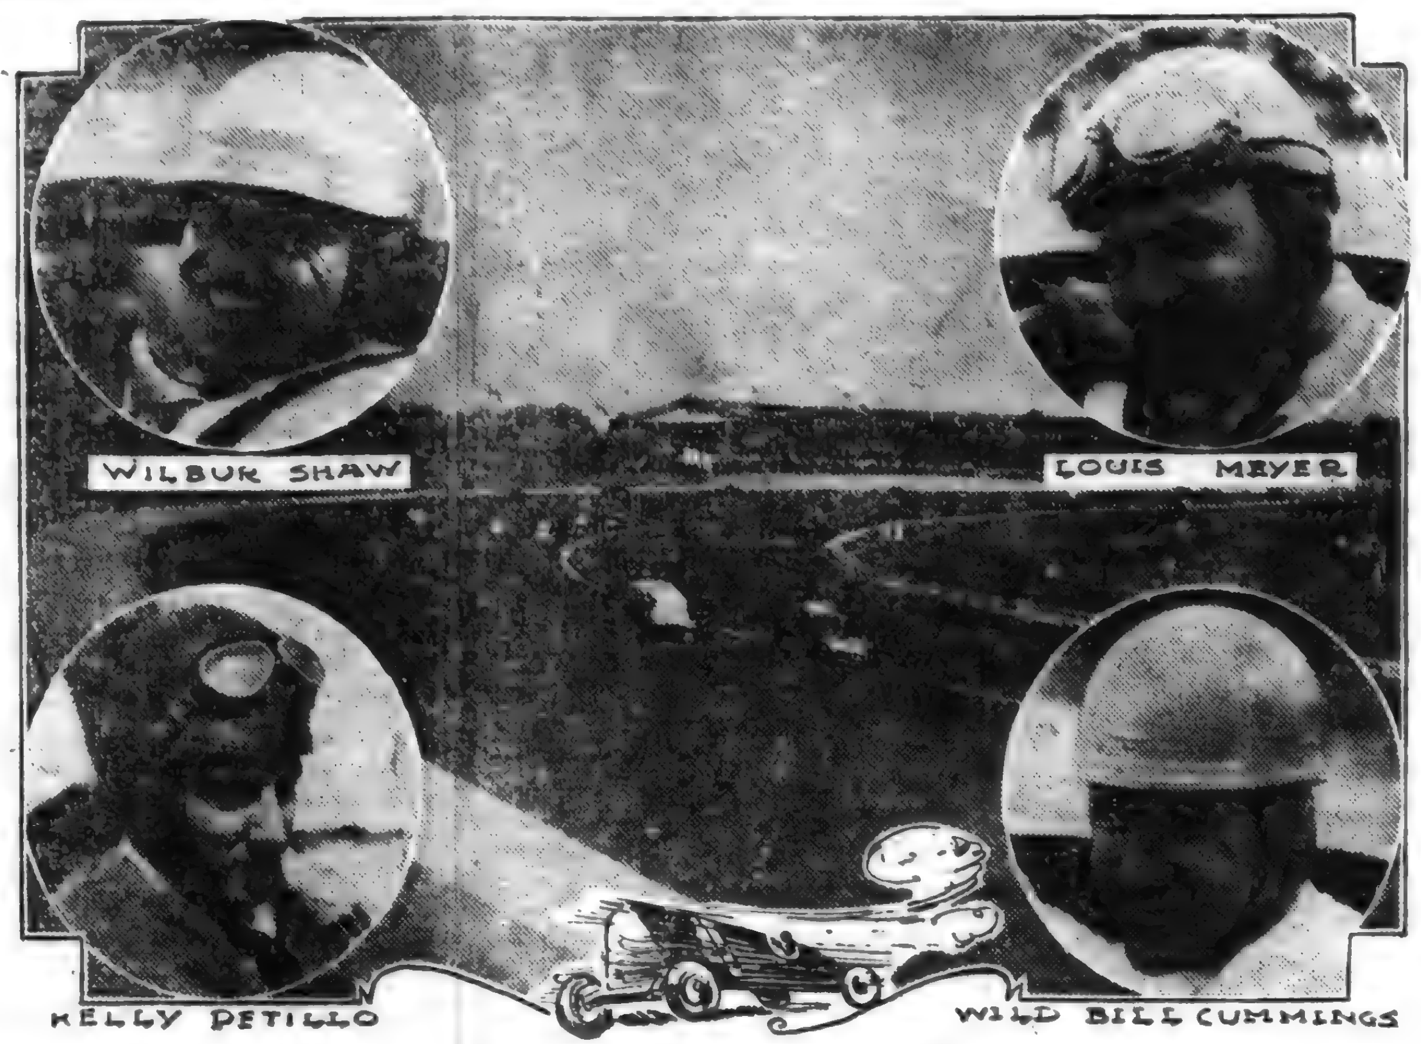
FOUR FORMER WINNERS AT INDIANAPOLIS RATED HIGHLY TO REPEAT IN BIG RACE



INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Four old standbys will make the crowd sit up and take notice in the 500-mile race May 30th at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

They are all former winners of the big race, one is the present AAA champion and the other three have held the National championship. Their names are: Wilbur Shaw, Louis Meyer, Kelly Petillo and Wild Bill Cummings.

Shaw is an Indianapolis boy, and has the dazzling 1937 victory to his credit. He probably will go into the race as a prime favorite to repeat, a feat which never has been performed at Indianapolis.

Meyer hails from California and is the miracle man of 500-mile racing. The checkered flag waved for him in 1928, 1933 and 1936, and he finished fourth last Decoration Day.

Petillo's sobriquet is "King of the Ridge" and he also comes from sunny California. He beat Shaw to the wire in 1935 and scored a sensational triumph.

Wild Bill Cummings is a Hoosier hero, and won the big race in 1934. He was third in 1935, left at the post in 1936 when his clutch froze and sixth last year. Cummings held the pole, honor position of the race in 1937, gaining that place by turning in the top qualifying time on the first day of the speed trials.

All four of these drivers are "hot" chauffeurs and arch rivals on the Speedway. Their rivalry is bound to make itself felt for they are all equally anxious to add another triumph to their records.

Shaw and Meyer probably will be slightly favored over Cummings and Petillo by the big crowd Race Day, but Wild Bill and Kelly are far from dark horses.

With fast cars, there's little to choose between them if you're looking for a likely candidate for top honors.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

CHIVALRY IN CHINA

Hordes of fanatical Chinese were attempting to block the advance of the Allied troops, bound to the relief of beleaguered legations at Peking in the summer of 1900. Helpless women and children anxiously awaited their arrival. Enroute the rescue force met a formidable barrier at Tientsin, where the Chinese Boxers had gathered in great strength in an effort to stay the advance.

Along with the U. S. Marines and other allied troops, men of the 9th Infantry, U. S. Army, had been fighting under their gallant leader, Major James Regan. The fire of Chinese snipers had wounded the officer and several of his men, but the fighting was so heavy elsewhere that none of the other fighting units was able to go to his relief.

At nightfall, when the din of battle had partly subsided, American and British Marines volunteered to remove the wounded to a place of safety. Braving the rifle fire of the belligerent Chinese, three U. S. Marines went to the aid of Major Regan.

They were without Red Cross equipment and they had no litter on which to carry the wounded, so they stripped off their shirts and stretched them over their rifles to improvise a stretcher. Then they carried the wounded officer for three miles over the roughest kind of ground while exposed to the enemy fire.

In commending his rescures Major Regan wrote: "Such men are worthy of all the distinction the government can confer upon them." The sergeant who led the three marines won the praise of the Secretary of the Navy and a Medal of Honor. Fearful of the fate of the besieged Legations, the triumphant Allies soon brushed aside every obstacle and reached Peking.

BAILEY IS RENAMED BY THE DEMOCRATS

Clayton M. Bailey, of Garrett, was re-elected Democratic County Chairman by acclamation at an organization meeting of the central committee in the assembly room of the court house in Auburn Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Maude Roberts, of East Seventh Street, Auburn, was elected vice chairwoman in a like manner. The chairman was authorized to appoint the secretary and treasurer and he announced that he would take this action within a few days.

Mr. Bailey is a Baltimore & Ohio locomotive fireman and a former chief of police of Garrett. He resides at Houston and Franklin Streets. In placing him in renomination, Edward K. Mayfield, committeeman in No. 5 of Keyser Towship, declared Mr. Bailey conducted a successful campaign two years ago, when all the Democratic county candidates except one were elected, and that he was entitled to re-election on his record.

Mrs. Roberts was nominated on motion of J. Harpster Walter, committeeman in No. 1 of Union Township. Mrs. Roberts has been a leader among Democratic women and has had experience in party organization work as committeeman in Union No. 3 precinct.

Party Leaders Praised

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Bailey and he appointed Mayor Fred L. Feick, of Garrett, as temporary chairman. Mr. Feick made a spirited address in which he lauded the national and state administrations and predicted success at the polls again this fall. He said, however, that an effective campaign starts with the precient workers and he urged the committeemen to bend every effort to elect the entire ticket.

Others who spoke briefly, expressed appreciation for the support given them in the primary and confidence in the outcome of the election this fall, included Clyde C. Deetz, nominee for County Auditor, C. M. Minnich, nominee for Sheriff, Lester M. Boger, nominee for Treasurer, A. J. Moore, nominee for Commissioner Southeast, Wm. G. Erick, nominee for Recorder, Buster L. Hetrick, a candidate for the nomination for Auditor, Harold Wise, a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff; and Cleve H. Grube, a candidate for the nomination for commissioner southeast.

Roy Oberlin, of Butler, former County chairman, made the motion authorizing the county chairman to appoint the party's secretary and treasurer. Philip Cool, of Jackson Township, has been acting secretary since Clyde C. Deetz resigned following his entry into the race for auditor. Dr. W. R. Newcomer, of Waterloo, has been the treasurer. Miss Nellie Buckley, of Auburn, has been vice chairwoman the last two years.

Little did old-timers ever expect that a day would come when a steering wheel would represent the family circle.

Since they know more about raising them, why didn't nature give the other people all the children?

Another reason why there are so many divorces is that because too many people think that as soon as they get married they have to quit making love to each other.

How many old-timers can remember when you could tell the size of a grafter by the size of his watch charm.

Man is supposed to be braver than woman, but just try to imagine a man with only a dime make a clerk take down $500 worth of dry goods.

POPPY FACTS

Do You Know—

That the American Legion was the first national organization to adopt the poppy as its Memorial Flower, having taken this action at the National Convention in Cleveland, September 27-29, 1920?

That the American Legion Auxiliary adopted the poppy as its Memorial Flower at its organizing convention held in Kansas City in October, 1920?

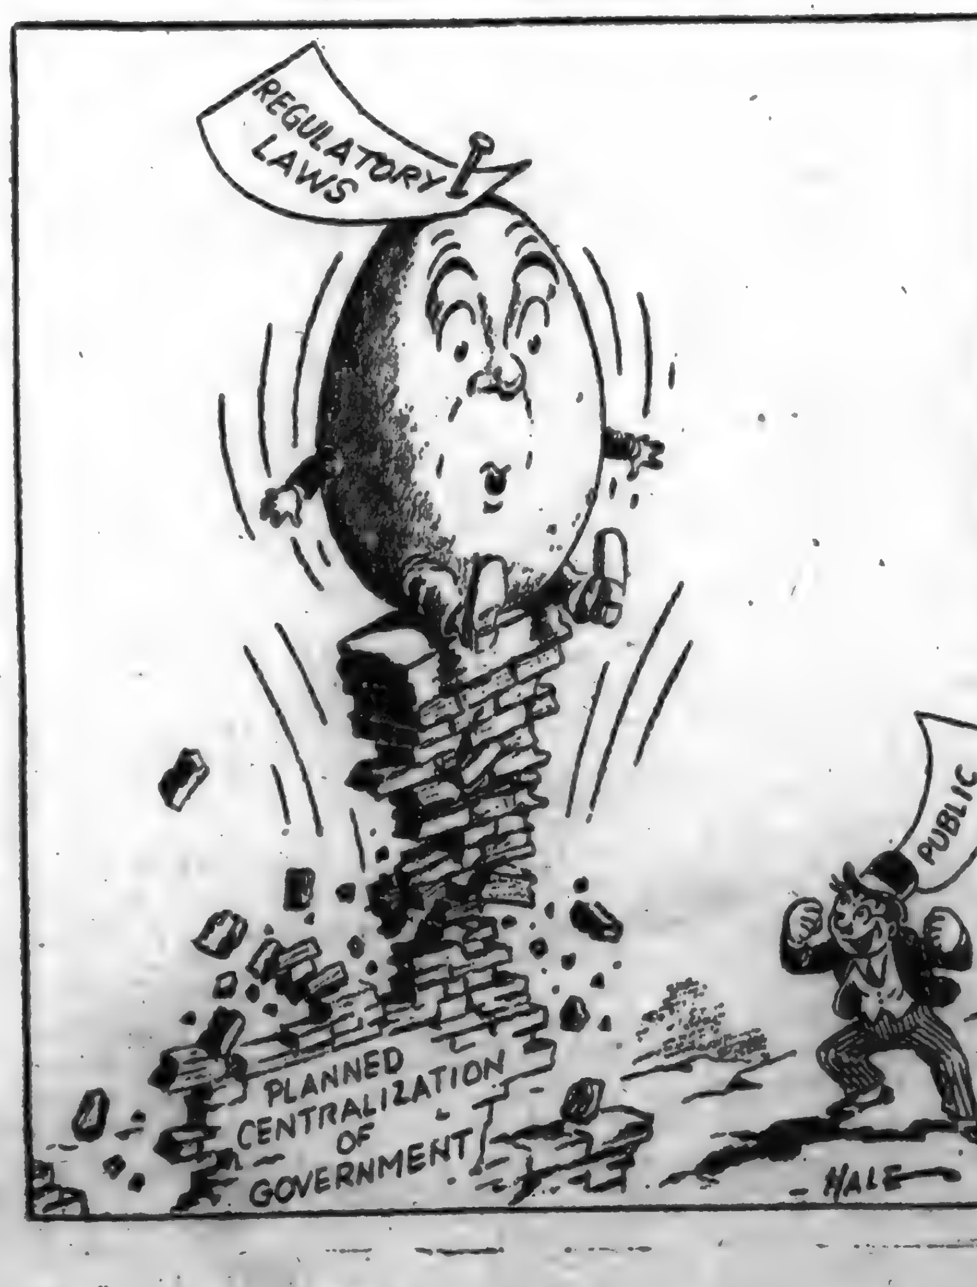
That the Auxiliary in order to protect its Memorial Flower, the poppy, from the inroads of commercialism, adopted a national poppy program at the St. Paul Convention in 1924 which eliminated the commercial poppy from the sales supply of the Auxiliary?

That the memorial poppies are made of red crepe paper, by hand, by disabled veterans in more than fifty hospitals and poppy workrooms in forty states? The red of the poppy petals brings the color of life and hope into the bleak, white hospital wards. The money earned by making the flowers helps put food on the tables and fires in the stoves of the little homes where wife and children await the veteran's recovery.

That the proceeds from the sale of over 10,000,000 poppies made annually under the guidance of the American Legion Auxiliary amount to more than $1,000,000, every penny of which is devoted to rehabilitation work by both the Legion and Auxiliary, which includes aid to the needy veterans and their families?

That the public is given an opportunity to help with this great work, as well as opportunity to pay tribute to all who died in service, by wearing a poppy on Poppy Day?

HUMPTY DUMPTY



BOOKKEEPING AT HOME

Wonder how many residents around St. Joe depending on the soil for a living actually have an accurate system of bookkeeping and keep tab on production? We are reminded of this by reading where a western farm agent declares that a recent investigation in his section showed that those who keep books, and a careful check on all receipts and expenditures, get a better return on their money than those who just pay out as they get the money, and get the money as they can and without keeping account of it. He says some have doubled their labor income by maintaining a business-like check on all transactions. Of course, it takes a little time, and considerable patience, but if it is economical then it is time and patience well expended. We'd be glad to hear more on this subject, and especially from anyone in the neighborhood who has had experience in farm bookkeeping, and who knows how to explain his system to his neighbors.

A FRUIT FORECAST

Political questions may continue to furnish the chief topic of conversation where more than one man may be assembled at a time, but when one or more women get together is is pretty certain to be the outlook for a big fruit year and a good canning season.

That the country as a whole was in for another bumper fruit crop before the severe and unexpected sleet and snow struck a goodly part of it in early April seemed almost a certainty. Since that disastrous bit of weather, however, reports officially made to Washington and gathered by newspapers in various sections, indicate that the damage was heavier, and somewhat widespread, than anticipated immediately following the storm. The fruit belts of Vermont, Northern New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan report considerable damage but still an excellent outlook for apples, grapes, peaches and cherries. States bordering on the Mississippi, also hard hit by sleet and freezing temperatures are not yet so sure they are going to fare as well. Through the Southern fruit belt, however, the outlook is far from gloomy, taken as a whole, and the South may be counted upon, it is reported, to make up any shortage occurring in the other states when the harvest is over.

So it would appear that so far as anything like bordering on a famine is concered, local housewives will not need to worry. Uncle Sam's reports indicate that there will be enough for all, and without the necessity of tilting prices. And that ought to be pleasing news just now.

TOO MUCH WIND

With another spring marked by more than the usual number of cyclones and windstorms throughout the country, with scarcely any section totally immune from them, one is apt to wonder just why these visitations seem so much more numerous now than in former years. Ask a St. Joe old times for his opinion and in almost every instance he will blame it on the steady slaughter of shade and forest trees that has been under way for the past 40 or 50 years. With the forests decimated, the wind gets a clean sweep. And with a population far more dense now than it was a quarter of a century ago it is pretty hard for any sort of windstorm to rage without greater property damage than used to be the case.

Since all the preaching the newspapers can do, and all the praying the conservationists resort to do not have any effect and the slaughter of forests goes on just the same there appears to be no relief from the ever-increasing tornadoes than to insure your property, trust to luck and sit back and take what comes. Since these storms seem to have a habit of sweeping the poorer and less prosperous sections, however, this is not a remedy because too many cannot afford insurance. For his own protection, and the protection of the generation that will follow him, the man who cuts a tree today might try the plan of planting two in its place. You can't have forests if you destroy faster than you replace, and you can't find any other protection against cyclones and windstorm as your forests form for nothing has yet been invented to provide it. Play safe and let F. B. Leighty take care of your insurance needs today.

THE HORN HONKER

It seems that one of the hardest things a St. Joe car owner has to learn when he first starts in is what the horn is for. In fact, so many of them throughout the country never have learned that laws have had to be passed to guide them. Observe the careful motorist and you will note that he seldom finds it necessary to resort to his horn. He doesn't glide easily up to a pedestrian crossing a street and then suddenly issue a loud blast on his horn. Nor does he, in passing the car ahead of him rend the air with loud and unnecessarily long blasts. He uses the horn, as it was intended to be used, for the purpose of giving signals, and then only when they are absolutely needed. The horn is subject to more abuse than any other part of the auto, when in fact it should be the least part of it to be resorted to. There's a right and a wrong way to use it, the same as there is to use anything else. And it is hoped, for the nerves of the community, at least, that this year's crop of new drivers learn that early.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

I firmly believe that most driving weaknesses can be corrected if recognized by the driver. The trouble with most of us is that we do not want to recognize our own faults. On the other hand, we are always ready to mention the faults of the driver ahead of us.

Here are suggestions for correcting some of the most common mistakes made by drivers:

1. Drive within your limit. You may have your car under control at 40 miles an hour, but not at 60.

2. If you are color blind, watch others at stop lights.

3. If you cannot judge distance, do not take a chance in passing other cars.

4. If you get nervous, keep out of congested areas.

5. If you are not sure of the meaning of a sign, ask about it. Safe drivers ask many questions.

Watch these points. Your observance of them will make you a safe driver.

Remember?

The local 1938 commencement makes us old timers recall the days when we were young . . . and when we proudly participated in high school graduation ceremonies. Photos posed by NBC artists.

Remember the sweet young thing who read the Class Will, who bequeathed your gum-chewing technique to little Johnny Jones of the freshman class? Miss Betty Winkler impersonates her here, even to the hair ribbon.

Then came the class prophet who predicted that 20 years hence you'd be a famous explorer . . . or something. Betty Caine, dressed like yesterday's graduate, shows how the prophet looked as she glanced into the dim future and made her awesome prognostications.

Frances Allison impersonates the valedictorian. Remember? She was the brightest girl in the class, much favored by members of the faculty.

Then came the commencement speaker (played by Bill Thompson) who challenged you to face the world. Serious, purposeful, he might have been a rising young lawyer or a professor of economics from the university.

Then the climax, when the superintendent or the president of the school board gave you a diploma . . . and school days were over! Here is Sid Ellstrom in the official's role.

School days! Grand old days, weren't they?

The WPA has come up with another new "relief" idea. It has offered immortality on canvas to all public officials whom it deems "worthy" of preservation for posterity.

Any public official can have his portrait painted in oil by the WPA if he can prove his worthiness to the satisfaction of the WPA.

More than 200 government officials already have had gratified their wish to see themselves perpetuated. Several hundred others have sent in applications. Eight artists are at work on the project and WPA says it has enough applications to keep 100 painters busy for a year.

The paintings remain the property of the government, but may be loaned to cities, counties and States for display to "impress the natives" of the "worthiness" of their public officials.

The official desision to launch a third party—called the National Progressive Party, and headed by Governor Philip La Follette of Wisconsin—is of major political importance. The chief significance of the move lies in its possible effect on the existing parties, and on future elections.

The history of third party movements in this country has been generally a history of practically complete failure, so far as the parties themselves are concerned. Today who remembers the Locofocos, the Free Soilers, the North Americans, the Blue Light Federalists, the Anti-Masons—all important third party movements in their time? The last third party drive that got anywhere at all was that of 1924, when the senior La Follette ran for president with Senator Wheeler as his team-mate and polled a total of 5,000,000 votes out of 30,000,000 cast. But the ticket received the electoral vote of only one state, Wisconsin.

Occassionally, however, a third party bolt has been the decisive factor in a national election, and has so made an important contribution to the course of government. This was the case in 1912 when Theodore Roosevelt, having split with Taft and the regular Republicans, led the "Bull Moose" revolt. The Rough Rider did not get elected in spite of the advantage he had been President, and enjoyed an immense popularity—but he took enough of the Republican vote to elect Wilson, and to leave Taft the worst beaten incumbent in American history. And the wounds that the split caused in Republican ranks took a long time to heal, and are generally believed to have been a major factor in the reelection of Wilson in 1916, when he beat Hughes by the narrowest of margins.

The potential importance of the National Progressive Party thus lies in the possibility that it may have some such effect as this on the current political set-up. And the stage is certainly set for a political upheaval, and the realignment of political groups.

The party in power, the Democratic, has its most dependable support in the South. It was this solid South following which kept it going during its bad years after the war, when many commentators forecast its imminent demise. But, as everyone knows, the South is largely conservative. The principal Southern Senators—Byrd, Harrison, Glass, Bailey, etc.—incline toward the right. The New Deal on the other hand, is leftish. Its most consistent congressional supporters are Northean Democrats, from states which in former times were often or usually counted in the Republican ranks—Pennsylvania, New York, the New Egland group, the corn-belt, and the far West. It is the industrial East and the Middle West, rather than the agrarian South, which is most enthusiastic for the Roosevelt policies.

At the same time, there are many followers of the New Deal, including a sizable bloc in the House, which believe that the President has not gone far enough left. These men are semi-radicals—they do not go as far as do the extreme left-wingers, who vote for minority tickets such as the Communists. And it is to this left group, and to the left sympathizing constituents who elected them, that Governor La Follette's new party will offer its principal appeal. Futhermore, the party starts with one state apparently "in the bag"—Wisconsin has always supported the La Follettes with hardly a deviation, and there is no indication that sentiment among Wisconsin voters has changed.

To sum up, the La Follette movement is for the first time offering these semi-radicals a party headed by men with national political reputations who will sponsor platforms that are largely in accord with left wing views. At the same time, there is a growing movement on foot for a coalition between Republicans and orthodox Democrats for the purpose of beating the New Deal and to elect, if not a Republican, a conservative Democrat. It is said that in some states, such as Florida, where it is practically impossible for Republicans to win a seat in the Senate, Republican voters have changed their registry, so that they may vote for anti-New Dealers in the Democratic primaries. And even so strong a Republican spokesman as Mark Sullivan has given his approval to this course.

So, if the coalition of conservatives makes headway, and at the same time the National Progressive Party manages to enlist a subtsantial share of American left wingers, where will the New Deal be? It is all in the guesswork stage as yet, of course—in politics, as someone once said, almost anything can happen and it usually does. But Goveror La Follette's move has certainly broadened the room for political speculation, and has further confused the political outlook.

FUNERAL FOR MRS. R. F. MOFFET HELD TUESDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. R. F. Moffet, Auburn, were held Tuesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church, with Rev. Hubert F. Craven officiating. Burial was made in Woodlawn cemetery.

Mrs. Moffet died at 3 o'clock Sunday morning as the result of complications, superimposed by congestion of the lungs and liver following influenza. She had been ill since February 5th.

Mrs. Moffet was born on a farm south of Spencerville on April 18, 1872 and at the time of her death her age was 66 years and 20 days. She was one of four children born to Jacob and Emam Baltz, deceased. After attending the public schools at Spencerville and Auburn, Mrs. Moffet taught school in Newville Township. She was united in marriage with Mr. Moffet, a resident of Jacksoni Township, on December 30, 1894, at Spencerville. Mr. and Mrs. Moffet moved to Auburn in the fall of 1898.

To Mr. and Mrs. Moffet were born two daughters, Mrs. L. R. Rhodefer, of Auburn, and Mrs. Paul Adams, of Fort Wayne. They, with the husband, survive. Also surviving is one brother, Frank Baltz, Auburn, and a sister, Mrs. Jessie Sommer, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. Baltz. One sister is deceased.

Mrs. Moffet was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Auburn.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

Mrs. A. D. Goodiwn left Tuesday morning to spend several weeks in Washington, D. C., with her daughter, Mrs. Carol Gene Steele and husband, and also her son, Carl.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid Society will meet at the church Thursday all day, for the purpose of cleaning. A pot luck dinner will be served at noon. Come prepared to work.

Mrs. Ida Walker, of South Bend, who is here a guest of Mrs. Loretta Hull, visited over Sunday at Hicksville with Mrs. Grace Finzer and father, Mr. Everett Walker.

Clayton Baker and family moved Tuesday from the Wm. Hamilton home into the M. P. parsonage and we learn that Cecil Wisler and family will return to St. Joe from Garrett, where he has been working.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch and John and Sake Geisinger, of Garrett, were Sunday dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wash Bercher in Butler Township. Mrs. Berchner will be remembered as Mrs. Al Geisinger.

Carleton Shull and family are at Defiance for the summer, where he works for Swift & Co., in the ice cream plant. Carleton is operating the popsickle and bar machine. They were home over Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

Last Friday, when getting out of their car at Auburn, Mrs. John Gablick caught her left thumb in the car door, and severed the end. She was taken to the hospital where they attempted to graft the end on. She suffered considerable.

The Concord Township Ladies Home Bueráu meeting which was to have been held May 20th at the home of Mrs. Harriett Johnson has been postponed until May 27th, one week later han the scheduled date. The hostess Mrs. Johnson, will be assisted by Mrs. Vada Wyatt, Mrs. Iva Yeiser and Mrs. Ida Herrick.

Last Sunday was a record day at the Akins Inn, when they served 57 turkey dinners and turned 28 away for lack of reservations being made. The popularity of the Akins meals is speading far and wide and the only way they are going to be able to handle their trade is to expand their quarters so that they will have a waiting room. They are now able to seat 36 at one time.

Wm. H. Heyler, of Auburn, has been appointed as temporary bailiff, taking the place of Frank Provines, who was stricken with paralysis several weeks ago.

W. L. Hamilton was host to the Lutheran Brotherhood Monday night. Eleven members were present. After the topic discussion, a plate luncheon was served by Mrs. Hamilton, assisted by Mrs. Glen Wineland. The June meeting goes to Ralph Sechler's and July to Ray Reasoner's. Hollis Dilley was the leader Monday evening.

A pure bred Guernsey bull, Norma's Crescent 257728 was sold recently by M. K. Bailey, of Warren, Ind., to Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stone of St. Joe, according to the American Guernsey Cattle Club, Peterborough, New Hampshire. With the addition of this new blood into the Stone herd of cattle, they will continue to build up their farm herd and at the same time increase their milk production.

TOO MANY LAWS

When wise old Moses was on earth, and had a prominent part in running it, he found that only ten laws were needed for the regulation of its conduct. Woodrow Wilson believed that the famous 14 points he submitted to the Versailles peace conference was sufficient to save the world for democracy.

Keeping these figures in mind, it should interest St. Joe taxpayers to learn that the legislatures of our 48 states passed during the year 1937—in one single year alone—more than 19,000 new laws as they joyously assumed the burden of regulating the lives and activities of our people. Either the world has grown to be a terrible place since it accepted the Ten Commandments as all that was necessary to keep it morally safe, or the making of laws has become a habit and a "racket" there's no way out of. It scarcely seems possible that so many human transgressions were still at liberty after a century and a half of law making.

Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States, once said: "That government is best which governs least." But we have come a long way since Jefferson's time. Are we any better off? Is the world any better with its thousands of laws than it was when it had but the Ten Commandments? Surely the average taxpayer, who has to go down into his pockets for the cost of all these laws, has an interesting answer to those questions.

THEY COME BACK

No one ever outgrows his boyhood. If he was born and grew up in a rugged hill country he will have traces of that country in his soul to the balance of his days. The man from Texas can never be like the man from Vermont—there are always boyhood ties they cannot sever. That's why St. Joe residents are glad when those who were born and reared around here come back for a visit. That's why the hand of welcome is always extended them—we know that there is something worth while in a heart that always retains a respect and veneration for the place in which childhood's days are spent. Maybe we are not growing up as fast as the big cities in which they now make their homes; but that doesn't matter. The man or woman whose heart is right comes back to see the place and faces they first loved. Since it gladdens their hearts and gives them happiness then we are all glad, in a way, that the place of their birth hasn't changed so much.

HERE'S ANOTHER WAY

Using whitewash is still another way of killing two birds with one stone. You not only beautify and brighten whatever you apply the solution to, whether it be residence, garage, outbuildings or trees, but you at the same time lessen the danger of contagious diseases in the community. Lime has come to be recognized as the very best disinfectant that can be used around the house. Spread on the yard in proper amount it also feeds the soil and helps the grass to grow, though care should be taken when using it for this purpose to see that the quantity is not too generous. It furnishes protection from the weather for fences and buildings and insects that feed upon wood steer clear of lime when it is applied in the form of whitewash. And there's still another advantage, too, not to be overlooked—it costs so little. No other disinfectant, and of course no kind of paint, can be had for so little money. No other brings such a widespread return on the investment.

THERE was an old family organ in the Brooks' home in Amesburg, Ontario, and Shelton first met music on its keyboards—while brother-with-the-longer-legs, pumped.

At sixteen, his parents moved to Detroit, and Shelton became a mimic. His impersonation of Bert Williams at Luna Park, Cleveland, scored a hit with that comedian, at least.

Touring vaudeville, Shelton entertained backstage by improvising on his own themes on the small-time circuit pianos.

One number kept recurring to him, but when he wrote it down he was dissatisfied with the result—it seemed to have no theme.

A few days later he overheard a lover's quarrel in a cafe, and the girl's last words supplied the missing theme.

Rushing back to his piano, Shelton rapidly completed the music and wrote the words of "Some Of These Days".

Within a week, Sophie Tucker had scored a great hit with the song. As other vaudeville performers took up the song, it swept the country.

Brooks kept writing, earned membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. He is today a night club favorite and authority on jazz and swing.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 19, 1938 NUMBER 20

ELECTRIC COMPANY TO SPONSOR CANNING SCHOOL

Housewives Served by the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. Should Attend Nearest Demonstration

HOUSEWIVES of St. Joe and neighboring towns who are interested in the home canning of fruits, vegetables and meats, will have an opportunity to attend a canning demonstration at the Community Hall at Harlan on May 23 at 2:00 P. M., conducted by Mrs. Rosina K. Maxwell, of the Home Economics Department of Ball Brothers, Muncie, Indiana, and sponsored by the Indiana & Michigan Electric Company.

Mrs. Maxwell is a graduate of the Home Economics Department of the University of Illinois and has been connected with the Extension Dept. of Purdue University. While at Purdue she started and developed the Canning and Baking Clubs, now a big feature at the Indiana State Fair; she also helped organize and instruct 4-H Clubs throughout the State. Her services as a judge of canned goods are greatly in demand and she has served in this capacity at the National Club Conference, the Indiana State Fair and similar exhibits.

ROSINA K. MAXWELL

Mrs. Maxwell has prepared a highly instructive and interesting program, using the latest approved methods in the actual canning of various fruits, vegetables and meats, and has a store of information which will be of great benefit to all ladies attending. A large part of her program will be devoted to questions and answers in an effort to solve any canning difficulties anyone may be having.

No other phase of cooking requires greater care than the preserving of foods for winter use. Meticulous following of directions on preparation, processing and sealing cannot be overstressed. At one time this was a hot, tiresome job but has been greatly simplified by the use of an electric range.

For those living nearer Butler a similar demonstration will be held on the following day, Tuesday, May 24, in the high school auditorium.

Elsewhere in this issue is the company ad calling your attention to the demonstration giving places and dates.

BAIT CASTING DEMONSTRATION THURSDAY

The Creek Chub Bait Casting team, of Garrett, were guests of the local Conservation Club last Thursday evening and staged a casting contest among their own members at the Kees gravel pit at about 5 o'clock. A large group of local fishermen were present to learn how casting should really be done.

After the team was organized, they casted three complete rounds resulting in Zeno Haver capturing first place; Raymond D. Smith, second, and Jack Barnes, third. Other members of the team were, Jas. A. Barnes, Paul Gorski, Frank Januseski, Germaine Hollis, Howard W. Schulthess, Albert Hollis, C. C. Crowl, C. A. Swartout, C. L. Starver, Edward Bloom, Thomas Wilondek.

At the conclusion of the demonstration the boys were provided with a chicken dinner at the Sheffer restaurant. They all enjoyed their visit to St. Joe, and think the local boys should organize a casting team.

IN THE LAUNDRY

Egg stains on table linen should be soaked in cold water before being placed in the wash tub. The stain comes out quite easily if treated in this way. Hot water sets them and makes them doubly difficult to remove.

The management of Winona Lake Institutions is cooperating with the Kosciusko County Council of Christian Education and everything points to a most successful convention. Winona Lake is known as a religious center and more than a score of church gatherings will meet there this coming summer, the State Sunday School Convention being the first.

NEW JURORS DRAWN IN DEKALB COUNTY

Owing to vacancies in the original jury list for the April term of the DeKalb Circuit Court, the jury commissioners, Clyde E. Hart and Herman L. Borwn, held another drawing Tuesday in the office of County Clerk Carl Walter upon a call issued by Judge Endicott.

The court will thus be prepared for an important lawsuit scheduled for trial beginning Thursday. This is the case of Frank W. Carpenter, administrator of the Mary M. Thompson estate, against Charles Haverstock, the demand being for $10,000. Mrs. Thompson lived at Butler. She was riding in an automobile owned by Vivian Kline and driven by Jas. Beaty July 20, 1937. They were proceeding northwest from Butler on the Butler-Hamilton road when the car collided with one driven by the defendant. Mrs. Tohmpson died the following day from her injuries in the Dr. Bonnell Souder hospital in Auburn.

The complaint states that the defendant drove from a private driveway on his farm, with his view obstructed by trees, vines and other obstructions, onto the highway and that he was responsible for the accident. Mrs. Thompson had as dependents two young children, Louisa, 6, and Wm. F. Thompson, 4.

The additional names drawn for jury service follow:

Jay Sutherland, Fairfield.
Cleo Gardner, Fairfield.
Fred Gafkin, Grant.
Thos. Shafer, Union.
Marie Draggoo, Concord.
Arthur J. Haynes, Union.
Paul Carpenter, Spencer.
Dora Lutsenhiser, Franklin.
Claude Tulley, Keyser.
Clarence Bowers, Grant.
Nicholas Miller, Smithfield.
Gary Penland, Union.

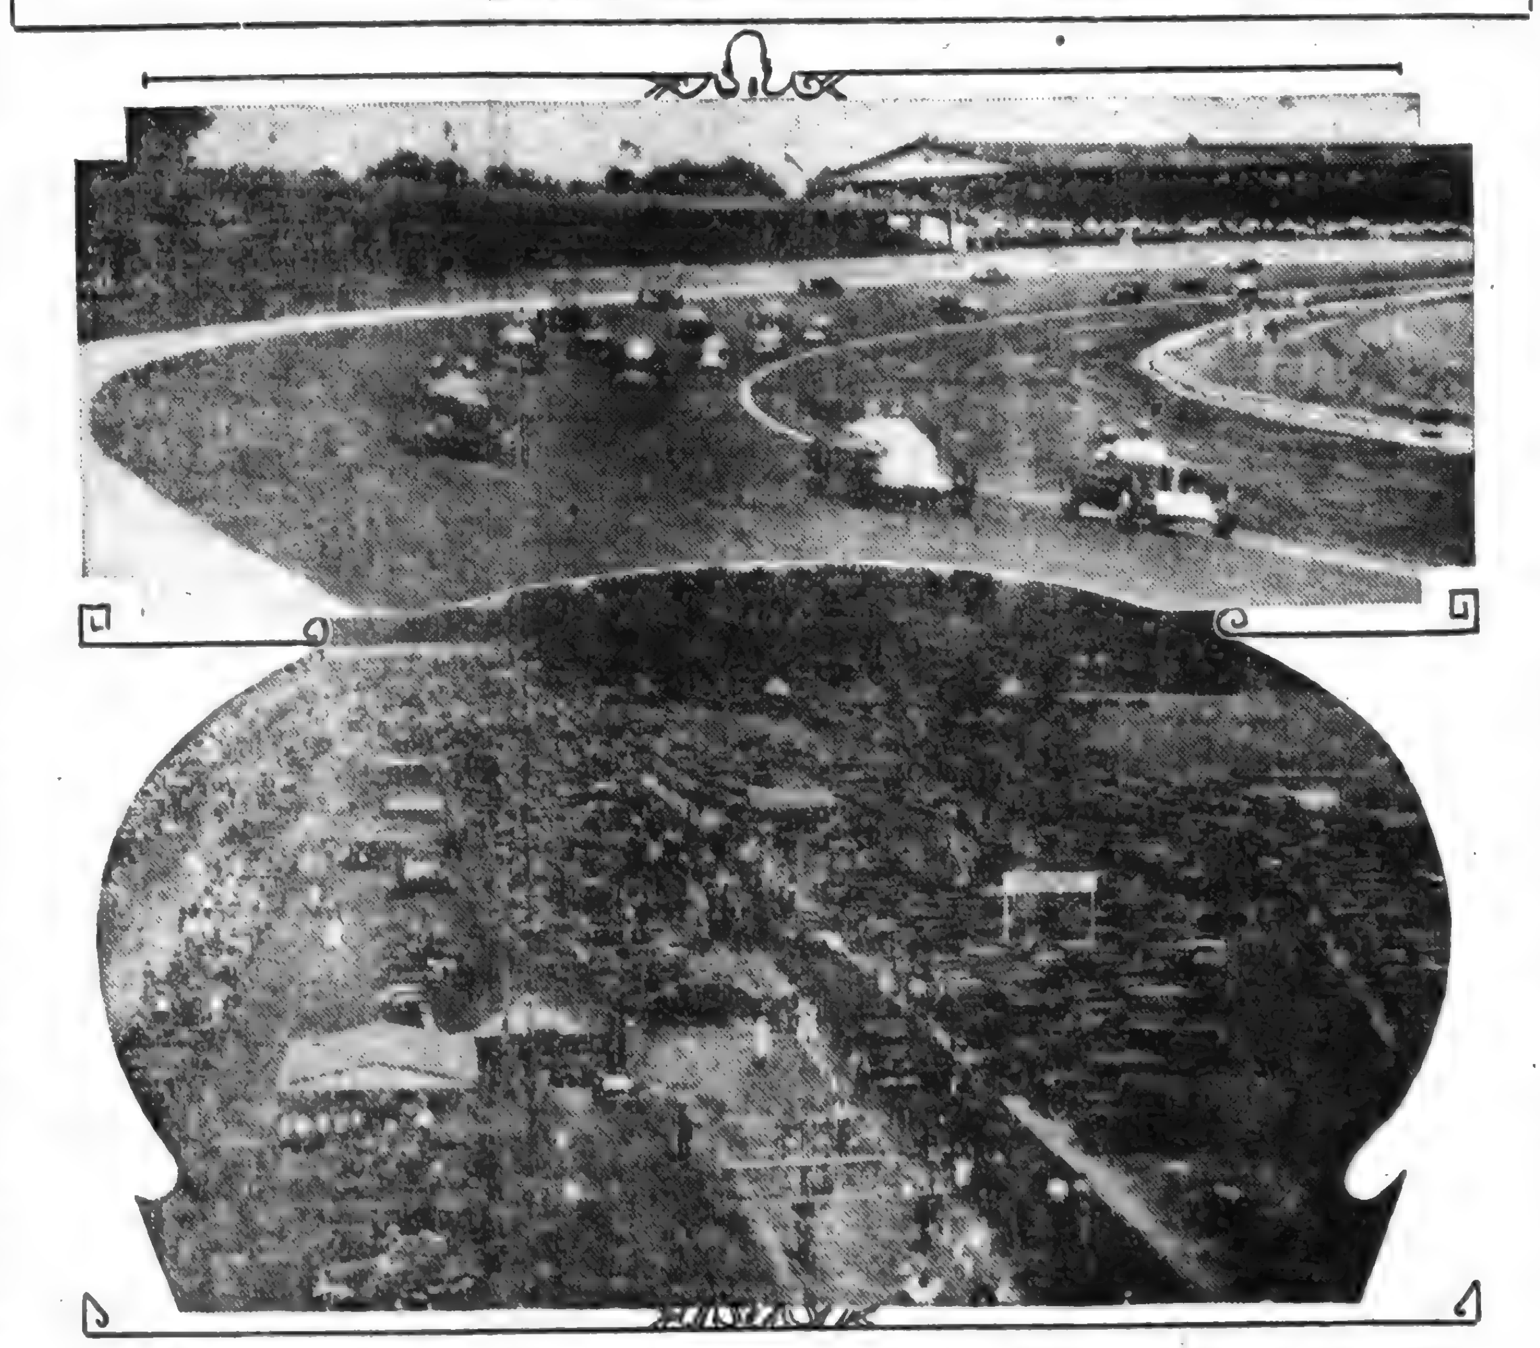
SPEED SPECTACLE OF 500-MILE RACE CAN'T BE 'SELLOUT' DESPITE CROWDS



The field coming around a turn as the infield crowd sees it. Below, a portion of the parked cars at the last race.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—It's the boast of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway that there cannot be a sellout, though the 500-mile race May 30th undoubtedly will again attract the largest attendance of any sporting event in America.

The secret behind this, as revealed by T. E. Myers, general manager, is that there are thousands of free parking spaces available in the infield.

"Even with 65,000 spectators seated in the nine grandstands and three infield bleacher stands," he says, "there is a huge surplus of parking space in the infield. Behind the pits along the main straightaway, there are 4,000 parking spaces for cars which are reserved, all the rest are free. On the north and south turns, and along the back stretch there is a mile and a half of free parking space. It is estimated that 75,000 cars could be accommodated in the infield, though there is never anywhere near that number, and figuring four persons to a car 300,000 could see the race from those points."

That would give Indianapolis 365,000 persons. The attendance last year was nowhere near that figure although the largest crowd in history, and the crowd was easily handled in the 15 motor gates and the 25 foot gates, all of which open at six o'clock the morning of the race. By the time the race starts at 10 o'clock, the crowd has been sped through completely.

Those in the infield make Race Day a picnic. They enjoy the pre-race ceremonies, the parade, band concert, bomb salutes, and then see the thrilling start. After watching the race until noon, they open their luncheon hampers and enjoy a repast.

By the time the most thrilling sport event in the world is approaching its final stages, the vast crowd is in rare good humor, and enjoying every moment of the speed battle. So Indianapolis has been since 1911, and its crowd story will be written as of old on Decoration Day.

FARM HAND FOUND DEAD IN BED

Thomas F. Grimes, aged about 38, who was employed at the Everett Wann farm about three miles west of Antwerp, on U. S. Highway 24, was found dead in his room Wednesday morning, evidently from a heart attack.

A physician was called and stated that the man had been dead five or six hours when discovered.

He had worked on the Wann farm since last July, but little of his affairs or history is known.

All that was found among his effects was a social security card, issued at Spencerville, Ind., where he is supposed to have been employed on the Wabash railroad section previous to going to the Wann farm.

An identification card in a purse named Mrs. Loretta Grimes, 708 Richard Street, Dayton, Ohio.

He had stated that his original home was at Martins Ferry, Ohio.

The body was taken to the Perkins & Reeb funeral home at Hicksville, where it is being held while an attempt to locate his people is being made.

In consequence burial arrangements have not yet been made.

Mr. Wann first contacted the man at a Fort Wayne mission, he having evidently come there after his employment at Spencerville.—News-Tribune, Hicksville, Ohio.

Mr. Grimes was employed at the Widney Orchards for some time. When leaving there he went to work for Floyd Weikel on the farm just north of St. Joe.

LADIES AUXILIARY SPONSOR POPPY SALE

The poppies will be brought to us on Poppy Day, the Saturday before Memorial Day by the women of the American Legion Auxiliary. These women will have in their hands coin boxes into which each person receiving a poppy will be asked to drop something for the welfare work of the Legion and Auxiliary. It may be only a dime that is given, yet this will contribute to the well being and happiness of some needy veteran or child during the year ahead.

The need for the poppy funds has grown greater, not less, with the passing of the years. Veterans are now dying at the rate of 80 each day, nearly all leaving families. Injuries and illness are removing even larger numbers of veterans from the ranks of wage earners. Now so long after the war it is difficult or impossible to establish proof that death or disability resulted from war service, and without this proof little government aid is available.

The Legion and Auxiliary must step in where the government cannot reach, giving help of a type which no official agency can supply. The dimes, quarters and dollars contributed for poppies make this possible.

We need to remember the patriotic sacrifice of the dead, to remember that men have died for this country of ours, given their lives by the thousands that we might be secure. Wear a poppy in tribute to them, and we will feel their sturdy patriotism stir within us, and we will go forward in their spirit to serve America in these critical days of peace as they served during the crisis of war.

WOULD ABOLISH TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE'S OFFICE IN INDIANA

Abolition of township government in Indiana was advocated Thursday by William P. Cosgrove, chief examiner of the State Board of Accounts.

Mr. Cosgrove said his plan of local government reorganization would eliminate the 1,016 townships and take 5,000 elective officers off governmental pay-rolls.

Home rule, Mr. Cosgrove said, would be retained in principle, but counties, rather than townships, would be the unit. He said he had studied this proposal several years.

Except for the levying of taxes to retire indebtedness incurred before the change would be effected, township lines would be obliterated under the plan proposed by Mr. Cosgrove and townships would go out of existance as they paid off their indebtedness.

Changes proposed by the accounts board chief would include elimination of several county offices, including county commissioners and county assessors who are not constitutional officers. Only seven county officials would be retained, all established by the constitution. These would be auditor, treasurer, clerk, recorder, sheriff, coroner and surveyor. The county judicial system would be unchanged.

The seven remaining officials would compose a county administration board with authority to appoint officers to operate schools, administer poor relief, maintain roads, assess property and carry on other governmental functions. Another present unit which would be retained is the county council.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

What can we do for the pedestrian? Approximately three out of four traffic fatalities result from vehicles coming into contact with pedestrians. Safety education has helped to reduce the number of fatalities among school children, and from experience in various cities we know that adult education in safety is also effective in reducing the number of accidents.

Laws and regulations alone will not prevent accidents. The idea of carefulness must be instilled in the minds of our citizens, and until the time comes when every man, woman, and child is safety conscious, little progress can be expected.

Safety meetings, lectures, movies, posters, and articles in newspapers and magazines will all help to educate the public and to keep the important problem of safety uppermost in the minds of pedestrians and motorists.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

CHANGE IN RATE OF DEDUCTIONS FOR THE 1938 AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM

A letter just received from Claude R. Wickard, Director of the North Central Region of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration states a change in the rate of deduction for over-planting the total soil depleting acreage allotment with general soil depleting crops. The statement follows:

"The rate of deduction from payments for over-planting total soil depleting acreage allotments with general soil depleting crops has just been reduced from eight times to five times the rate of payment. The payment in the program for the general soil depleting acreage is $1.25 adjusted for productivity of the farm. For each acer that the total soil depleting allotment is exceeded with general soil depleting crops on a farm with a general rate of $1.25 per acre, the deductions from the maximum payments for the farm will be $6.25 per acre instead of $10.00 as provided previously by the 1938 program."

Most farmers had already planted their general soil depleting crops before the corn and total soil depleting acreage allotments were sent to them. For this reason, we wanted to make the deductions for over-planting these general soil depleting crops as small as possible while still retaining a substantial deduction for any excess plantings out of line with the program. The smaller deductions on general crops should make it much easier for farmers in the Corn Belt to hold their corn acreage within their corn allotments.

One of the frankest commentaries made on the business situation by any high Administration authority recently, came from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who said that business appears to be steadily getting worse. That pessimistic conclusion is amply supported by the statistics. Business is not getting worse rapidly—but the trend of the indexes is undoubtedly downward. April was an exceedingly disappointing month. Attitude of many experts is reflected by the Annalist, which said on April 29 that "by the time the new pump priming program becomes effective (assuming is becomes effective at all,) business will be so depressed that any probable stimulus will merely result in raising the business index to a level little if any higher than it was when the program was first announced."

Looking at the picture from the statistical point of view, the business activity graph in Business Week April 30 provides some illuminating comparisons. At that time, the general index for the latest week covered stood at 58.1 as compared with 58.4 for the preceding week, and 59.1 for the week a month previous. A year before, the index was at 77. The average for the years 1933-37 was 66.3. Thus, business is now operating at a level substantially below even that average, which included three years of abject industrial depression, one fair year (1936,) and only about seven or eight months of comparatively prosperous times (January to October, 1937.)

Equally serious is the fact that the decline has finally reached practically all lines of activity—not just a limited number, as was the case when the current "recession" began. Extremely severe drops have occurred in electric power production and freight car loadings—a fact that casts a great deal of light on the retrenchment taking place throughout all industry and commerce. Steel is down again, with prospects for the immediate future dark. The automobile industry is largely in the doldrums, and it is reported that plans for 1939 changes and innovations have been abandoned by some makers. In all the basic industries strongly favorable factors, either for the long or the short pull, seem to be almost entirely lacking.

Industry tried to gain some cheer from the President's recent statements to the effect that he wished to cooperate with business leaders. However, there is only a tenuous hope that everything tangible will come of it. There have been many "conferences" in the past, and none have been fruitful.

Summing up, the outlook is for little change in business in the near future, with the tendency continuing downward. Hopes are pinned on the fall. And what that season will bring is an unkown quantity.

A great many Americans are justifiably confused by recent events abroad. The meeting between Hitler and Mussolini, in which the two dictators toasted each other and made fulsome pledges of friendship, coming so soon on the new England-Italian agreement, has further mixed up the European crazy-quilt.

Most of the experts are coming to the conclusion that Mussolini is playing both ends against the middle. He wants to avoid trouble with Germany. He likewise wants to avoid trouble with France and England. He doesn't know what countries would be strongest in the event of war, and he naturally wants to back a winner. So he is sitting on the fence. And in the meantime, England and France have lately completed an agreement which is regarded as being of tremendous importance. Under its terms, in the event of war, Paris and London would work together toward a common goal. Their general staffs would cooperate, as would their diplomats. As Dorothy Thompson puts it, "It really amounts to establishing a common army, a common command, and a common foreign policy."

The general tendency of recent events is to isolate Germany, and to make it exceedingly dangerous for Hitler to attempt the conquest that everyone believes he has in mind now —that of Czechoslovakia, whose most potent allies are France and the U. S. S. R. The Japanese question has become less of a problem for the time being—Japan is finding the going very hard in China, and she is too busy there to adventure elsewhere. And most authorities feel that even if she finally subdues China, which is by no means assured, she will have to spend so much in men, money and materials that she will be left enervated.

Vitally important will be the next English election, which must come before the end of 1940. Chamberlain has many enemies—chief among them Winston Churchill, most brilliant and unpredictable of the present-day British statesmen. Churchill is a strong backer of Eden, who is today playing tennis, painting watercolors, and saying nothing. The fireworks are being prepared—and the outcome of the fight may revolutionize British foreign policy.

THE HOPPERS ARE COMING

News forecasts regarding rural life conditions are always of interest, even though you've got to take the good along with the bad. So the forecasts just sent out from the "hopper belt" will be recorded by those citizens who read it as unwelcome news.

It is said that good egg-laying weather last fall, plus mild winter temperatures that failed to kill many of the eggs, give promise of a major grasshopper invasion this summer, federal and state experts in insect pest fighting predicting that a new high for crop damage is apt to be recorded in many sections. Grasshopper fighters who know all the signs say that unless unfavorable conditions intervene, heavy infestations will occur in 24 states from Michigan West and from Canada South. Last year's hopper damage amounted to $60,000,000. With many control measures offered, including everything from castor beans to hair snakes, poison bait will be the major weapon used against the hopper. Believing there is a shortage of bran in Texas needed for making poison bait, state college bug men are making efforts to locate sawdust (to use as a substitute) at Texas lumber mills. Conditions are said to point to the worst year in Texas' hopper history.

To the millions who live out of the "belt" and who can do no more than sit and fold their hands and sympathize, however, there is one consolation. The army of hopper fighters,, better organized and equipped than ever before and with more funds on hand, is already on the battlefield and has already started in to wage the hardest fight it has ever carried on, and that this year it will be a fight to the finish.

PAYING ITS WAY

The recent action of congress in appropriating $50,000,000 with which to operate the 1501 CCC Camps throughout the U. S. for another year is one federal expenditure which, regardless of a man's political leaning is pretty apt to have his whole-hearted approval. As viewed by the average taxpayer, the kind of tax spending for which the whole country gets something in return is represented in the CCC. It's the kind of tax paying which makes for a better country in the future because it builds a better citizenship of the material now on hand.

Glance at these interesting figures, issued in connection with the CCC appropriation and you'll better understand why this is true. Started slightly less than five years ago as the nation's first recovery project, the CCC has given employment to more than 2,200,000 persons at various times. The program carried out has included the following: 1,255,262,000 forest trees planted; 64,231 miles of telephone lines erected; 41,133 bridges constructed; 44,475 major type buildings completed; 3,982,720 soil erosion dams built; 2,098,307 acres of forest land improved; 16,722,021 acres cleared of plant disease and insect pests; 120,310 miles of roads and trails built; 4,180,500 man-days spent in fighting forest fires. Of the $30 a month paid to each enrollee, $25 has gone to aid dependents at home, so it is estimated that more than 10,000,000 persons have been aided by the CCC Program.

Give the average taxpayer something to show for his money, and you will hear little protest from him. But give him something that makes a better man of his boy at the same time it is building a better country and you'll hear none at all.

Herb Ardinger to Aim For New '500' Marks

HERB ARDINGER
THERE GOES MY CAR

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Herb Ardinger didn't win the last 500-mile race, but he's going to pick up where he left off in the coming contest on May 30th.

The McKeesport, Pa., favorite swept into a commanding position on the first lap of the 1937 classic, setting a new all-time record of 116.009 M.P.H. for the two and a half mile circuit. He also established a new mark of 118.702 M.P.H. for two laps and figured among the contenders until he left his car for relief on the 71st lap. Jimmy Snyder took the car at that point, and Ardinger remained in his pit ready to return to the wheel. But Snyder wrecked in the 106th lap, when he hit the wall on the south turn, leaving Ardinger without a car.

Ardinger demonstrated in previous Indianapolis contests that he is a topnotcher and returns this year with the reputation of being one of the leaden-foot brigade who would shoot for the pole position. He qualified last year fifth highest on the list, getting into the race with a mark of nearing 122 miles an hour to his credit.

TO APPLY ERADICATION METHODS TO THISTLES

When preparing the seed bed for spring planting, it should be borne in mind that cultivating through patches of Canada thistles will hasten their spread. Canada thistle is a perennial plant with an undergroud root stalk. When the cultivators or harrow drags pieces of roots from the infested area to other parts of the field new patches of thistle will be started wherever the root may be lodged. It is advisable to plow and cultivate around the patches. Placing stacks or posts around the patch is often a good practice as this will help to avoid running the machinery through the area by mistake.

The method of eradication that is most practical should be applied to eradicate the infestation and do away with the source of the infestation. Spraying is possibly the quickest and most effective method of eradicating Canada thistle. The high cost of the chemical makes doubtful the practicability of its use on acres of one-half or more acres in size.

Canada thistle can be eradicated by cultivation. When the cultivation method of control is used, it must be kept in mind that the secret of control involves keeping down leaf growth until the roots are starved out. The infested area should be plowed in April or May. Following plowing cultivation should be started and continued throughout the summer and fall. It is often necessary to cultivate once a week to prevent top growth.

The third method of control of Canada thistle involves the use of alfalfa as a smother crop. A good stand of alfalfa will smother out Canada thistle.

ISSUE FIREWORKS REGULATIONS

Regulations concerning storage, sale and use of fireworks have been mailed to fire chiefs throughout the state, Clem Smith, State Fire Marshal, announced Monday.

State laws prohibit the sale or display of fireworks before June 20 or after July 4, Mr. Smith said. He pointed out that many cities have more stringent ordinances, however.

Fireworks may not be sold to children under 12, he said, or on any street, sidewalk, alley or public park. They may neither be sold or lighted at any filling station or garage, he said.

Directions for storing fireworks articles in non-combustible containers were also given.

The Fire Marshal pointed out that each fire chief is an assistant state fire marshal, and therefore has the authority to go outside his city limits in enforcing the state fireworks laws. He cautioned the local chiefs on supervising public displays and warned against aerial displays improperly set up.

Fireworks specifically banned are: globe flash salutes, marble flash salutes, cherry flash salutes, radio flash salutes, o. k. flash salutes, silver blast flash salutes, national flash salutes, super bull dog salutes, all salutes above three inches, all flash salutes above three inches, auto protector, auto alarm, burglar alarm, auto wheel joker, bango auto fire joke bomb, auto skunk, whistling tornado, whistling cyclone, whistling whizzer, whistling storm king, spit devil, son of a gun, devil on the walk, all sizes of white snakes (poisnous) and hot air paper balloons.

Mr. Smith said he had examined all fireworks before declaring the above list "dangerous and especially liable to destroy life and property."

CAN NOT TAKE MINNOWS DURING CLOSED SEASON

Taking minnows from Indiana waters during the closed season on fishing is a violation of the law but minnow seines can be used in taking crawfish for bait, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, said today.

The statutes prohibit the taking of minnows—defined as chubs, shiners, suckers, dace, stonerollers, muddlers and mud-minnows and the young of any fish with the exception of game species. The young of game species are protected by the closed season and the minimum lengths. The closed season for taking minnows and the young fish other than game species, extends from April 31 to Jnue 16.

Minnow seines can be used during the closed saeson for taking crawfish, there being no restricted period for the use of these seines, as long as they meet requirements of the law and are not used for taking minnows or game species.

CHASING SEAL POACHERS

Chasing seal poachers in Alaskan waters suggests a series of adventures with dime novel possibilities, yet it merely added one more to scores of novel tasks which have fallen to the lot of the U. S. Marines.

Herds of seals were being slaughtered in the Bering Sea in 1891, until their complete extinction was threatened. Profits from the industry were so large that ruthless methods were introduced, such as the stretching of nets to entangle the migrating seals, of the fitting out of small schooners, of from thirty to fifty tons, manned by crews of a dozen or men.

Our Government, through an agreement with Great Britain, decided to call a halt to these practices and limit the activities of the sealers. British ships and several small American vessels with marines aboard patrolled Northern waters near Alaska, distributing verbal as well as printed warnings of the restrictions. Often these warings were unheeded.

Sealing vessels sometimes attempted to escape and were halted after a chase. Sometimes as many as a dozen vessels were boarded in a single day. Two were taken by the Americans and marines were placed aboard them to insure their safe delivery into port, where their crews were imprisoned. Once, when mutiny threatened, the captain of a chartered vessel invoked the aid of the sea soldiers and the trouble ended quickly.

For a period of four months the U. S. Marines, along with their British allies, were figuratively the G-men of the Bering Sea, enforcing obedience to the law. Then the sea soldiers quietly returned to their normal tasks, leaving behind them adventures as novel as any they have encountered in their long years of service to the country.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Receipts were about one-fourth larger this week than for last week's auction. Feeder pigs and sows with pigs at heel seemed to be the high light in this week's sale.

Hogs: 170 to 180, $7.65 to $7.70. Roughs, $6.50; boars $4.00 to $4.50. Feeder pigs selling by the head brought as much as 12c per pound.

Veals had no trouble in making a top of $9.20 with a liberal sort selling between $9.00 and $9.20. Veals are running of better quality than for some time past which helps all grades make a higher price.

Clipped lambs $6.00; fat ewes $3.00 to a top of $3.60.

Cattle: Steers selling off grass $7.00 to $7.30; heifers of like quality ten cents below steer prices. Fat cows up to $6.45. Bulls $6.00 to $6.60. Milk cows about $5.00 lower than a month ago.

Woods Colored by Hand

There is no known means of fixing the color of any soft woods when they are exposed to light and weather. All woods fade in a more or less degree (ebony, satinwood, Cuba or Spanish mahogany, the least) under exposure. The richness and color of the woods chiefly used now in furniture and paneling is largely produced by the art of the French polisher, but fine quality hard woods will retain their color (indoors only) for centuries.

JEAN SCHWARTZ was the youngest of three sons and a daughter in the Schwartz family home in Budapest. His sister, a pupil of Liszt, taught him music.

When Jean was ten the family moved to America, and settled on New York's lower east side. Jean used to go from house to house seeking a piano on which to practice

Schooling was a problem for the youngest son of a poverty stricken family, so Jean soon went to work by day and studied at night. He was an office boy, a cigar factory worker, a department store errand boy, bookkeeper's clerk, cashier in a Turkish-bath, etc., at an age when other lads were larking.

He never lost his desire to compose, and haunted publishing houses with his manuscripts. He finally joined a publishing firm at half his former salary.

While at this publishers he met the late William Jerome, and they formed a songwriting team. "Chinatown, My Chinatown" was written to order for a production.

"Up And Down Broadway" had a Chinese painted drop, and the song was needed while a change was made backstage, but it was not until three years later that the vaudeville team of Mathews and Ashley made the song famous.

Jean Schwartz, a high ranking member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers composed other outstanding songs, many with an Irish theme. After forty years of songwriting, he is in Hollywood.

(Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the attitude of the publisher or editor of this newspaper. —Editor's Note.)

Here are some figures that should interest everyone—but they certainly will interest the farmer. They show the imports of various farm commodities from other countries in 1932 and in 1937. After each commmodity is printed the unit represented by the figures.

Commodity	1932 Imports	1937 Imports
Corn, bu.	347,027	86,337,248
Wheat, bu.	10,026,000	17,434,837
Barley malt lb.	52,532,636	371,243,456
Rye, bu.	87	206,860
Tapioca, lb.	130,000,372	432,857,738
Hay, tons	13,858	146,149
Soybeans, lb.	36,568,700	109,418,304
Cottonseed oil, lb.	1,058,943	194,008,241
Butter, lb.	1,032,598	11,110,762
Cattle, head	97,040	494,943
Hogs, lb.	34,155	16,555,218
Fresh pork, pounds	1,657,500	20,876,569
Hams, bacon, etc., lb.	3,015,489	47,422,022
Fresh beef, pounds	796,594	4,665,558
Canned beef, pounds	24,793,497	88,087,133
Total meat products, lb.	46,749,702	191,906,012
Eggs in shell, dozens	243,784	520,189
Dried yolks, pounds	1,193,000	5,240,358
Frozen yolks, pounds	422,060	1,482,062
Egg albumen, pounds	1,275,790	2,844,073
Wool, mohair, pounds	58,097,521	326,034,700
Dried milk, pounds	59,620	2,924,157
Hides, lb.	188,013,280	312,035,407

The reader will note that in every case, the imports have increased from several hundred per cent to several thousand per cent. Take hogs, for example. There were 34,155 pounds of pork on the hoof imported in 1932—and in 1937 this had increased to 16,555,218—or approximately 500 times.

Well, it certainly is something to think about. The American farmer was persuaded that there was a definite necessity to limit production of pork so that prices could be increased. Then the government benefitted Canadian and European farmers by importing pork—and by increasing its imports 500 times. It is enough to make those little pigs that were slaugthered turn over in their graves. And it is enough to turn the hair of any American very gray.

Now....there is one thing in all of this that worries me considerably. United States Senator Sherman Minton has introduced a bill in the Senate to make everybody in the newspaper business prove everything he prints. I am afraid that he is going to get after us about this one, and if he does—well, you can tell him, Mr. Publisher, that this one was sent to me by the United States government printing office because that's where it was printed.

The real reason why Earl Crawford of Milton, former secretary to Governor Paul V. McNutt, resigned as a member of the Indiana state highway commission is beginning to circulate here.

Mr. Crawford, of course, is maintaining a discreet silence and returned to Milton and Crawfordsville, between which he divides his time, without telling his story to newspaper reporters.

According to the story that is in circulation, and it has been rather definitely established, Mr. Crawford went to the Governor's office in March and announced his intention of dismissing an employee of the commission.

Asked for this reason, he replied that a certain type of material was being too much used on Indiana highways. He said that he felt that roads should be repaired with the same material with which they originally were constructed. But for some reason, he said that, according to the reports, the person whom he wished to dismiss insisted in using one certain material for repairs.

As the story has it, Mr. Crawford was informed that he could not dismiss the person to whom he had referred. He replied that he could and would dismiss the man because the state highway commission was not included in the state reorganization bill that was adopted early in the McNutt administration and that it was not under the direct authority of the governor.

Later, according to the story, Mr. Crawford was found in a restaurant by a messenger who gave him a note requesting his resignation. He resigned and dated the resignation for April 1, 1938.

Newspaper men questioned him concerning his resignation and he declined to talk for publication. The resignation of Mr. Crawford attracted wide interest because of the very secrecy that attended it.

THE FOURTY-FOURTH ANNUAL WINONA LAKE BIBLE CONFERENCE

Winona Lake Institutions, Winona Lake, Indiana, has during the past year gone through an experience of great blessing. Close to $100,000.00 has been secured, all indebtedness has been paid off and a greatly enlarged program has been prepared for the season just before her.

Chief among the various religious attractions of this popular place for Christian people to spend their vacation is the Winona Lake Bible Conference which enters upon its forty-fourth Annual Assembly. Dr. Williams Edward Biederwolf, who for many years has been the Director of this famous Conference, has prepared an especially strong program for this coming August. The dates of the Conference are Wednesday, August 17th thru Sunday, August 28th.

One secret of the large attendance of ministers at this Conference is the fact that the Committee associated with Dr. Biederwolf in preparing the program has always done so with the needs of the minister especially in view. This year will furnish no exception as the following list of speakers will evidence, James McGinley, of Canada, August 17 thru 21; Wilbur M. Smith, writer of Peloubet's S. S. notes, Aug. 17 thru 20; Elmer Ellsworth Helms, Los Angeles, Aug. 17 thru 19; W. H. Rogers, First Baptist Church, New York City, Aug 17 thru 18; J. Palmer Muntz, Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 17 thru 28; J. Hoffman Cohn, Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 17; Hermann Cents, Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 17; C. S. Rody, First Baptist Church, Portland, Maine, Aug 18 thru 20; George S. McCune, Missionary Statesman, Aug. 21 thru 24; Herbert W. Bieber, Bala Cynwyd, Pa., Aug. 21 thru 28; John Wesley Kingston, Irish Evangelist, Aug. 22; Peter Deyneka of Russia, Aug. 22 and 23; Harry Rimmer, Pres. LADIES AUXILIARY TO SELL POPPIES SATURDAY

Poppy Day is Saturday, May 28. The Memorial Poppies will be distributed throughout the community by the members of the local American Legion Auxiliary.

They are making an effort to make this a successful Poppy Day and are hoping that everyone will catch the spirit of the day, and will join with them in "honoring the dead and aiding the disabled."

Buy a Poppy Saturday. All of your money goes for Child Welfare and Rehabilitation.

All workers will serve as unpaid volunteers, permitting every penny received for the poppies to go into the Auxiliary's rehabilitation and welfare funds. This money is the principal source of support for the continuous program of aid for disabled veterans and families of the dead and disabled carried out by the Auxiliary.

The local poppy corps will be part of an army of 100,000 women who will distribute the little Red Memorial Flowers throughout the country on Poppy Day, to honor the war dead and raise funds to aid those living in suffering and need because of the war. More than ten million poppies have been made for the day's observance by disabled veterans in government hospitals and Auxiliary work rooms, located in 40 states. Fully one million dollars is expected to be received in contributions for the poppies.

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO THE TREES

J. R. Leighty writes concerning the destruction of the different variety of trees and we reproduce it thinking it of value to our readers.
Editor.

The damage to Apple and Elm trees last year and this is so serious in some localities that every one should know what is causing it and how to prevent it if they have trees they want to save.

The trouble seems to have crept in from the South and is following up the St. Joe River worse than away from it, though there is some already over east of the ridge separating the St. Joe and Maumee water shed and as far north as Angola.

The Fall Canker Worm eats the leaves until the sap flow through them is stopped and some times the entire leaf is eaten. In most cases the trees will put out a new set of leaves the first year this happens and sometimes will recover even the second year.

There are two of these Canker Worms very much alike except that the moth that lays the eggs for one kind emerges in the Fall and produces a worm with three pairs of front legs while the other emerges in the Spring and produces a worm with two pairs of front legs. The appearance of these two worms are very much alike and their feeding habits are the same. They both belong to a group commonly called "loopers" or "measuring worms" from the way they move forward.

Their first choice of food is the Apple leaf and next the Elm. They will eat some other kinds of leaves but only in emergencies, and will not breed in great numbers except where they can get their favorite food.

They are usually held in check by birds and a few parasites, but as they grow less in numbers their enemies also disappear from lack of food and the worms increase again until they become a serious pest.

It usually takes from three to four years for the infection to run its course and disappear and ten to fifteen years to again build up to a serious situation. It is the old, old story in nature of the survival of the well fed.

Many people have a few Apple or Elm trees they would like to save and it can be done by spraying them with Aresnate of Lead. Use four pounds of Arsenate to one hundred gallons of water. Apply when the worms make their appearance. No exact date can be given as the appearance depends on the temperature in the Spring. The safest plan is to keep the leaves covered from their first appearance. Several sprayings is surer than only one as new leaves are not covered and the worm may not get his dose. Feed the worm plenty of Arsenic and they well curl up and stop bothering the trees.

FRIED CHICKEN DINNER

Next Sunday at The Akins Tea Room. Make your reservation by phoning No. 18. Enjoy the day by taking dinner out. Price 50 cents.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Once a year, on Memorial Day, we respect and honor our dead. It is just and fitting that we do so.

During the holiday period, however, we frequently forget our own safety. In past years, many more dead have been added to our cemeteries because of reckless and unsafe practices on these week-end holidays.

Make this Memorial Day week-end a safety week-end. Do not violate the rules of courtesy and the rules of the road. America can make Memorial Day a real day in the memory of our dead by safe, sane, and sensible driving.

Now that filling stations are serving hot dogs motorists should be careful to see that the attendants don't make a mistake and fill the crank case with mustard.

Why is it that if you were right 99 times and wrong once everybody remembers the time you were wrong.

Marriages may be made in heaven but the sofas in homes have been the scene of a lot of preliminary arrangements.

In Russia the Soviet has abolished Sunday as a day of rest, but the auto and golf did that in this country a long time ago.

The world may be getting smarter, but a lot of fishermen will rock the boat this summer just the same.

Another advantage in living in St. Joe instead of in a big city is that you don't have to wear out a pair of shoes here running out to see if the police have put a ticket on your car.

Another thing we have never been able to understand is what happens to a crowd immediately after the parade has passed.

What man ever expected to see the time when a pair of high-heeled shoes and cotton stockings would be classed among the antiques.

Could you refer to a man who has three pairs of shoes as being well heeled?

Another thing the city man can't understand is how a farmer gets grass to grow without sprinkling it.

When a girl listens to the fellow who is courting her she doesn't realize that she is listening to the same line of hot air Father used when he was courting Mother.

Just because a girl has a ringing laugh is no reason to suppose that she is the belle of the village.

When you are fishing for compliments it is always best to bait your hook with compliments.

Every time the average man has a half-hour to spare he uses it up bothering another man who hasn't any spare time.

One day's report of the doings of the Senate states that the upper body put in is working hours considering the block-booking of films, whatever that may be. No doubt films ought or ought not to be block-booked. Having made that observation, the average reader will have to fall back on the slang phrase "Skip it." The same day, the House was busy with consent and private calendars, likewise a cryptic description of what was going on.

Having cracked a joke at the expense of Congress, always a target for jokes, it must be admitted that the legislators are on the job and industrious, notwithstanding the fact that some of their doings do not furnish material for spicy or always interesting reading. A bill to give the State of California title to all submerged oil lands off the coast of that commonwealth may indicate a wise and far-seeing attempt to penetrate the future. The granting of an appropriation to reconstruct Fort Niagara after a fire may be just as necessary to the welfare of the national barnyard as plans to build a new pig pen on the ashes of the one that went up in smoke are, to the upkeep of the old homestead.

Speaking of legislation of a minor nature, there is a gentle and welcome fragrance of sentiment in the bill, signed and ready to be put into operation, providing for federal notice of the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg in the closing days of June. Union and Confederate veterans alike will be provided with transportation, entertainment and the services of an attendant for each old solider who may wish to attend. Those who pitched their tents on fame's eternal camping ground in the Civil War period are few and far between, but they are the ones who should be given an opportunity to show that hands long since have been clasped over the issues of a regrettable conflict that once called for the crossing of swords.

When Shakespeare said: "O that a man might know the end of this day's business ere it come, but it sufficeth that the day will end, and then the end is known," he did not have Pennsylvania politics in mind, but the much-watched primary election in the Keystone State is over, and the end seems to be known, although the returns are not complete. Gov. Earle and the regular Democratic forces are reported safe, notwithstanding the bitter fight put up by the Lewis-Guffey coalition, and the newspapers characterize the outcome as a defeat of the C. I. O. in its first bid for political power. This contention appears to be confirmed from another quarter, since Former Governor Gifford Pinchot said to be inclined toward the C. I. O., lost the Republican nomination for Governor by a vote that was large enough to be definitely indicative of what the electorate thought about the C. I. O. matter.

President Roosevelt has put his John Hancock on the Navy Bill and thus it becomes law. By its terms, slightly more than a billion dollars are available for the purpose of increasing naval strength one-fifth. That branch of the nation's defense will attain an effectiveness hitherto unknown and the ships constructed will be the most powerful that ever slipped from the ways into the water. It is started by some that the United States has started a naval building race which will lead to havoc throughout the world, and by others that the appropriation simply means that European nations who have a Napoleonic idea of conquering the world had better take notice that "the world" does not include the U. S. A. Off hand, it may be maintained that a naval building contest finds its basis in the adage that one fool makes many, but with Duces and Fuehrers running wild in Europe it will do no harm to furbish up the guns and things over here, for the purposes of righteous and just defense. Relying upon memory, it seems as though Solomon had something about answering a fool according to his follly, lest he be wise in his own conceit.

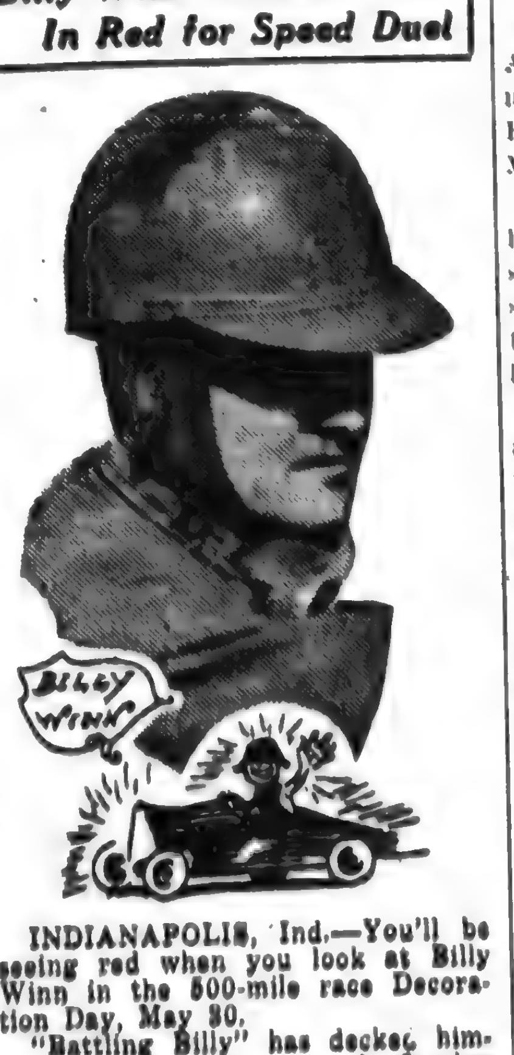
Billy Winn Decked Out In Red for Speed Duel



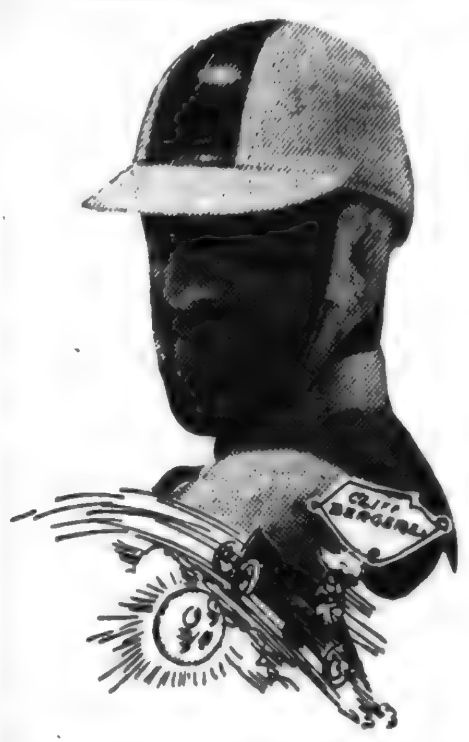
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—You'll be seeing red when you look at Billy Winn in the 500-mile race Decoration Day, May 30.

"Battling Billy" has decked himself and his pit crew out in flaming red attire, and will be easy to follow on his fiery dash around the bricks of the famous Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Winn, Detroit's favorite in the speed classic, returned to Indianapolis with the record of being one of the swiftest chauffeurs on the dirt track circuit during the past season. He won the only championship dirt track race—at Syracuse—defeating, among others, Rex Mays, Bill Cummings, Mauri Rose and other Indianapolis leaders.

He ranks as top driver of the racing team entered by Harry Miller, America's premier racing engineer, who has built five cars for the 500-mile race. Winn figured in a spectacular incident during the early days of practice this year, when his race car caught fire in a trial spin, Winn coolly braked the car to a dead stop and directed extinguishing of the blaze.

Hollywood Stunt Man 'Incognito' for Racing



INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Cliff Bergere, famous stunt man of Hollywood, is ready for his eleventh crack at the $100,000 prize money of the 500-mile race May 30th. Bergere's business cards for the movies reads: "Automobile Stunts and Crashes," but he carefully keeps them in his pocket when he arrives at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"You see," Cliff explains, "most car owners read so much publicity out of Hollywood on the cars I wreck, that they're a bit leery about letting me take one of their cars out at high speed on the track. Every year I've got to convince them that I'm not a stunt man, and tell them about my record in 500-mile races."

Bergere's record backs up his daring. Starting in 1927, he had finished in the money, among the first ten, in six out of eleven 500-mile races. He was ninth in 1927, and finished in fifth place in 1937, ten years late. And when the race is over back he goes to Hollywood—for more stunts and crashes.

THE CROSSWALK CREEPER
STOP BACK OF CROSSWALK
BETTER TRAFFIC COMMITTEE

Not so innocent as one might think is this candidate for "public enemy" of the highway dishonors.

By inconsiderately edging his car across the safety lines of cross-walks at street corners, the Cross-Walk Creeper forces pedestrians into danger zones. Many serious accidents result.

Good drivers are considerate of others—they obey the law by stopping back of the cross-walk.

SURVEY SHOWS 30 CRIPPLED CHILDREN IN COUNTY

The 1938 census of crippled children taken recently in DeKalb County shows an increase of 25 per cent over known cases established in county by the 1936 census taken through the schools. Most of this increase is explained by the fact that the new enumeration includes children under school age and between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one years, two groups excluded from the former census.

The county census was sponsored by the P. T. A. of the county, with Mrs. Everett Mavis, Auburn, supervising the work of actual case-finding. Thirty crippled children were discovered this year as opposed to 24 known cases established by the previous count. It is estimated that in the entire state the known cases of crippling may go from 3,000 children reported in 1936 to about 7,000 discovered in the new census.

On the basis of returns from the present enumeration, county welfare directors are already placing eligible crippled children for orthopedic services provided form federal funds administered by the Division of Services for Crippled Children of the State Department of Public Welfare. Dr. Oliver W. Greer, head of the state division, has announced a series of twenty-six consultation clinics to be held this year in various sections of the state. These clinics are to be conducted by state-approved medical specialists with the assistance of orthopedic nurses from the state welfare department.

Children whose parents are unable to provide the recommended treatment will be taken care of at public expense, with partial reimbursement made from Federal funds for this purpose.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

THE FIRST IRON SHIP

No sea duel in American history is as famous as the historic fight between the Monitor and Merrimac in our own Civil War. Although neither ship scored a decisive victory, it was the first contest between ironclads, and as such was destined to change the whole theory of naval construction.

Long before the warring vessels fought their memorable battle in Hampton Roads, another ironclad was patrolling the Great Lakes, watching out for the smuggling of contraband, engaged in survey work, and insuring the observance of existing laws between the American and British governments.

Equipped with both paddle wheels and sails, the stout iron sides of the U. S. S. Michigan were fabricated at Pittsburgh and then hauled overland to Erie for erection, while many persons wondered how anyone could expect an iron ship to float. The Michigan was not only the first iron ship of the Navy, but also the first iron vessel of any kind on the Great Lakes.

This pioneer craft took to the waves in 1844, eighteen years before the sea duel at Norfolk. She was destined to patrol the lakes for sixty years, while two or more generations of U. S. Marines formed her armed guard and occasionally lent a hand to spread or reef her sails, for steam power was still in the experimental stage.

Later this odd vessel was renamed the Wolverine and was used as a training ship. It is not recorded that she ever fired a hostile shot, and her presence on the lakes served to further cement our cordial relations with Canada existing for more than a century. Duty aboard the ship was such a welcome assignment that one man served with the Marine Detachment for fifteen years.

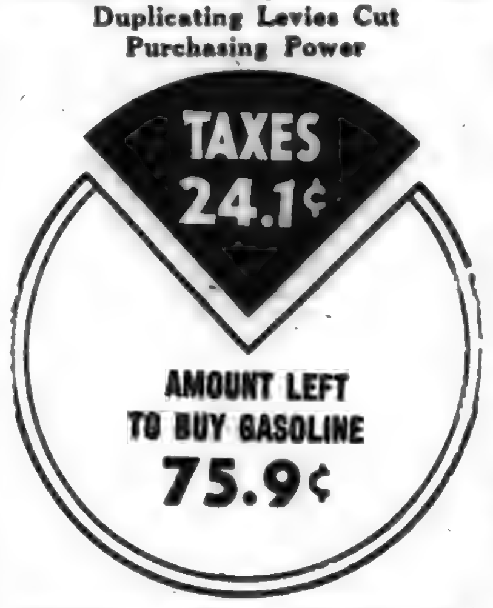
Consumer's Dollar Deflated by Taxes

Nationwide Survey Shows That Duplicating Levies Cut Purchasing Power



Darkened portion, showing 24.1 cents taxes paid by consumers, reveals how gasoline dollar is deflated in Indiana, with purchasing power reduced to 75.9 cents by 32 per cent sales tax.

Deflation, resulting in curtailment of consumer buying-power, already is being felt in Indiana through taxes which prevent purchasers from getting full value for their gasoline dollar, according to the Indiana Petroleum Industries Committee.

The Committee has reported to its members that a nationwide survey of retail gasoline prices and taxes, made by the American Association of State Highway Officials, shows that a substantial proportion of every dollar spent for gasoline at service stations goes for duplicating federal and state taxes. The effect, the Committee said, is to deflate the gasoline dollar by reducing its purchasing power.

"You will be as surprised as your customers to learn that dollar deflation through taxation largely has offset the benefits your customers would have derived from gasoline price economies achieved by you and your industry," the Committee's report said. "Your customers now pay one of the heaviest retail sales taxes imposed upon any generally-used commodity, and the purchasing power of their gasoline dollar thereby is greatly reduced."

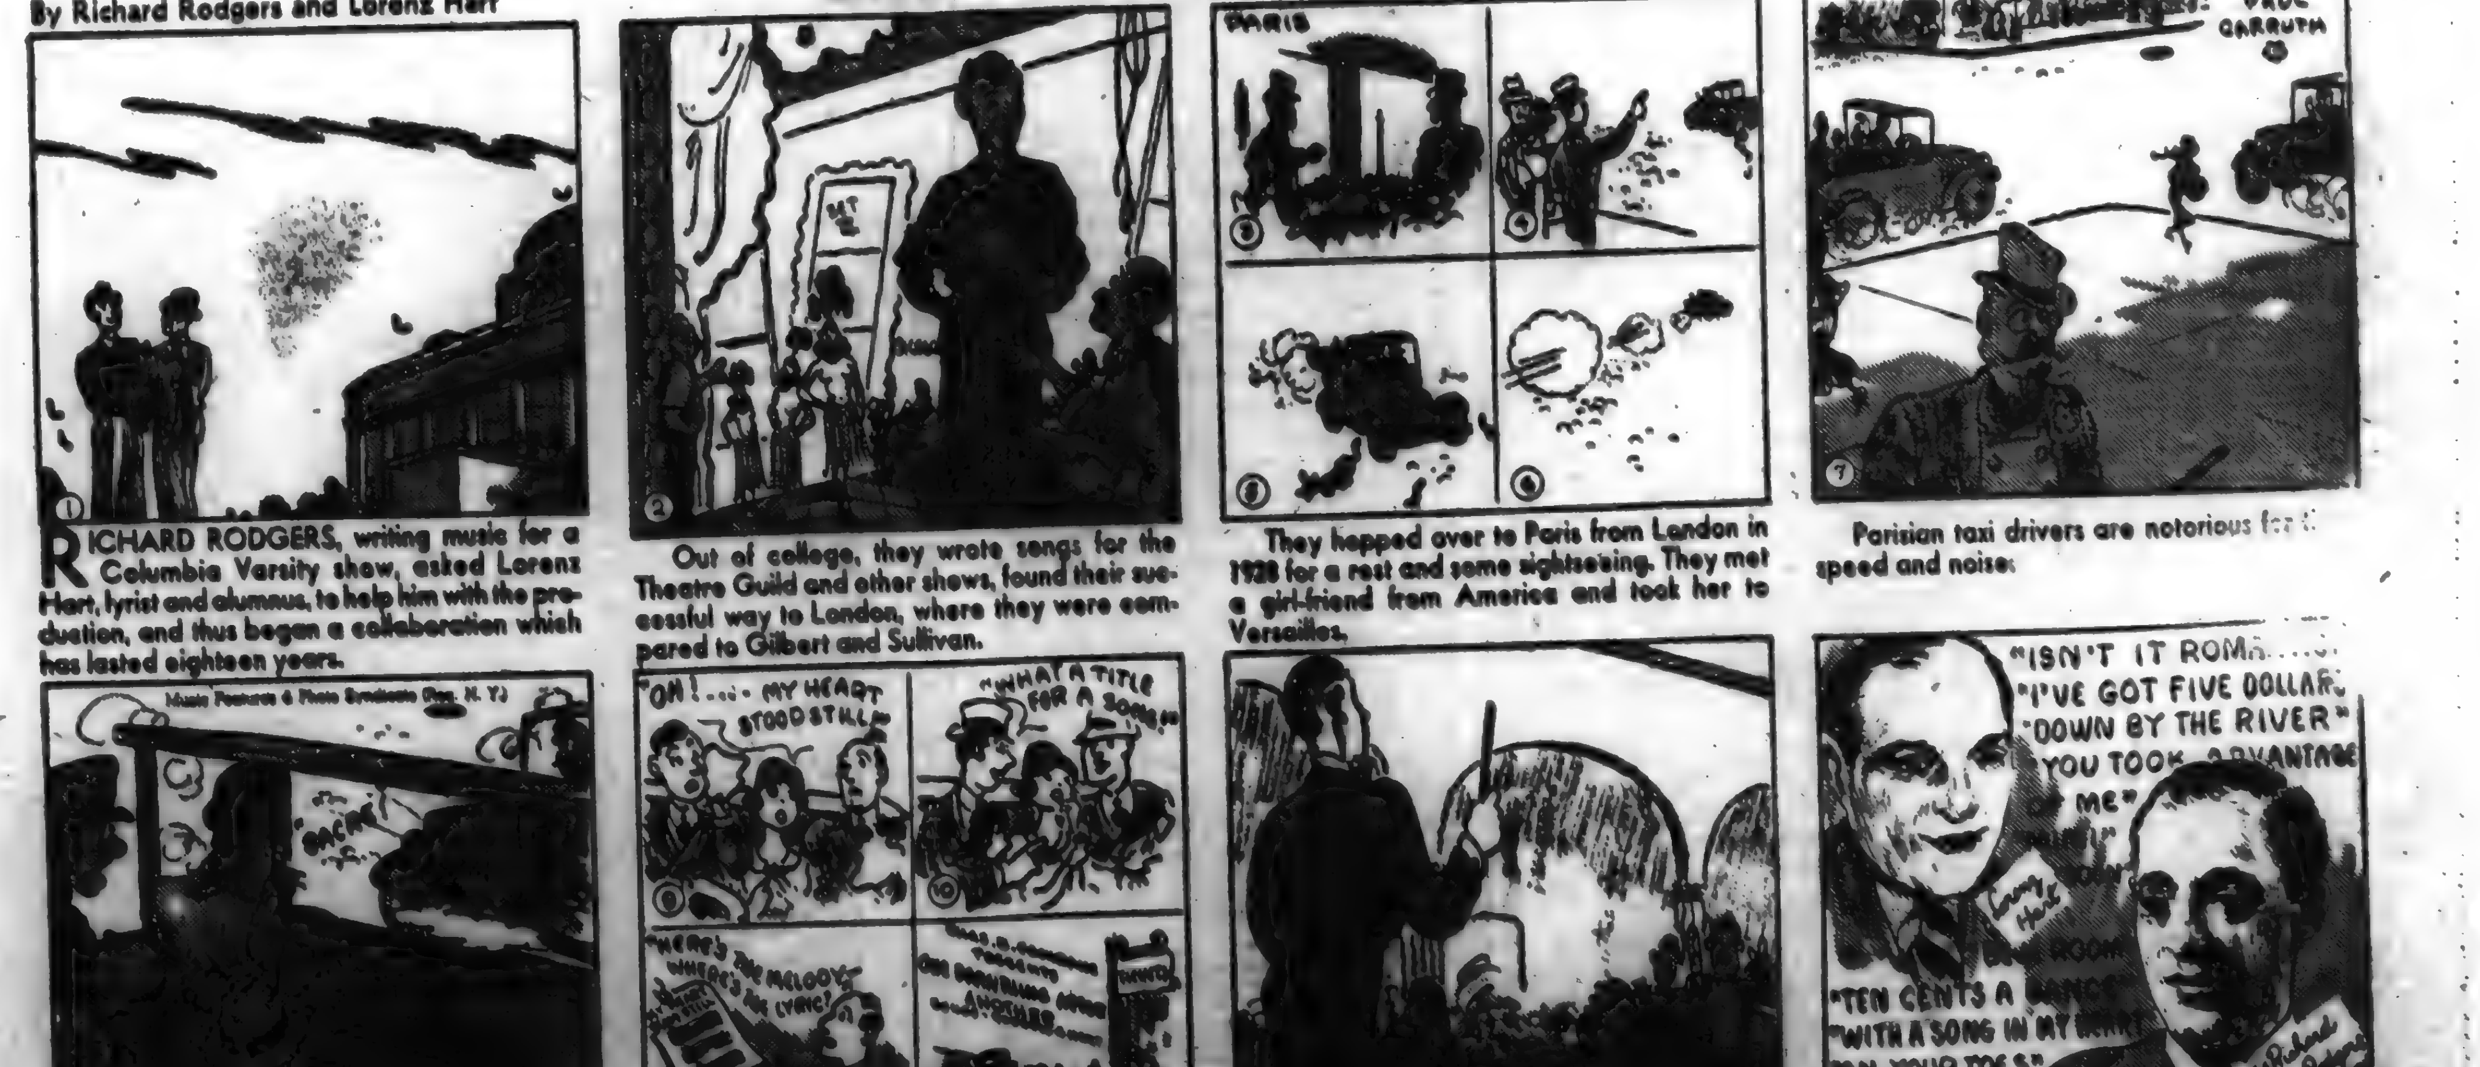
BIRTH OF A SONG

"MY HEART STOOD STILL"
By Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



RICHARD RODGERS, writing music for a Columbia Varsity show, asked Lorenz Hart, lyrist and alumnus, to help him with the production, and thus began a collaboration which has lasted eighteen years.

Out of college, they wrote songs for the Theatre Guild and other shows, found their successful way to London, where they were compared to Gilbert and Sullivan.

They hopped over to Paris from London in 1928 for a rest and some sightseeing. They met a girl-friend from America and took her to Versailles.

Parisian taxi drivers are notorious for their speed and noise.

Accidents, however, are rare; but near-accidents provoke Gallic profanity.

Out of this near-accident came the title of a song that made the young composers famous. It became the favorite of Edward, Prince of Wales.

The music-loving heir to the throne was so fond of the song that he taught it to other orchestras and created a vogue for the tune.

Rodgers and Hart have written over a thousand songs for stage and film, and are high-ranking members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

CONSOLIDATION AGAIN TO BE PRESENTED

Cosgrove Guesses This Time About 5,000 Offices to be Abolished

The old consolidation headache has come to the front again. This time, William P. Cosgrove, Chief Examiner of the State Board of Accounts is the mouthpiece. It may be a trial balloon to see what the public sentiment is or it may be based upon the honest conviction of Mr. Cosgrove. No doubt, Mr. Cosgrove has innocently become the victim of propaganda put forth by the enemies of good government.

Mr. Cosgrove's superior, Governor Townsend, was not quoted as approving the plan, nevertheless it is hard to believe Cosgrove has the temerity to make such an announcement without at least consulting someone.

The scheme is a wild-eyed one, much along the same lines as that proposed in the old report of the Commission on Governmental Economy, published during the regime of Governor P. McNutt. That report was famous because Dr. R. Clyde White was the author of most of the text and its principal theme was centralization. Others, including professional welfare workers have also sought to encourage consolidation, especially into county units for poor relief, so that they would have charge, domiate the expenditures and set up their racket for employment of many of their darlings fresh from school. The welfare racket is nation-wide and everywhere the welfare workers dominate the system, bankruptcy is the result.

The scheme of Mr. Cosgrove is that township lines and about 5,000 offices be wiped out, effective January 1, 1943. Township lines would only be maintianed until present debts were paid.

County offices, except the 7 provided for by the Constitution, Auditor, Treasurer, Clerk, Recorder, Sheriff, Coroner and Surveyor, would be abolished, and those 7 organized into a County Board. That Board would appoint officers to have charge of schools, highways, relief assessments and other functions. County Commissioners and County Assessors would be abolished. The County Council, one of the major points of criticism would be retained. All Township trustees, advisory board members and 368 other elective offices, a total of about 5,000, would be abolished. He does not say that those offices will not be filled or their work abandoned.

Mr. Cosgrove, in press reports, mentioned that he had spent 2 years making a survey of the matter. We have little information about whom he consulted and he does not say he conversed with any local officals on the subject.

Overlook Objections

Proponents of the consolidation scheme have overlooked many of the objections to such plans.

Cosgrove said two townships have a taxable valuation of less than $100,000 upon which to raise taxes for relief, schools and what not. It is also said that a few other Townships have little more in valuation and that they are hardly able to pay the expense of their Township government. Certainly, a universal County unit plan will not solve the problem. In order to be fair with ourselves, if we want to abolish those Townships which are unable to finance their own government properly, why not devote our time, talent and energy to that problem. Work out some equitable plan to consolidate those unnecessary Towships, not all.

As to County Commissioners, no group of public officers has been more maligned and imposed upon than they have. They are expected to be business men, give their time and attention to their work, yet the public expects to pay them little if anything. Their salaries have been reduced from time to time so that it is a wonder any of them are honest, considering the large sums of money and great amount of work they must handle.

To scramble the whole affair of County and Township government will not solve anything. It has not done so in other localities. The work remains to be done and must be done. Even though offices are aboilshed, substitute employees must be employed to do the work and that costs money.

The best example of the value of home rule, is the Township system for poor relief. Indiana Township Trustees have an enviable record and they have made good. Relief is being administered without State or Federal aid. Our Townships are solvent. In other states, where they have the County unit system, taxes are high and many of those localities are asserting they are bankrupt. Cleveland, Chicago, and many other large cities have a large unit for relief purposes dominated by welfare workers yet those cities go for days without maintaining relief and bills are unpaid.

Whenever such plans and schemes are conceived in the dark, we should be fearful of the purpose. When consolidation is proposed without hearing both sides, you may rest assured that something is wrong.

We are reminded of the well chosen words of Justice Cardoza of the United States Supreme Court who said, "When the task that is set before us is that of cleaning house, it is prudent as well as usual o take counsel of the dwellers."

If, as Mr. Cosgrove says, there are too many units administering government, we wonder if he has cosidered the hudreds of officials serving on State Commissions and Boards. We also wonder if he has ever considered th huge increase in the cost of State Government and its present balance of millions. We also wonder if he has considered the importance of having a good, thorough analysis of the functions of our State government to see what we are getting from it for our taxes, direct and indirect. Millions are poured into our State coffers with the understanding that our direct property taxes would be decreased. Yet, our bill remains the same.

Luckily, the announcement was made before election time. Each and every taxpayer should see that our candidates for the Legislature are interviewed to learn their views. If they are not for home rule, they should be defeated irrespective of party affiliations.

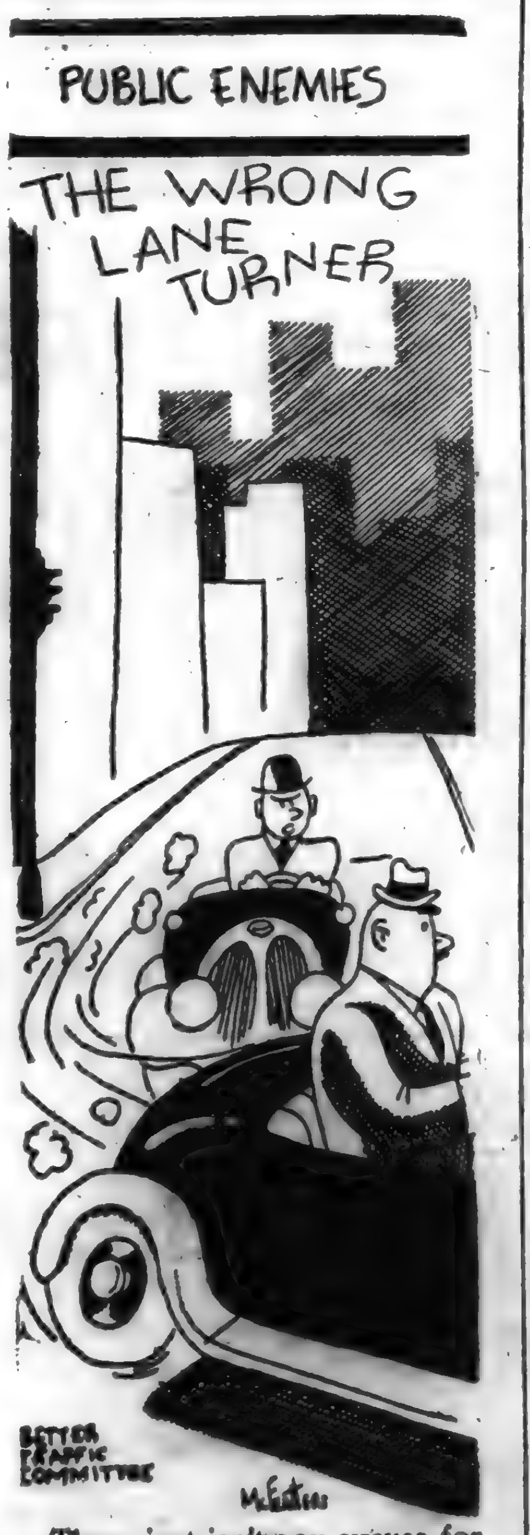
Proponents of the County unit system should prove that their system is better than the home rule idea. The County unit system is on trial, not the home rule system.

Those persons who think Indiana has too many units of government are mistaken. One State has as high as 17,336 units while the lowest has only 98. The average number of units for all States is 3,653 while Indiana has only 1,830 units of government, not a bad record indeed.

Centralized government is a graft breeder. Centralization gives power to the small politician in a manner that local officials would not dare use. Under centralization, if you want to complain about any functions of government, you must hunt and look, far and wide. Under home rule, you can easily find the official in charge and look the spender of your money in the eye.

Plans for economy and efficiency look well on paper and sound fine. Theory always is more convincing than actual practice. The farther we get away from the principle of home rule, the greater the admission of inability to govern ourselves.

The suggestion of Mr. Cosgrove should be defeated so thoroughly that he and his supporters will forget about centralization and devote their time and attention to good government, including at the same time, our State as well.



There just isn't any excuse for the Wrong Lane Turner!

He's the motorist who doesn't make up his mind that he's going to turn until after he's reached the intersection—and then suddenly attempts to cross in front of other moving cars. No warning signal—no brains!

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD SUNDAY AT ST. JOE

The citizens and organizations of the St. Joe Valley, including the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Churches, School Band, American Legion and Auxiliary, K. of P. and I. O. O. F. Lodges, joined in paying tribute to the memory of those who offered their lives in the service of their country, and to the memory of relatives and friends who have passed on.

The Legion Post visited the cemeteries at Spencerville and Newville with its Color Guard and Firing Squad and gave a short Memorial Service at each place, arriving at Coburn's Corners in time to attend services at that place.

After the exercises at the church which included two songs by the Legion Chorus, a reading by Mrs. Lehr Wilder, an inspiring talk by Rev. Joe Scholes, and reading the Roster of the twelve veterans resting in the Alton Cemetery, including two from the War of 1812, nine from the Civil War and one from the World War, the services were concluded by going to the cemetery where a brief Memorial service was held.

The services in St. Joe were well attended despite the inclement weather. A hard rain falling just bfore the line of march formed down town to go to the Community Gymnasium. The weather clearing again in time for the parade, led by the National and Post Colors and Firing Squad which were followed by the High School Band, who proudly displayed the School Colors in their new uniforms, the ensemble consisting of jaunty caps of the "overseas" type, capes with the front thrown back over the shoulders showing the school colors in contrast and white slacks or trousers.

The program at the gymnasium included numbers by the band, a piano trio "The Stars and Stripes Forever" by Frances Reidenbach, Leila and Jean Hurni, a reading "In Flanders Fields" by James Kees, a reading "Your Flag and My Flag" by Mrs. Lehr Wilder, two numbers by the Legion Chorus. The address, given by Rev. Fronsoe, pastor of the Christian Church, was ably delivered and well received by the audience.

The Roster of the 41 veterans resting in the Riverside, Jenkins, Morr's and Bear Creek Cemeteries, was read by Ralph Sechler.

As the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts reached the entrance of the Cemetery on the line of march, they stepped out of the parade and were given sprays of evergreen with which they decorated the graves of the thirty veterans in Riverside Cemetery, and the ten white crosses which were erected to the west of the Monument Circle and on which were inscribed the names and the war in which each veteran fought. Five crosses for the Jenkins Cemetery, three for Bear Creek and two for Morr's Cemetery.

Several local members of Post 283 and its Auxiliary attended the Memorial Services held at Harlan Monday afternoon.

The parade formed at the hall and marched to the old cemetery where the soldiers graves were decorated by the children, then three volleys were fired in salute to the dead, after which the bugler blew taps. The procession then re-formed and marched to the new cemetery where services were held before a replica of the unknown soldiers grave.

One veteran of the Civil War, Mr. Commodore Perry, of Hicksville, aged 92 years, marched at the head of the procession. Later he sang two songs in the exercises at the hall.

The Harlan High School Band and a fife and drum corps really put life and color in the parade.

Returning to the hall the colors were posted on the rostrum.

After selections by the band, two songs were presented by the Legion Chorus and a piano trio by members of the band.

A very interesting talk was given by Rev. Smith, of Fort Wayne.

The Girls Chorus of the Harlan High School gave the selection "Recessional" by Kipling.

The audience stood in silence in memory of the departed comrades. Taps sounded and the Colors retired before dismissal.

A great many out-of-town visitors were here on Sunday for the Memorial Services including: W. G. Woodcox, wife and son of Garrett; Joe Woodcox, wife and son, of near Cedar Chapel; Byron Woodcox and family, of Leo; Homer Woodcox and wife, of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Abel, of Montpelier, O.; Glen Hart, of Goshen; Mr. and Mrs. Nick Funk, of Butler; Floyd Reasoner and family, of Ft. WEST OF THE DIVIDE is a new print, fresh from the laboratory less than a month ago. We find there is a demand for a western conditional upon the western being absolutely clean and not liable to cause criticism. In this picture there is no drinking and no saloons. That is one objection to a great many of these. There is not a profane word used from beginning to end. Of course there is plenty of cowboy riding, plenty of fighting but none of that offends if a western is expected. There is the usual triumph of right over villainry. If you want a western, we suggest that you see WEST OF THE DIVIDE at St. Joe next Saturday nite.

In days of old every school child in the nation had a slate. Now only the politicians use them.

It isn't the people who want something for nothing that's causing all the trouble, it's the ones that have succeeded in getting it.

The trouble with most men who insist on fair play is that they also want to be the umpire.

Everything works smoothly in the average family until the husband decides to stay home at the same time his wife decides to go out.

European nations would get along better if they would try as hard to balance their budgets as they try to balance chips on their shoulders.

When a woman begins to pick ravelings off of her husband's coat it's a sure sign she wants some money and is afraid to ask for it.

What has become of the old-fashioned politician who spent the public's money as reluctantly as he did his own?

Uncle Sam is finding it a tough job to induce people to own their own homes. All most of them want is a new automobile.

The average man may take pride in a new pair of shoes but he still gets most enjoyment out of an old pair of house slippers.

Whatever became of the old-fashioned war that was waged without the help of a flock of press agents?

When you hear a man bragging that he never changes his mind you don't have to wonder what kind of a mind he has.

Laws have been passed to prevent people from making fools of themselves, but not all of them are enforced.

Isn't it disgusting how your neighbors brag about themselves when they could just as easily be bragging about you?

IT'S HERE NOW

If you are wondering when fly season starts, the answer is—it's here now. It is an almost hopeless job to keep the house free of these pests if the doors and windows are not screened before they get in and settle in hidden nooks and corners. A few flies in any home in St. Joe now will multiply to many millions before the summer season is over if they are not eradicated. Swatting them and screening against them is one of the surest ways to prevent disease in the neighborhood. Being born and reared in filth, it is easy to see why this is one of the dirtiest of all insect pests. Their bodies and feet are fitted to carry filth and germs, the scientists having declared that as high as 6,000,000 germs having been found in the body of a single fly. You can profit by early screening. Let no home in St. Joe or community go unprotected during the summer season. Clean up every rubbish pile, every spot where flies can breed. And don't put off for another day the importance of screening the windows and doors.

CASH OR WHAT HAVE YOU.

Nobody gets very far in the way of thrift these days, or lays up a very pretentious account until he learns that it costs just as much to have anything charged as it does to pay cash for it. It may hurt to take the money out of your pocket and buy a suit of clothes or a hat, having it charged only relieves the "pain" temporarily, and the chances are that next month will find it no easier for you to pay than it is right now. The man who finds it difficult to make both ends meet should try the "cash-and-carry" system awhile and see if that makes it easier to stick to his budget. Laying down the cash may not seem any more sensible than having it charged, but just try paying cash and see if there is any difference. There's two sides to the question, and in your case the same thing may not work that works for the other fellow. Pay cash for a month and see for yourself.

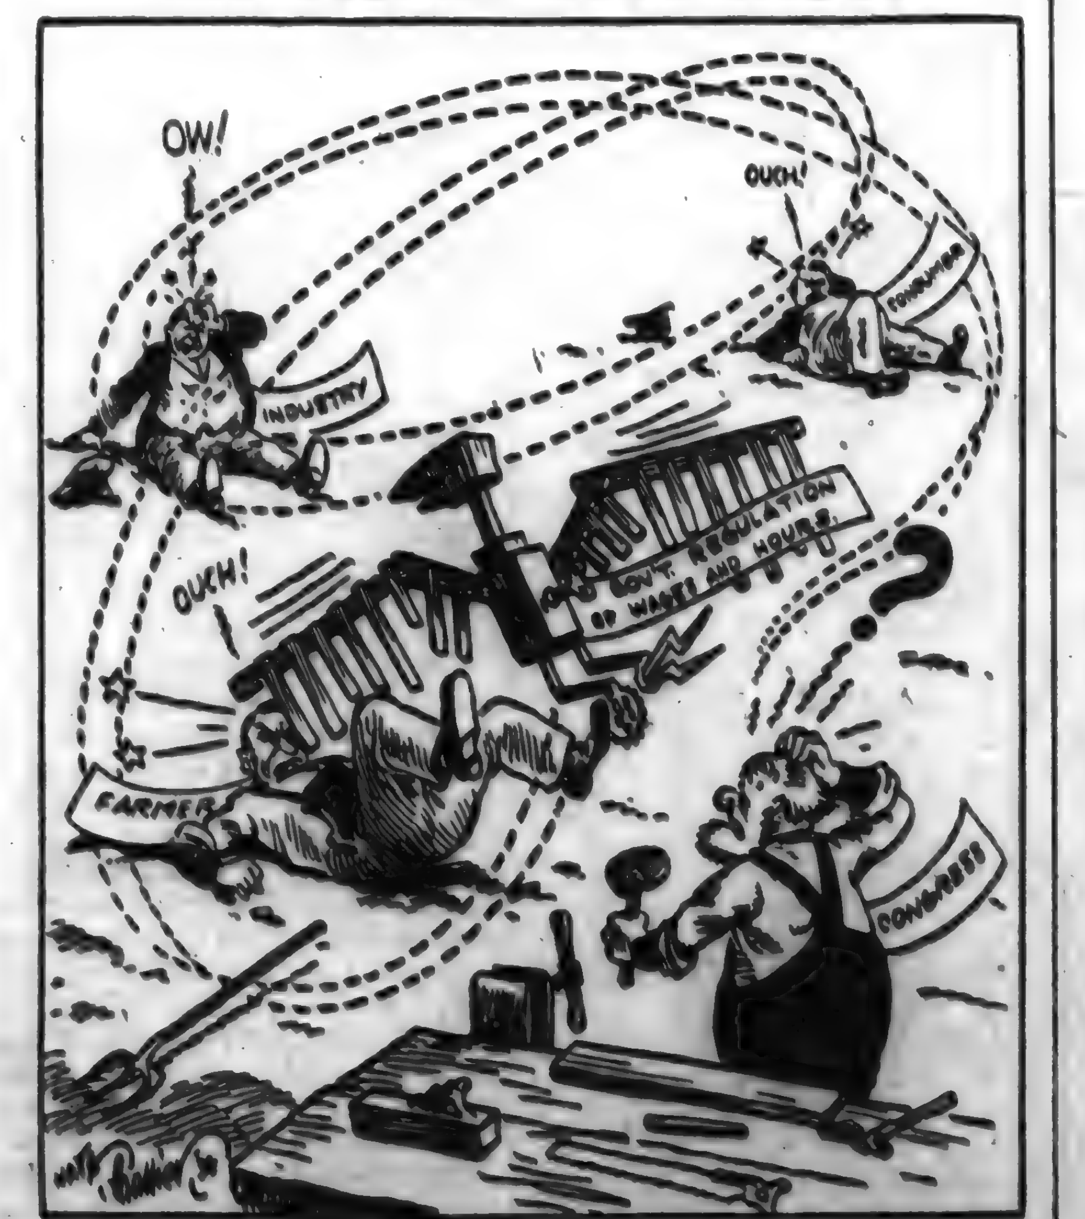
THE REBUILT BLUE EAGLE



The SNAPSHOT GUILD
CHOOSING A CAMERA

Fast vacation-time action calls for a speedy shutter. Nobody wants to miss shots like this, or get pictures that are blurred and fuzzy because of movement.

IF YOU are planning to get a new camera for your vacation this year, let me suggest that you do not delay until the last moment, and then have to pick your instrument in a great rush.

A camera should be chosen with care and attention to every detail—picture size, lens, shutter, view finder, ease of opening and handling, finish and durability. Moreover, it should be obtained early enough for you to become thoroughly familiar with its workings, because on a vacation you will often want to use it in a hurry.

Compare and handle several cameras before you choose. Study lenses—maybe you will want an f.6.3, to make sure of well-timed snapshots on dull days, or an f.4.5, twice as fast, for speedy action shots in bad light—as well as better indoor snapshots. It is well to bear in mind, too, that a good fast anastigmat lens gives sharper pictures — which means better enlargements if your vacation yields top-notch scenics that you want to have framed.

Make sure that the shutter of the new camera has enough speed to take care of all your probable needs. It is bad when you have a chance for some good action snaps on the tennis court or beach and your camera shutter is too slow to get them. Remember, too, that if your hand is at all unsteady, a speedy shutter is a great help in getting sharp pictures.

You have a wide choice of camera styles and prices. You can get superspeed miniatures with f.2 and f.2.8 lenses; others with f.3.5 lenses; cameras taking larger pictures that have f.3.5, f.4.5, and f.6.3 lens. Naturally, the better the camera is—the more speed and versatility it has—the more it costs, but there is no need to spend in excess of your needs. Thousands of good pictures are made every day with moderately priced cameras, and they will serve for most snapshot purposes.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

The family doctor says wise parents early make it a rule to kiss the baby only on the back of the neck, but this is hard to enforce with relatives and friends. Babies have not the resistance and immunity to infection that the older children and adults have acquired with the years. Measles, scarlet fever, modified forms of these diseases, mumps, tuberculosis and the common cold, all highly communicable, are often transmitted to the infant through kisses.

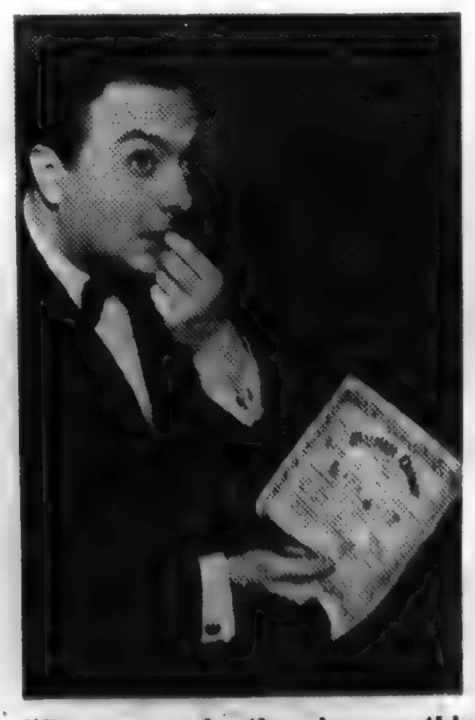
June Brides Are Celebrated, But How About the Groom?

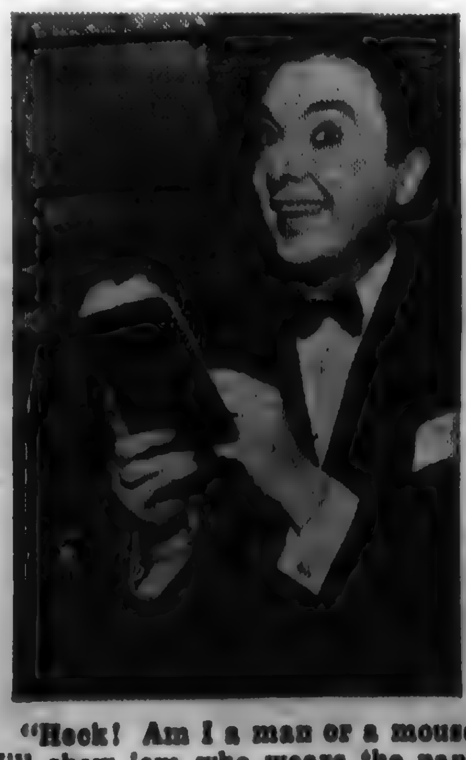
June is the month of brides, and June brides are famous the country over. But nobody ever thinks of the June groom, who stays dutifully in the background until he's called to the altar. What do our June grooms think about as the fatal hour approaches? Do they actually chew their fingernails and consider the advisability of running away? Most of them probably do. Jack Haley of the movies gives his opinion in the following pictures.

"Gosh, tomorrow I take the big step. Gee, everybody's been giving me advice. Can you imagine! Some guys have the nerve to tell me that putting this ring on Mabel's finger means putting a ring around my neck! You know, a ball and chain! They're jealous, that's all!"



"Saaay, maybe there's something to that! No more staying out all night . . . no more poker sessions with the gang . . . no more . . . no more . . . no . . . no . . . NO!!"

"I CAN'T DO IT!! I CAN'T DO IT, I TELL YOU!! I'LL RUN AWAY TO CHINA OR SUM'PIN!! WHERE'S THAT TIMETABLE??"



"Heck! Am I a man or a mouse! I'll show 'em who wears the pants in this family . . . boy oh boy . . . I'll write my own set of rules. No. 1. Who's the head of this family? Answer: Me! . . . No. 2. And who pays the bills? Answer: Me!" . . . and so far into the night.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Receipts for this week's auction were slightly lower than a week ago but sixty head more than a year ago.

Slaughter hogs seemed to be popular with the buyers this week; making a top of $8.65. This was paid for handy weight fat hogs averaging 180. Each weight class sold from ten to twenty cents lower. Feeding shoats were scarce, many buyers from outside this county going home disappointed. One sow and litter brought $65.00. Fat sows $6.75 to $6.90.

Veals showed more quality than we have had for many weeks. The top was $9.65 paid by George Barber for a Detroit firm. Light throw outs and deacon calves continue to sell high.

Native lambs are beginnings to sell thru our market altho this is at least a month earlier than they started last year. Prices ranged from $8.25 to $8.50 this week on lambs weighing around 60 pounds but not showing much fat.

Cattle are surprisingly active, heifers from $6.00 to $7.20; baby beef $8.60; fat cows $6.00 to $5.75; canners and low cutters $4.00 down to $3.00; bulls steady with last week mostly $5.50 to $6.50; milk cows $44.00 to $64.00.

Every other driver on the highway may be a fool, but that is no reason for making it unanimous. Never try to pass the car ahead until you are sure you have the room, the time, and the ability.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

DALY OF THE MARINES

Memories of military heroes vanish quickly, but it will be long before the U. S. Marines forget Dan Daly. He was no legendary hero or soldier of fortune, but a flesh-and-blood actor who played dramatic roles in three widely-separated theatres of war.

The unvarnished saga of Daly begins when a stout-hearted young marine kept his lonely vigil at an outpost in China in 1900. Over his head whistled the bullets fired by fanatical Chinese Boxers, whose hatred of the "foreign devils" has been spurred to fury by a resistance which balked all their efforts.

When details of a defensive plan went wrong, Private Daly held the outpost until help arrived. For his courage on this and other occasions he was awarded a Medal of Honor.

Fifteen years later Daly, now slightly gray at the temples, aided in the capture of a bandit fortress in the West Indies. Surrounded by ten imes their number his men dug in for the night. The next morning they swept forward and Haitian bandits were scattered in all directions. This brot Daly a rare distinction—a second Medal of Honor.

When war flared in France, Daly plunged into that affair and was twice wounded. Official citations told how he helped to extinguish a fire on an ammunition dump, attacked a machine gun nest and captured it by the use of hand grenades and automatic pistol, brought in wounded under fire, and was commended by General Pershing.

Sergeant Major Daly returned to civil life with a breastful of medals and a record of heroic achievements on many a far-flung battle front. Although his stout heart stopped beating in April, 1937, his name will live forever on the honor roll of the Marines.

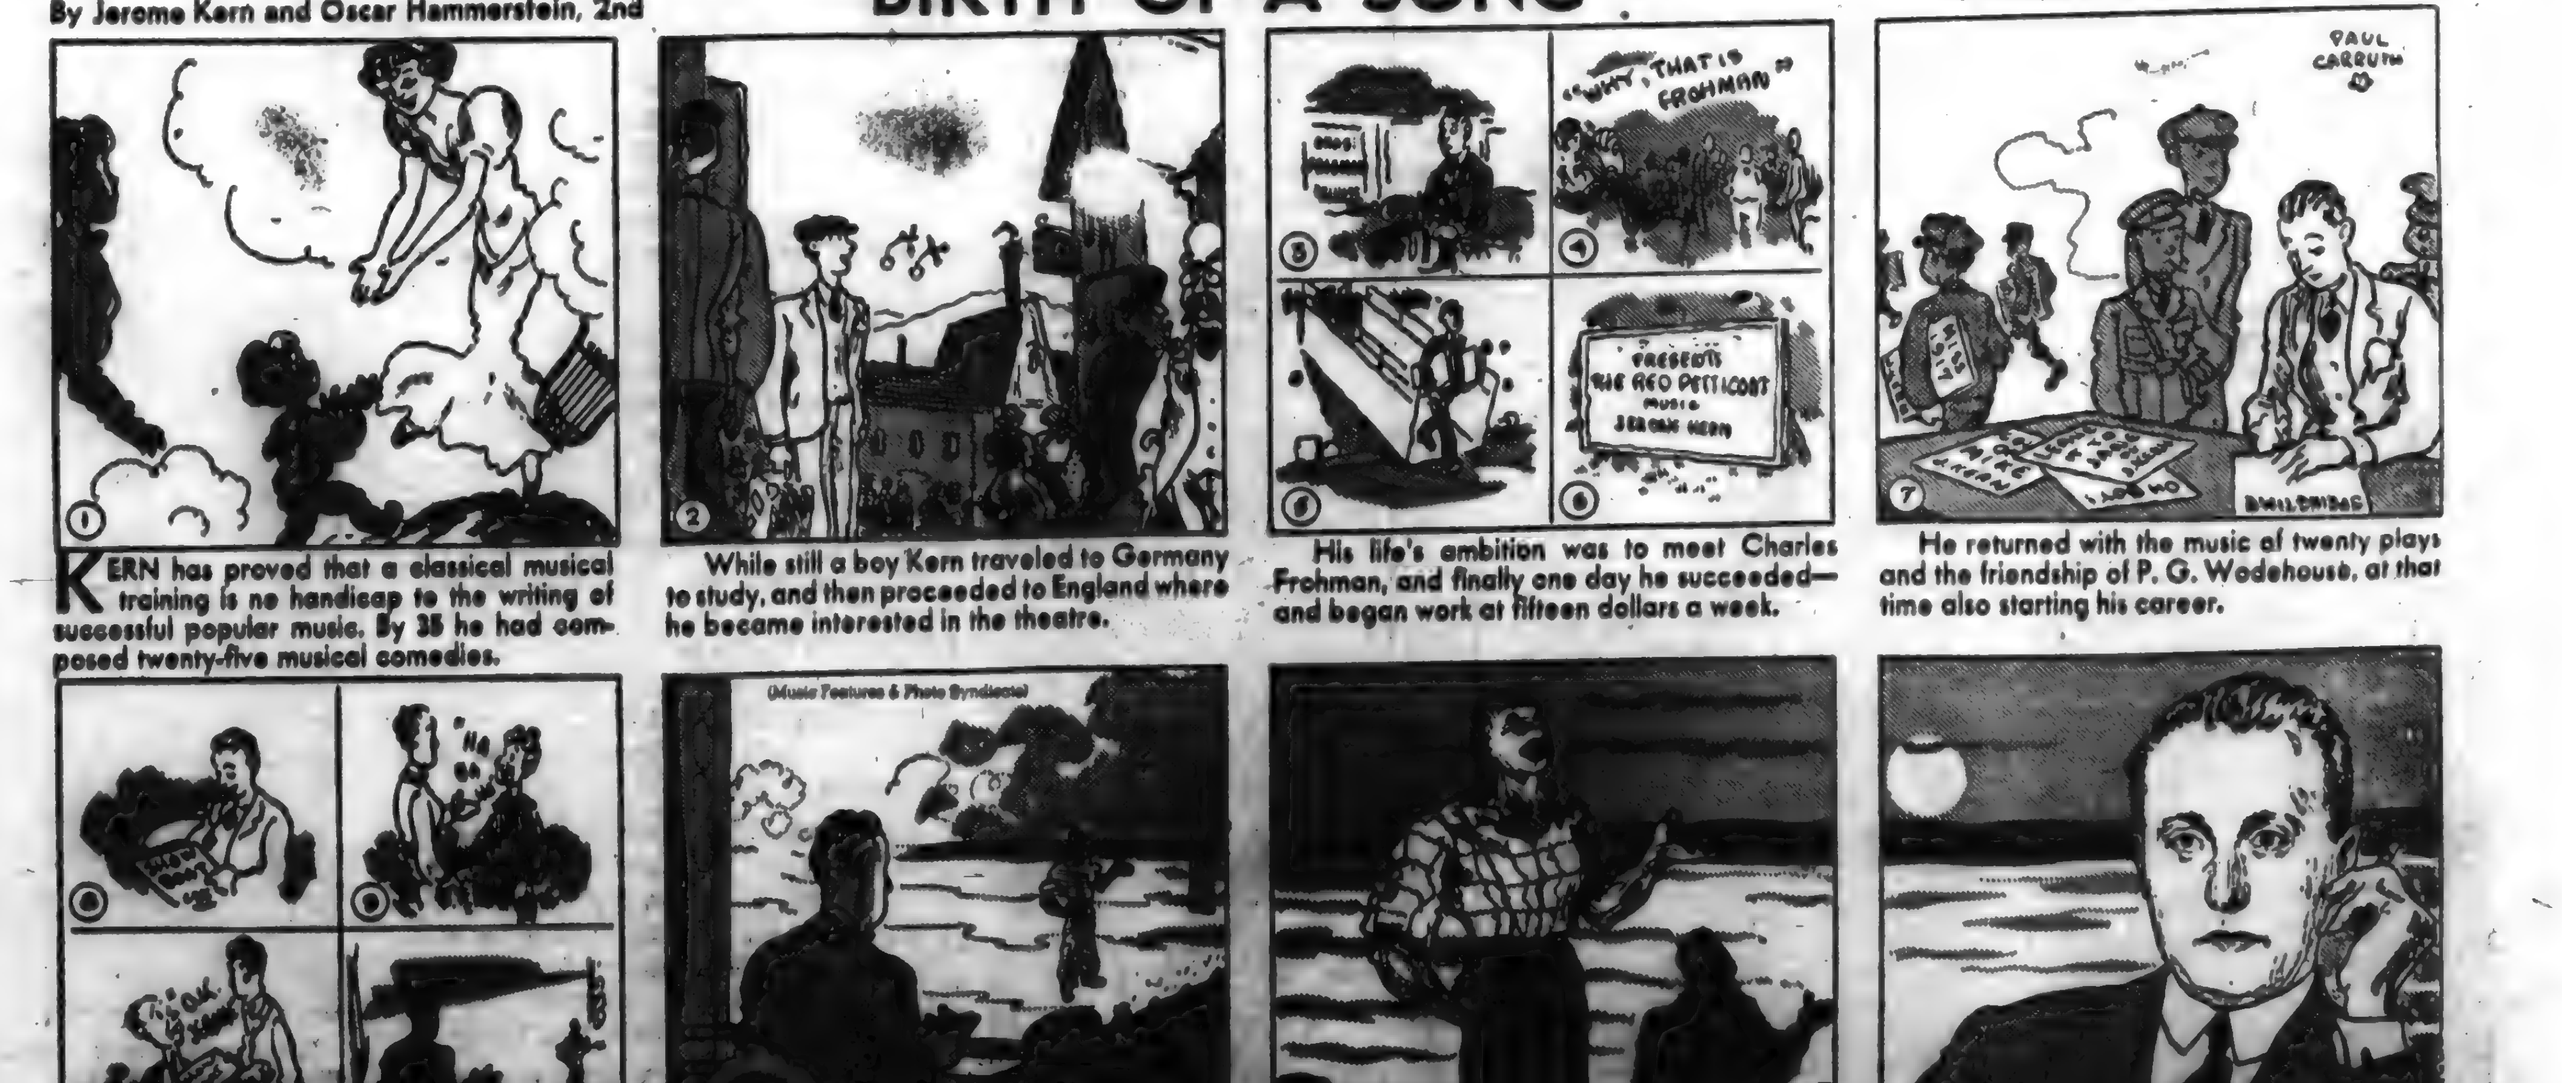
BIRTH OF A SONG

"OL MAN RIVER"
By Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



"WHY, THAT IS FROHMAN"
PRESENTS THE RED PETTICOAT MUSIC JEROME KERN
PAUL CARRUTH
HA HA
(Music Features & Photo Syndicate)

KERN has proved that a classical musical training is no handicap to the writing of successful popular music. By 35 he had composed twenty-five musical comedies.

While still a boy Kern traveled to Germany to study, and then proceeded to England where he became interested in the theatre.

His life's ambition was to meet Charles Frohman, and finally one day he succeeded—and began work at fifteen dollars a week.

He returned with the music of twenty plays and the friendship of P. G. Wodehouse, at that time also starting his career.

Kern had read Edna Ferber's novel "Show Boat," and saw it in his mind's eye as a musical show, but Miss Ferber laughed. Kern persisted, bought the stage rights and persuaded Ziegfeld to produce it.

Kern heard Paul Robeson sing and got the idea for "Ol' Man River" from the impression the great negro singer made on him. He put the song in the new show.

But it was Jules Bledsoe who was cast in "Show Boat" and first sang the song. Kern has long been a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

His melodic show boat has brought down the river of time such great songs as "They Didn't Believe Me," "Sally," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Music In the Air," and many others the public remembers.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, JUNE 9, 1938 NUMBER 23

RAY REASONER EXTENDS HIS DAIRY ROUTE

Ray Reasoner, who started the operation of a modern dairy in St. Joe just four months ago, made the purchase of the Frank Akins dairy route consisting of 22 customers, and he started Monday evening the delivery to this new group of customers.

In addition to buying the route, Mr. Reasoner purchased three of the Akins dairy cows, bringing his present herd up to ten cows.

Mr. Reasoner stated that the first 2 months of his business he sold 1,000 quarts of milk and now that he has been in business 4 months, his output has increased to 1,400 quarts.

The addition of this new route will show a nice increase in his business for the months to come, because he is entering the season for greater milk consumption.

In talking with Mr. Reasoner, he stated that he is now compelled to enlarge his stable quarters for his dairy cows.

It would be worth your time to make a visit to the City Side Dairy and see just what equipment is needed to handle the milk in a sanitary way. A very specially equipped dairy house has been constructed and equipped in accordance to the plan of the State Board of Health where you will find a modern cooling device, bottle washer, sterilizing tubs, hot and cold water, cream separator, and every thing that is required for sanitary handling of milk.

At the barn, the cows are placed in stanchions and before milking operations begin, their udders are completely washed and then the milking tubes are attached and the operation begins. Two cows are milked at one time by the Fords Electric Milker.

As fast as the pails are filled reasonably full, they are taken to the straining room, a newly constructed building at the entrance of the stables, there strained and then the milk is ready to be taken to the dairy house proper, where operations are begun to cool the milk quickly, before deterioration starts.

There is one thing very noticeable about the entire premises and that is cleanliness. All windows and doors screened perfectly to eliminate the fly, the most dreaded of all germ carrying insects.

People who have visited the new dairy have marveled at the amount of work required to proper handling of milk and they remark, "no wonder we milk City Side Dairy Milk so well."

Mr. and Mrs. Reasoner state that visitors are always welcome, and that they will always have the satisfaction of their customers uppermost in their mind, and whatever can be done to improve their service, they will be glad to do.

The News bespeaks for this new enterprise a very successful career.

That is just another of the famous "St. Joe Valley Products."

BAILEY—CARR NUPTUALS

Miss Fern Bailey, daugther of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bailey, of St. Joe, and Harvey Carr, of Paulding, Ohio, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at the First Presbyterian manse in Auburn, Rev. H. F. Craven performing the double ring ceremony. The couple was attended by Everett Mavis, Jr., and Miss Betty Mavis, Auburn, both cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Carr graduated from the Auburn high school with the class of 1933 and for several years was employed by the Messenger Corporation.

Mr. Carr is employed in a radio factory at Defiance, Ohio. The young couple will reside with the groom's mother, Mrs. Harvey Carr, Sr., at Paulding.

MRS. OPPOSSUM ELECTROCUTED.

Lester Coburn, while doing his morning chores one day this week, noticed an unusual brightness in the light which forms a part of a home made electric fence, which encloses a hog lot.

Upon investigating, to ascertain the reason for the unusual brightness, he found that an oppossum, in quest of her breakfast of young chicken, had, upon attempting to crawl through the wire fence, which surrounded the single wire, had committed involuntary suicide by electrocuting herself.

The opossum, a female, had in her pouch seven little opossums.

TO PRINT DAY EARLY

The News will go to press on Tuesday next week to allow us to attend the State Sunday School Convention in session at Winona Lake on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Please take notice and send in your material early.

FROM ABOUT ST. JOE

Letter paper and envelopes at News office.

Ralph Sechler and family were at Greenfield, Ind., Sunday guests of her father and other relatives.

Mrs. Ines Girardot and daugther, of Fort Wayne, were guests of her mother, Mrs. Leatha Kinsey, the first of the week.

The work on the Spencerville dam is progressing nicely. Tuesday the crew began to drive piling. Frank Meese is in charge of this phase of the construction.

The Kees peony garden has presented a most beautiful sight during the past week, and the peonies are still blooming. Many visitors admire the Kees gardens each year, and this year is no exception.

A new feature called "The pocketbook of knowledge" has been running in The News for the past month, and if you haven't read it, look for it now. We think it a very splendid educational feature and we believe you will like it. Just look for it in this issue.

Mrs. G. L. Haver is taking care of her 7 weeks old nephew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Bowser, of near Ft. Wayne. The parents were moving the last of the week and when here Friday, the youngster cried to stay with Uncle "Jerry."

Miss Thelma Bachellor, who has been ill for several years, is greatly improved in health. Monday she was brought to town by the Buckinghams, looked over their flower garden and called on a few friends and was then returned to her home. The trip did Miss Thelma lots of good, and we hope she may continue to improve.

Father of Fathers' Day

Here is Harry C. Meek of Chicago, credited as the originator of Fathers' Day, celebrated throughout the United States June 19. Meek started the movement in 1915. He has testimonial letters from Presidents Harding and Coolidge, thanking him for making possible a day honoring the fathers of America.

We have honored Mothers Day, paid our respects to the June brides, congratulated the June graduate, and now how about handing a big bouquet of spring flowers to the husband of the mother and the father of the June bride and graduate? A tribute to the fellow who pays the grocer, the baker, the landlord, the doctor and so on. Our hat is off to that fellow you go to for help—and get it. To the chap who did a bit of prancing when you were first making your entrance into his home and county, and who has been kept busy prancing ever since seeing to shoes and soap, food and fancies. At times he has been stern and strong, but again he has been sad and soft, this father of yours. It is the same young man who had to get his girl home at eleven—or else, who didn't have a car, and never heard a crooner, but managed a hayride now and then. He thought a "Big Apple" grew on a tree but knew the Virginia Reel wasn't a movie made in the South. Rather imagine he wore a high stiff collar with a narrow tie, a blue serge suit and patent leather shoes when he dressed up in his Sunday best. No doubt the serge was somewhat shiny as serge had a way of doing then. He took the grease spots out with benzine with the result of an awful smell surrounding him for hours. Saturday was still the week's big night when the band played and the stores stayed open and the girls walked arm in arm past the boys bunched together, laughing silly-like and self-consciously. That was before you came in the picture and changed his order of behavior. Sure, that's the same lad, only he is a bit older now. That was his day then. His day today sees a world in turmoil with national questions needing sane heads for the right answers. War is there, recession here, and unrest and discontent are all about us. But with it all impressed on our minds and in our thoughts, thank heaven we still have time for the fathers in our hearts!

THREE-MILLION-POUND HONEY CROP EXPECTED

A three-million-pound honey crop for Indiana this year is indicated by reports from beekeepers throughout the state, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, said today. Increased clover acreage and continued rainfall during the growing season of honey-producing plants, may result in a banner yield for Hoosier apiaries.

Reports of fifty-pounds of honey being made in two days at one apiary is an indication of the crop which is being stored by the bees. The only obstacle to a record-breaking honey crop this year is the loss of colonies during the winter, some by freezing and others left weakened to the point where few bees are left.

Inspection of apiaries for foul brood and other bee diseases is in progress over the state with only scattered cases found during the past few weeks. Under Indiana laws all diseased colonies must be destroyed to prevent spreading of the disease to other apiaries.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICE

SUNBATHING DENOUNCED AS FOOL FAD BY EXPERT

Sunbathing was denounced as a "fool fad," that sometimes leads to cancer by Dr. Frank L. Rector, field representative in the American Society for the Control of Cancer. "Long exposure to high temperature is recognized as one of the causes of cancer," Rector said. "This fool fad of going naked all summer is bound to lead to trouble."

Nation Marks Flag Day

June 14 is Flag Day, and here is a picturesque view of "Old Glory" as she flies from a United States revenue cutter, pushing its way up the bay at New York to meet an incoming liner. The Stars and Stripes are displayed locally each year on Flag Day.

INLAND TRANSPORTATION PICTURES BY B. & O.

Those who attended the program in the High School auditorium, on Wednesday eve. of last week, by G. W. Becker, given under the auspices of The St. Joe Conservation Club, by representatives of the Public Relations Department of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, were well repaid for the effort.

The moving pictures portraying the evolution of transportation, as developed in the United States should be a matter of pride to our citizens, as marking our material progress, in inland transportation.

From carriers on foot, couriers on horse back, the earliest methods by rail, embracing sail driven cars, cars driven by treadmill, cars drawn by horses, then the various types of steam locomotives, both vertical and horizontal boiler types, to the latest giants of steam, and finally, the smooth, sleek, beautifully stream-lined diesels, we could watch the inventive genius as it proceeded step by step.

Citizens there are in our midst today who can recall the old camel-back locomotive, with its cab on top of the boiler, also the old wood burner. Many an engineer in those days, his fireman as well, can testify that the sparks from this old wood-hog was death to shirts.

It is a far cry from the advent of the first engines, often withous cabs, the engineer exposed to inclement weather as were passengers in coaches, travelling in this new contraption, first over wooden rails which were overlaid with strap iron; to the modern giants of superior speed, hauling palace cars in which one can enjoy all the luxuries of a modern hotel.

But, all these luxurious conveniences do not mark the end of the evolution of transportation. The aeroplane, it may be, in time will prove a lively competitor; and, in the opinion of some, may possibly do to the railroads, what steam did to the canal and stage coach. In this fast moving age people are not as skeptical as they were in the past, and it is not likely that such a query as greeted George Stephenson, would be forthcoming, as that asked by a farmer, "What would happen if a cow should get on the track in front of your engine?" The Scotchman replied: "It would be too bad for the coo."

Warden Trevis made his first visit to the club. An announcement was made to the effect that a bait casting club would be orgaized his week. A fair sized audience was in attendance.

This program will be followed in time by another; the nature of which we cannot at this time annouce. The local club expect to keep up these entertainments to interest our people in the conservation movement.

LOCAL SCOUTS WIN HONORS AT CAMPOREE

Two Patrols, the Flying Eagles and the Bob Whites, of St. Joe, Troop 101, returned Sunday from the two day Camporee at Ft. Wayne. One hundred and seven patrols from seven counties attended. Thirty of these patrols won blue ribbons and we are proud to say that both of our patrols were in that select group.

Our troop was one of the six troops that had two patrols placed in the first division. There was a possibility of 1000 points to be scored on campcraft, cookcraft, and general scouting. To get in the blue ribbon class, you must earn at least 900 points. The boys worked hard to win this award and deserve the honor. The judges who inspected their camp, cooking, appearance church attendance, scout attendance, scout knowledge, etc., praised them highly and commented on their good behavior, cheerfulness and scoutcraft.

The Flying Eagles attending were Frank Curie, Jr., Patrol Leader, Paul Keller, Ass't. Patrol Leader, Marcel Pugsley, Burl Rude and Robert Ridgway. The members of the Bob White Patrol who attended were Franklyn Sechler, Patrol Leader, Jack Goodwin, Ass't Patrol Leader, Maurice Hurni, Dick Reed, Harold Yeiser, Judson Keeler and Ned Keller.

We think this speakes well for our Boy Scout Troop that is a little over a year old.

CONCORD BOY JUMPS FROM UPSTAIRS WINDOW

Deputy Sheriff C. M. Minnich won a 100-yard dash from Ralph Haynes of Concord, Tuesday afternoon, capturing him and placing him securely behind the bars of the county jail.

The deputy sheriff and Joseph Bilkovic of the state police went to the Haynes home to serve a warrant for assault and battery. Haynes was given permission to go upstairs after some medicine and he took advantage of the opportunity to try to escape by jumping out of a second story window and running across a field.

Mr. Minnich gave chase and made better speed than Haynes. The latter tried to hide by lying on the ground in some weeds, but the officer located him.

Haynes wasn't as successful Tuesday as he was a few years ago when he jumped from a window in a comfort station in Fort Wayne while being taken away to serve time. He was at large for several months, but finally was caught.

Haynes was arrested Tuesday on complaint of Floyd Freeze, also of Concord. Freeze objected because Haynes brought Mrs. Freeze to Auburn and Freeze says Haynes struck him. The altercation took place at Ninth and Main Streets.

Twenty-four years old, Haynes has been in trouble before for stealing chickens and indecent exposure.

COOKING KINKS

When peeling apples preparatory to making pies, drop each apple when peeled into a pan of cold water to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added. They will not then turn brown...... Beet skins may be removed quickly if beets are put in very hot water for a brief time. Drain off the hot water and quickly place beets in cold water.

A BEAUTY HINT

Nightly brushing is the best known treatment for hair which is dull, lifeless, too dry or too oily. The girl who uses her hair brush every day won't know anything about scalp and hair problems. Remember that water is plentiful, and soap is cheap.

The biggest handicap about the modern political campaign is that you can't broadcast an old-fashioned torch-light procession over the radio.

When Mussolini says the press of Italy is the freest to be found in all the world, he probably is thinking of all the free advertising they have been afraid not to give him.

More than one St. Joe citizen has earned a reputation for wisdom just by keeping quiet and saying nothing.

The biggest business before this generation is to nail down peace before we forget what the last war cost us.

If you really want to know all about your next-door neighbor's past life, just get him to run for office.

When you hear a St. Joe boy arguing that love is greater than law, look out. He's getting ready to bear his neck to the axe.

Maybe the reason the average young man wants to work in a bank is because he knows there's money in it.

What the country really needs most is an auto that you can fold up and lean against the curb when you get down town.

The old-fashioned girl who used to be delighted with a cedar chest for a wedding present now has a granddaughter who won't be satisfied with anything less than a sports model.

Few people want credit for what they do. The trouble is most of them want credit for what they get.

The trouble with a great many St. Joe husbands is they always want a lot of praise from their wife that they don't deserve.

Not every St. Joe young man can leave footprints on the sands of time now, but most of them can leave tire tracks.

Now they've invented a typewriter that composes music. The next step will be to invent some way of getting people to listen to it.

We've noticed this about people who wear wrist watches. Every time they look at one they ask what time it is.

You don't have to tell the avearge school teacher around here anything about "whispering campaigns."

A CENSOR NEEDED

But a few years have elapsed, as all St. Joe citizens given to reading new books and new magazines recall, since Uncle Sam had to go through his mail bags and clear out tons of filthy reading matter that was being sent through the mails under the title of "confession magazines" and suggestive booklets and novels. He did a good job and put many of them out of business. Others, however, turned to express instead of mail facilities and are still being issued. Now it looks like the same thing will be necessary in the case of the all-picture magazines, new ones of which are springing up almost weekly. One got a little bold, and got by with it, and then another got a little bolder, still another more daring followed it until the limit now seems to have been reached. No one will be anything out of pocket except the publishers if they are wiped out, and most of them will escape loss since they always figure that in the first few issues—before the public becomes thoroughly disgusted. And one wonders in what form the next brand if filth will be marketed.

NO CELLARS HERE

Americans returning from abroad say that everywhere in London and in many sections of Paris, workmen are delving underground. But it is not in building subways, sewer and cable systems, such as people are accustomed to seeing when they visit our big cities. Over there they are spending millions of dollars in building huge underground shelter from bombing raids in case of war. Many centuries have passed into history since prehistoric man crawled out of his cave and sought the light of day. Now he is preparing to crawl back into it again. Our boasted civilization is driving us back into our holes for protection from others like ourselves. Thank heaven, we in America have so far escaped this blight of destruction. It has been our privilege to build a mighty nation oceans removed from Old World civilization and Oriental barbarism. In some parts of this country we may have to duck underground occasionally. But this is because of Nature's playfulness, and not because of man's inhumanity to man.

UNDER AN ALIAS

The national administration is changing names of things again. You know—"depression" becomes "recession"—and so on. For instance, the proposed "wage and hour" law is the NRA traveling under an alias.

Here is an example of that. There will be a board to decide whether certain industries should pay minimum wages and limit the number of working hours.

It is understood that the South wanted the provision concerning a board to decide which industries were to pay minimum wages. In other words, the South doesn't want its power to pull industries away from the North to be eliminated. It still wishes to be able to say: "We have cheap labor—and we will guarantee that you will have no labor trouble," when it seeks to pull northern industries down below the Mason and Dixon line.

So it is safe to say that some of the veils that existed in the NRA law will be repeated under the "W. and H." law. The North will have to battle discrimination, loss of industry to the South and the competition of peonage labor in the South. Well, that is the North's punishment. It is not so solidly Democratic as is the South and Mr. Roosevelt who, despite his New Deal, still feels that he can count on the bulk of the Democratic vote, is paying the north back.

In fact, F. D. R. is a famous "payer backer." He has devoted so much time to paying back people who haven't agreed with him that he has little time left for prosaic affairs of goverment.

TAXES! TAXES! TAXES!

The following letter was received by a business firm after they had sent a statement to a customer whose pent-up emotions and a yen for self expression (possibly a "little business man) exploded when the firm requested that he please forward a check in payment of a bill owed them.

"In reply to your request to send a check, I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it almost impossible. My shattered financial condition is due to federal law, state law, county laws, city laws, corporation laws, liquor laws, brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws and outlaws.

"Through these laws I am compelled to pay a business tax, amusement tax, head tax, school tax, gas tax, light tax, water tax, sales tax, liquor tax, carpet tax, income tax, food tax, furniture tax and excise tax. Even my brains are taxed.

"I a mrequired to get a business license, car license, truck license, liquor license, not to mention marriage license and dog license. For my own safety, I am required to carry life insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, burgler insurance, accident insurance, business insurance, earthquake insurance, tornado insurance, unemployment insurance, old age insurance and fire insurance.

"My business is so governed that it is no easy matter for me to find who owns it. I am inspected, expected, suspected, disrespected, rejected, ejected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commended and compelled, until I provide for every known need, desire or hope of the human race.

"Simply because I refuse to donate to something or other, I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up and held down, and robbed until I am almost ruined.

"I can tell you honestly that except for the miracle that happened, I could not enclose this check—the wolf that comes to many doors nowadays, just had pups in my kitchen. I sold them and here is the money."

Rely on the other fellow to slow down, or depend on the other driver to give you the right of way—he'll do it only four times out of ten according to a recent highway survey in Massachusetts.

Too many of us put too much faith in the ability and good intentions of the other driver. Cromwell once said: "Trust in the Lord, and keep your powder dry."

Do not depend on the other fellow. Slow down instead of expecting that the other driver will step on his brake. Yield the right of way when there is a question. Keep your car in such shape that you can meet all emergencies instantly.

It's smart to be careful.

WHAT IS MEANT BY DEPENDABLE PROTECTION

AN insurance policy that is backed by only a minimum of quick assets cannot give you 100% protection against financial loss. CAPITAL STOCK COMPANY FIRE INSURANCE is recognized as the most dependable form of insurance because it provides sound protection at a fixed known-in-advance cost, because its policies are backed not only by legal premium reserves but also by cash capital and surplus, because it operates through authorized citizens of your own community, Local Agents who are always available to render prompt personal service.

Four out of five people choose capital stock company fire insurance in preference to other types. You, too, want insurance that protects you against community-wide catastrophes. That is the kind you should have on your home, business, automobile and other property. That is the kind of dependable insurance we sell. Consult us on any insurance problem.

(Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the attitude of the publisher or editor of this newspaper. —Editor's Note.)

A number of things happened this week around Indianapolis and some of them were amusing—and some of them weren't.

Here, however, is one of the amusing ones: The word came out that a warrant—which is a check in ordinary language—will pass through the hands of the auditor of state shortly. It is for $6,000, and it is for the purpose of buying additional tape to stick "gadgets" back on windshields. So, when your "gadget" comes off, (and it will!) you'll know that you can get more adhesive tape to stick it back on the old car again.

Of course, if your not a Hoosier, you don't know what a "gadget" is. Well, a gadget is a transparent envelope of just the right size to hold the title card of your car. You're supposed to fasten it onto the windshield of your car—and it's supposed to stay there but it never does.

Now, the purpose of the "gadget" is supposed to be to enable a state policeman to identify you in case you park in one of those places that are not parking places any more since the state police took over the supervision of streets in your home town over over which state highways are routed.

Anyhow, that's supposed to be the purpose. Some folks don't agree with that. Some folks think that the "gadget" was designed to enable some folks to make some money. Other folks think it was designed to enable burglars to tell when you're not at home—or to give forgers a slant on your signature. Personally, the writer thinks it was designed to enable some folks to make a little money—and that the burglars and forgers were just lucky.

Another rather amusing thing that is going to happen also concerns a state warrant. This other warrant is for $600—and it is to pay for the whiskey that was confiscated in Southern Indiana drug stores and liquor stores during the flood.

We understand that nearly everybody who attended that last flood was snake-bitten or had a cold. Well, $600 worth of whiskey would cure a lot of colds— and we understand (unofficially, of course,) that a lot of snakes were seen down there during the flood. Of course, judging from the $600 libation, some of them may have been imaginery; that is, they may have been seen by people who had tried to cure colds with the whiskey.

One of the things that isn't so funny was the decision of the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature. That might be funny, too, if it weren't so tragic.

It is understood that the Governor plans to have the General Assembly appropriate $4,400,000 to erect a state office building and a number of small additions to state institutions. Another purpose for the session is to repeal the "gadget" law. And a third purpose was to abolish the "port of entry" system that was established under the beer and liquor law to enable some administration henchmen to make fortunes.

Well, before that Legislative session is over, the people of Indiana (not the "gadgets") will be needing the adhesive tape.

It certainly has taken Governor Townsend a long time to discover that the liquor law is a bad one. It was enacted in 1933. He has served four years as lieutenant governor and a year and a half as governor since it was enacted—and now, quite all of a sudden, he is calling a special session to get rid of it!

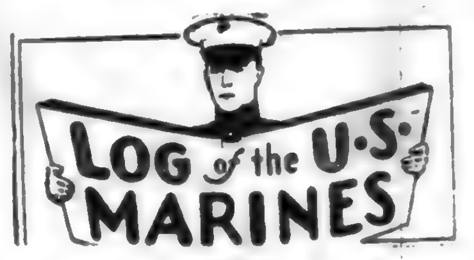
NEWVILLE BOY, 17, CONFESSES BURGLARY

Ellis Taylor, 17, of Newville, confessed Tuesday afternoon to committing two burglaries. He was placed in the county jail pending a hearing before Judge Endicott.

Curt Washler, of Newville, reported that his home was broken into Sunday night between 9 and 10 o'clock and a flashlight was stolen. Entrance was gained by breaking the panel of a door. Taylor was suspected and was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff C. M. Minnich and Joseph Bilkovic of the state police for questioning. He confessed not only to burglarizing the Washler home, but also that of the Rev. P. A. Hubbartt at Newville.

The latter offense was committed last February. The minister returned from a trip to Chicago to find that a latch has been broken in a door and the house entered. but nothing was missing. Mr. Hubbartt did not report the burglary at the time, but told the officers about it after the Washler home was broken into and he expressed suspicion of Taylor He said the youth had left a wrist watch with him to be repaired and was unable to redeem the watch as he could not pay the repair bill. Mr. Hubbartt had the watch with him when Taylor broke into his house to look for it.



LOG of the U.S. MARINES

WHEN RIOT RULED EGYPT

Riot ruled the city of Alexadria, Egypt, in June, 1882, when fanatical Egyptians, under their leader, Arabi Pacha, attacked European residents in a wild orgy of pillage, murder and sabotage. Terrified citizens sought refuge aboard ships or barricaded themselves in their homes. More than two hundred were killed and fire and flames swept the European quarter.

Following a bombardment, American, British, French, Italian and other seamen and marines were landed to restore order. First to reach the center of the city were the U. S. Marines, who marched throught hot and smoky streets, lined with burned stores and dwellings, or filled with the debris from fallen walls and merchandise from pillaged shops.

After the dead were buried and some semblance of order had been established, rumors spread that the Pachi was returning to the city with large numbers of his followers, and that this time he was determined to drive every foreigner from Alexandria.

Both the French and Italian troops prudently returned to their ships, but the U. S. Marines, who were only about 60 in number, decided that they would remain with the British until all danger had passed, regardless of the Pachi's threatened attack. They continued to guard citizens, telegraph offices, the stock exchange and banks as long as it was necessary.

For their courageous decision the U. S. Marines and bluejackets received the unstinted praise of the press and public officials, who further stated that without the services of the American Marines order could not have been restored and the great fires in the city subdued.

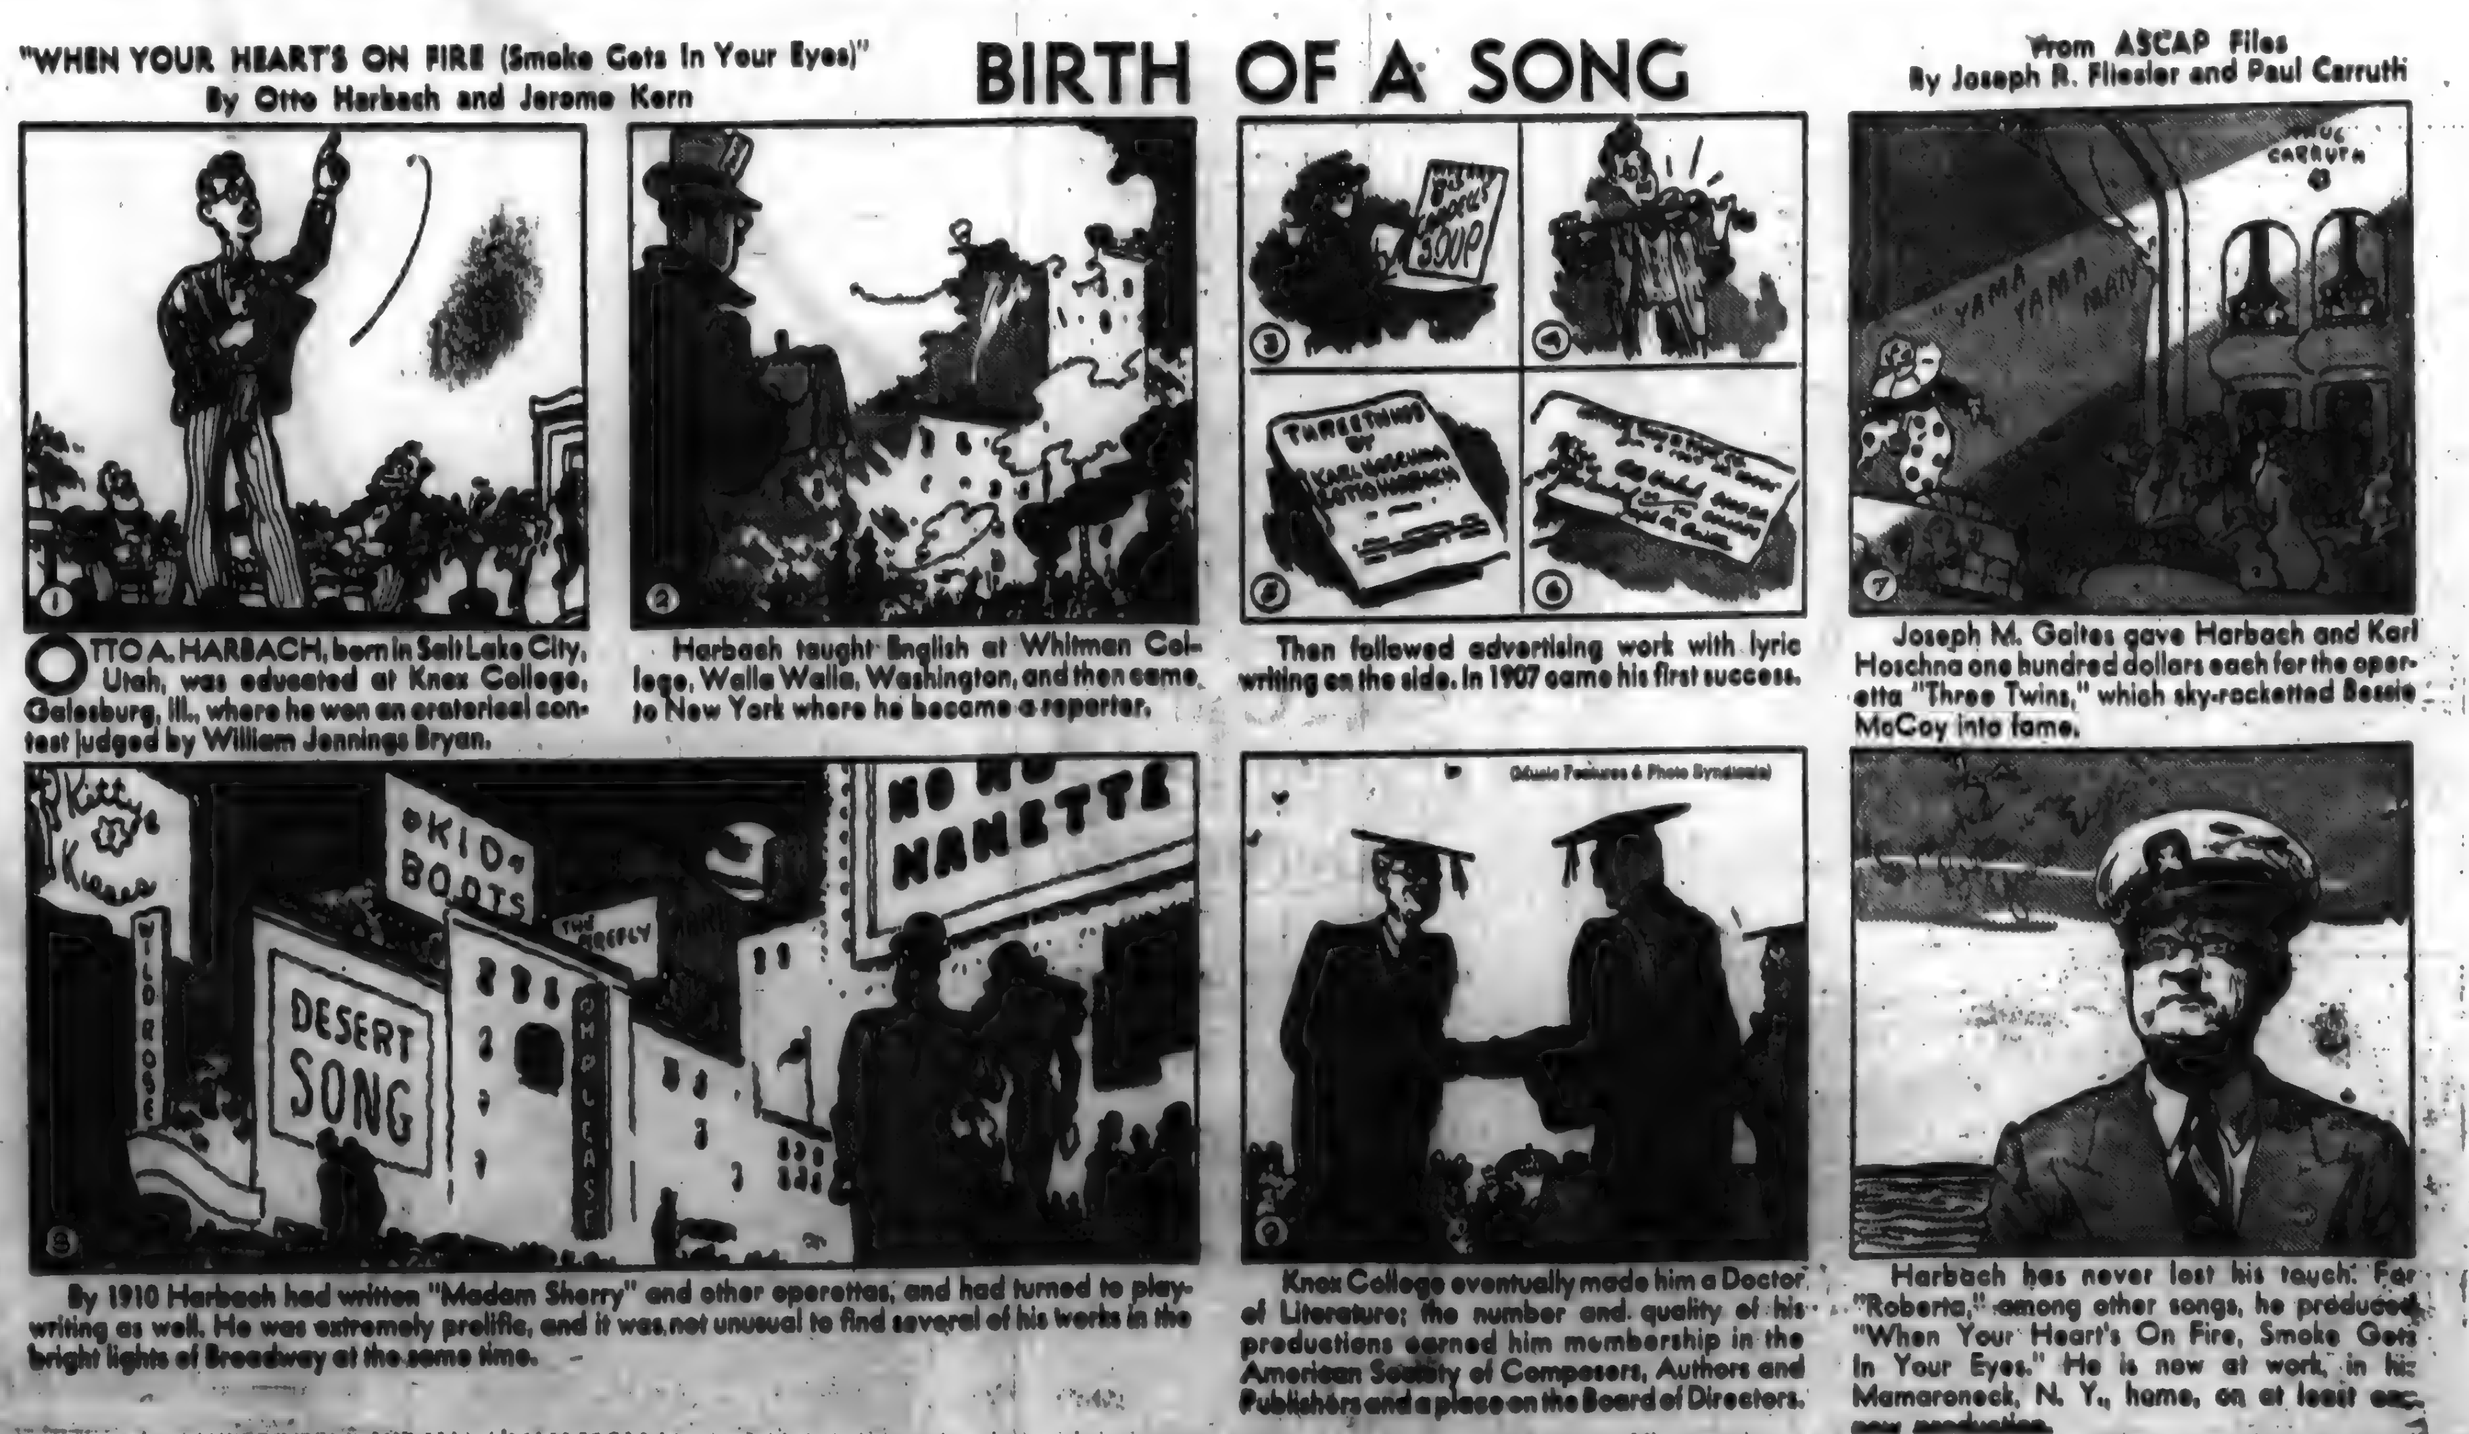
BIRTH OF A SONG

"WHEN YOUR HEART'S ON FIRE (Smoke Gets In Your Eyes)"
By Otto Harbach and Jerome Kern

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



OTTO A. HARBACH, born in Salt Lake City, Utah, was educated at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., where he won an oratorical contest judged by William Jennings Bryan.

Harbach taught English at Whitman College, Walla Walla, Washington, and then came to New York where he became a reporter.

Then followed advertising work with lyric writing on the side. In 1907 came his first success.

Joseph M. Gaites gave Harbach and Karl Hoschna one hundred dollars each for the operetta "Three Twins," which sky-rocketted Bessie McCoy into fame.

By 1910 Harbach had written "Madam Sherry" and other operettas, and had turned to play-writing as well. He was extremely prolific, and it was not unusual to find several of his works in the bright lights of Broadway at the same time.

Knox College eventually made him a Doctor of Literature; the number and quality of his productions earned him membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and a place on the Board of Directors.

Harbach has never lost his touch. For "Roberta," among other songs, he produced "When Your Heart's On Fire, Smoke Gets In Your Eyes." He is now at work, in his Mamaroneck, N. Y., home, on at least one new production.

Remember, TOWN IS COMING!

MAGAZINE SWINDLERS ARE AT WORK AGAIN

Magazine subscription agents were in St. Joe last week, endeavoring to sell their magazines to our citizens, and insisting, in some cases where they were refused attention, that the local News stand could not in any way duplicate their most valuable offer.

We ask our St. Joe readers to please read the following taken from the Evening Star, Auburn, on last Saturday night:—"Chief of Police D. M. Kraemelmeyer warns Auburn housewives that an alleged fraudulent magazine subscription salesman is operating in this section of Indiana. He issues a counterfeit receipt form in the name of the Women's World Publishing Co., 461 Eighth St., N. Y. City. He offers at a club rate of $1.69, the Women's World for three years, Pictorial Review for fifteen months and leave a blank space for the subscription desired. He then collects the money and keeps it.

"There are warrants out for his arrest. Local people are requested to report to the police station the activities of this man, age 35-40 years; height, 5½ feet; weight 150-160 pounds; dark hair; brown eyes; dark complexion."

Well, if you are one who took advantage of this money saving offer, where are you now? How much are you saving? The solicitor was right when stating that the local News stand cannot compete in price with them, because we (St. Joe News stand was the agency mentioned) would be compelled to pay for every magazine subscription taken.

Don't let these salesmen work you.

Mary Moore, Pattie, Cordelia and Bouncer Fluke spent Friday afternoon in Fort Wayne looking at Colleen Moore's Doll House.

Friday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Blue were Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Sechler, of Fort Wayne. Evening callers were Mr. and Mrs. Neihart and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Sechler and daughter of Edgerton, O.

CHILDREN'S DAY OBSERVED AT LUTHERAN CHURCH

An outstanding event in the Lutheran Church was the Children's Day celebration last Sunday night. It was a beautiful service with a definite purpose.

The precessional was led by the pastor, Rev. Stevenson, followed by the children's choir singing "Onward Christian Soldiers."

After all were seated on the pulpit-platform the entire worship service from the Lutheran Children's Hymnal was given with the pastor leading the responses.

The clear and understanding way the children gave the responses and the fine rendition of the hymns was the result of hours of patient and loving training.

Between the opening and closing order of service a few recitations and exercises were given by junior girls and the primary department. The pastor gave an interesting talk on the Osterlin Children's Home and announced that the offering would be sent to the Home.

The offeratory was furnished by Mary Louise Woodcox, a promising young cornestist.

The church was beautifully decorated and made a fine setting for the happy faces of the children.

The chancel rail was covered with white and decorated with garden ferns and pink blossoms. Back of the altar, cross and candles was a Gothic arch of greenery giving the effect of an out-of-door shrine. Flanking the shrine were large baskets of roses, pink peonies and blue delphinium.

Hanging from the chandeliers in the auditorium were large pink umbrellas spilling their contents of flowers and vines. The service and setting taught the children that all that is most beautiful in worship, sentiment, music and art is to be found in the church and in return they are to give their talents in loving service and appreciation.

The entire training of the children was in charge of the Children's Superitendent, Mrs. F. B. Leighty and a children's teacher, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, assisted by Mrs. Carl Perkins.

The church beautifying committee was Mrs. F. R. Bowman, Mrs. Mayola Kinsey, Ray Reasoner and Earl Kinsey.

STANDARD OIL MEN ATTEND FUNERAL

Harry Kees received word Saturday of the death of Ralph E. McClellan, 54, at Davenport, Iowa, where he was assistant manager of Standard Oil Co. He suffered a stroke and survived but 48 hours. Mr. McClellan will be remembered here as manager at Auburn for many years. Standard oil men from this territory attending the burial at Birch Lake, 20 miles east of Niles, Mich., on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kees, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, St. Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Witmer, of Grabill; Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miser, of Garrett, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bickell, of Waterloo.

Some weeks ago Mrs. McClellan's father passed away and the body was cremated and the ashes held at the cemetery. Mr. McClellan's body was cremated at Davenport and burial was made of both Mrs. McClellan's father and husband at this time.

The services at the cemetery were conducted by the Masonic Order.

TO ORGANIZE BEGINNERS BRASS BAND IN COMMUNITY

The Pearson Co., Inc., Ft. Wayne, Indiana, oldest and most complete musical instrument house, is sponsoring a movement to organize a beginners brass band in the vicinity of St. Joe and Spencerville.

A large amount of musical promotional has been done by this company in this vicinity, especially with piano accordion, but interest in the brass band instruments has been running high and all indications point to a good sized group of beginners.

The Pearson Co., uses a popular plan which allows parents to determine the extent of the youngsters ability and interest with a very minimum expense.

Pearson Accordion Band organized last summer has made several appearances under direction of Paul Dean, of Spencerville.

Hoosier anglers can anticipate some of the best fishing of recent years during the open season beginning Thursday morning, June 16,) Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, assured Indiana fishermen today.

Streams and lakes are in fine condition; a record hatch of game fish has been reported during the spawning season and the millions of fish planted last year have grown exceptionally fast. Another inducement is the opening for fishing the first time, the two lakes on the Brown County State Game Preserve and the two in the Morgan-Monroe State Forest. These lakes have been heavily stocked with bass and other game fish over a period of several years. No boats will be permitted on these lakes.

Thousands of fishermen will celebrate the opening of the season, many of them planning to be ready for their first cast immediately after the stroke of midnight. Pre-opening celebrations for the visiting anglers will be held this year at Monticello, LaGrange, Syracuse and Jasonville.

During the closed season on taking bass, bluegills and other game species, trout fishermen have been enjoying real sport with some record catches from the cold-water streams in the Northern part of the state. The trout season continues until August 31.

Hoosiers were reminded that the Indiana law requires every person to have a license to fish—with two exceptions — children under eighteen years of age may fish without a license and the owners of farmlands or tenants and their families may fish in waters on such farms only, without a license.

In some parts of the state, especially on the Northern lakes where the spawning season is still in progress, fishermen will be expected to observe the laws prohibiting fishing within areas designated as spawning beds or operating motorboats within such areas.

Game wardens will be on constant duty prior to and after the opening of the fishing season for the dual purpose of giving information to the fishermen and checking of violations of fishing laws. Taking of bass and other game fish, excepting trout, before midnight CENTRAL STANDARD TIME on the morning of June 16 is a violation of the law. In parts of the state where daylight time is in effect, fishermen must wait for midnight Central Standard Time.

The opening of the fishing season in Indiana attracts scores of anglers from other states to enjoy this sport. The issuance of a special non-resident fishing license, good for ten days at a fee of $1 appeals to a growing number of tourists and vacationists. Several hundred of these ten-day licenses were issued during the past year in addition to the regular non-resident fishing license.

NEWVILLE LAD PLEADS "NOT GUILTY" TO CHARGE

Although the officers say he confessed to them, Ellis Taylor, 17, of Newville, entered a plea of not guilty when he was arraigned in the DeKalb Circuit Court Friday afternoon to a charge of petit larceny.

Taylor was arrested by Deputy Sheriff C. M. Minnich and State Poilceman Joseph Bilkovic on suspicion of breaking into the home of Curt Washler at Newville the night of June 5 and stealing a flashlight and they say he admitted the crime to them.

However, when the affidavit was read in court Friday and Judge Endicott inquired how he wanted to plead, the youth responded "Not guilty."

Bond was fixed at $1,000 pending trial. No date for hearing was set.

Taylor also is said to have admitted breaking into the home of Rev. P. A. Hubbartt at Newville last February. He was in trouble two years ago for stealing.

Later: Ellis Taylor, convicted of the theft of a flashlight June 5 at the home of Curt Washler, was given a Reformatory term of one to five years. He plead guilty to the charge of petit larceny.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

INSPIRED NATIONAL ANTHEM

Proudly waving in the breeze for 161 years, Old Glory will celebrate its birthday on June 14. Our flag has had its triumphant moments during the long years it has been our national emblem, but rarely has it meant more to our people than in the uncertain days of the War of 1812 when the fate of our country hung in the balance.

Burned by the British, our National Capital lay in ashes, while fear gripped the hearts of patriotic Americans. Encouraged by their successes, the powerful forces of the enemy struck at Baltimore, believing that another easy triumph lay before them.

Commodore John Rodgers with his seamen and U. S. Marines were a part of the force which went to the defense of the city, along with the militiamen and volunteers. Only a meager force could be rallied against a foe which numbered about 9,000. The British leader was killed, and after a sharp engagement the enemy's land forces withdrew while the guns of their fleet were preparing to bombard Fort McHenry.

For twenty-four hours, beginning on September 13, 1814, the guns of the enemy attempted to shatter Fort McHenry and other shore positions, but their efforts failed. Francis Scott Key who was visiting the British fleet on a diplomatic errand, thrilled with pride when he noted by the dawn's early flight that "our flag was still there."

Thankful citizens of Baltimore expressed their grateful praise to the brave seamen and marines who came to their aid. Key was inspired to write the Star Spangled Banner, which expresses no vaunted boast of power—only a sublime faith in cherished institutions and a willingness to defend them against all odds.

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

It's peculiar to note that automobile racing experts who compete at Indianapolis and other speedways year after year are very slow and careful drivers.

Statements from these men and evidence of their driving habits prove they are careful. They know the results of excessive speed. They know what will happen when the car gets out of control. They must have good judgment on turns. They exercise common sense.

Safety is about 99% common sense—accidents are 99% thoughtless hurry.

It's better to say, "Give him the right of way," than "GET HIM right away."

It's smart to be careful.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Most people who have a reputation for making money hand over fist usually manage to keep their hands and fists over it, too.

Aother thing this country needs is more solving of problems and less surveying of them.

You have also probably noticed before this that the less a man knows the easier it is for him to make up his mind.

Thinking her nose is shining makes a woman feel as uncomfortable as a four week's growth of beard makes a man.

A Boston editor says "We owe a great deal to the Pilgrim Fathers." Yes, and the best part of it is we don't have to pay it.

We are told that there are 293 ways of making change for a dollar. That's interesting, but how do you get hold of the dollar?

It has been pretty well proved that bankers have just about as much to do as preachers with keeping men honest.

The modern girl gets a good laugh when she hears how the old-fashioned girl had to stand under the mistletoe to get kissed.

A Kansas woman's club debated for four hours the most dreaded disease among women, and then reached the conclusion it was—of all things—lockjaw!

There was a time when half the people in this world didn't know how the other half lived. But that was before the government began passing out doles.

It isn't hard for a man to eat his words nowadays for most of them are a lot of applesauce anyhow.

Since officials at Washington have listened to just about everybody else in the land why not call in a few taxpayers and see what they have to say.

"A hint to the wise is sufficient." But a hint to the wives is a lot more so.

What a wonderful community this would be if everybody in it did as well today as he expects to do tomorrow.

The prophet's mantle is likely to be an uncomfortable garment, especially if the wearer attempts to foretell the actions of Congress. One hardly knows whether Home, Sweet Home, or Safely Through Another Week is the proper chant to assign to the legislative choir. A breakup may come any time. It may be put off until the 15th of June, or even until a later date. Broadly speaking, no new obstacles to an early adjournment have presented themselves. Even with no added impediments, there is enough to think about.

The matters that make rough and rugged the road to adjournment, include the Spend and Lend Bill with its generous appropriation. Wages and Hours still precipitates discussion and debate, the Wages provisions being the fly in the ointment, to fall back on an allusion avoided by careful writers, but mighty handy nevertheless. Then there is the lately brought forward Deficiency Bill, involving an outlay in the neighborhood of a third of a billion, which is a sufficiently accurate statement in these days, when fifty or sixty millions one way or the other may be disregarded. Barriers notwithstanding, a session of Congress, like a summer day, an inheritance, the measles of a flat tire, cannot last forever.

The President would have the group on Capitol Hill set aside fifty thousand dollars to be used in placing the ball and chain, or perhaps the noose, on the Florida kidnapers, a suggestion to which all good men will append a fervent amen. The important thing is to put a stop to the torture of body and soul that follows in the wake of the doings of man-stealers; yet there is another (it would be incorrect and heartless to say a broader) aspect to be considered. When an Italian newspaper remarks that the United States had better make itself safe from kidnapers before trying to make the world safe for Democracy, our cheeks burn a little and there is a feeling that the folks along the banks of the Tiber have taken us with the goods.

Now that the Iowa primaries are over, a mass of political sermons is being preached from that text. Upon the one hand, the day of driving from the Washington back seat, occupied in this instance by Mr. Hopkins, is said to be over. Upon the other hand, it is pointed out that Mr. Green, of the American Federation of Labor, also occupied the back seat, with ideas opposite to those of Mr. Hopkins. So perhaps both sides had better save their fireworks for the Fourth of July. To wind up with a fine mixed metaphore, it is impossible to launch even so small a thing as a new dooryard fence without a shining star on the back seat of it as a driver.

Borrowing from the Old Testament, a cloud no bigger than a man's hand, at least no larger than the hands of ten men, has arisen on the fair horison of the Relief Administration. That number of Senators have signed a resolution calling for an investigation of the charges that Relief has been used for political purposes. The signers of the request are capable men. Even the Democratic Republican Party (here the reader can use his heavy black pencil as occasion requires) has some capable men in its ranks. The Ten will give the problem such consideration as it merits, and will suggest such action as attendant circumstances appear to justify.

TIME TO TUNE UP

There are many St. Joe motorists who think that so long as the car runs when he starts it and keeps running as long as he presses his foot on the accelerator it is in good shape and all is well with it. They don't stop to consider that there are different grades of oil for different temperatures, and that failure to change at the proper time can easily ruin a motor, or that after running through the hardest motoring months of the year batteries lose much of their power and pep and need refilling, or that bolts or screws that hold vital parts of its mechanism together may have worked loose and rendered the car unsafe until readjustments are made. Just because it will run doesn't mean that it will safely, and no man should risk his life or the lives of his family because it does so. Heavy repair bills later on—maybe a fatal accident—rests upon the entire car being in perfect shape for summer driving. Tune it up now and be on the safe side.

"BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

(By John Craddock)

WASHINGTON—While retail business promises to be dull this summer, there is good reason to look for a sharp expansion in the Fall. President Roosevelt has asked the PWA to prepare a list of projects costing about $600,000,000 which can be begun by the end of this month. Once the government pump-priming ball gets rolling, it is believed that an average of $300,000,000 a month will be spent for the balance of 1938. Opinions differ as to the ultimate value of such a program for achieving lasting recovery, but there is little doubt that temporarily it will greatly simulate mass buying power and therefore retail trade.

BUSINESS—Reports from various sections of the country indicate that industrial production and activity are now down to within a few points of the 1932 low-point. It is difficult to believe that this sad state of business can long persist, however. Business is always on the move, either surging forward or contracting. Like life, business does not stand still. Like the individual, business is able to rejuvenate itself and become strong and healthy after a period of sickness. Pent up demand for goods, injection of new methods and ideas into the business world, and general restoration of confidence in the future are the tonics which bring about trade recovery. These remedies are bound to work their cure in time. In fact, many economists believe that recovery is even now in the making with its beneficial effects expected to take hold by Fall.

Now...

By CARL OGLE

(Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the attitude of the publisher or editor of this newspaper. —Editor's Note.)

In a speech at Bass Lake last week, Lieutenant Governor Henry F. Schricker said that he would run for United States Senator. And in that speech he made it apparent that another attempt is being made to toss dust in the eyes of the voters of the state, who have eaten a lot of that very sort of dust during the last few years.

Several things have to be taken into consideration to see the picture clearly, and the writer intends to attempt to diagram the situation for you.

1. The President and Governor Townsend decided to boot United States Senator Frederick VanNuys out of office because he voted against the Supreme court packing bill.

2. Governor Townsend supposedly is backing Mr. Schricker for the nomination to take VanNuys' place.

3. Lieutnant Governor Schricker was sent to Washington ostensibly to see whether the Indiana congressmen wanted him to run for the Senate. While there, he issued a statement to the press, saying that he would have voted just as Senator VanNuys did on the court packing bill, which made them seem to be regular "pals."

4. While in Washington, Mr. Schricker called on Senator VanNuys and supposedly had a very friendly conversation with the man whose place he is supposed to take.

5. But upon his return to Indiana, in his speech at Bass Lake Mr. Schricker said he would favor LIMITED TERMS OF OFFICE FOR SUPREME COURT JUSTICES.

Now....just how does all this look to you?

Let's see whether you and the writer size it up in the same way.

1. Mr. Schricker wants the support of the VanNuys Democrats so he paid tribute to Senator VanNuys. He called on the Senator and he issued a statement saying that he would have voted the same way that the Senator voted on the Supreme Court Packing Bill. That was bait for the suckers.

2. Upon his return to Indiana, Mr. Schricker said that he would favor limited terms for Supreme Court Justices. This was to indicate to the New Dealers that he favored the President's program of changing Supreme Court Justices every time they don't agree with your particular program.

In other words Mr. Schricker has cut bait for both sides. He is using a shotgun. He hopes to get 'em all.

Now....which side does he really favor?

Or does he really favor the President's plan.

Or does he hope to carry water on both shoulders until he ascertains which side is the stronger?

The people of Indiana have a right to know the answers to those questions. They have a right to know right now whether he favors the American principle of government, which includes a Supreme Court that can not be intimidated—or an European system in which courts are merely servants to the will of the dictator.

Federal courts always have been free of the danger of intimidation because they have been LIFE jobs. No one could say: "If you don't decide this case the way I want you to, I'll get your job!" Mr. Schircker wants the Supreme Court Justices to have short terms so that they might be intimidated by some would-be dictator by threats of not being re-appointed. —Do we want a man in the Senate who would make the Supreme Court subject to the whims of a dictator?

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

METHOD OF ERADICATING BINDWEED INFESTATION

At the demonstrations for the eradication of bindweed held by the County Agent on Tuesday, it was pointed out by O. C. Lee, Purdue Weed Specialist, that the only method of controlling this weed was by using sodium chlorate at the rate of four pounds per acre.

Patches of bindweed should be isolated and staked until they have been completely eradicated. Cultivating through the patch may cause root parts to be carried to other parts of the field and hasten spread.

European bindweed resembles a morning glory plant in its manner of growth. The leaves are arrow-shaped. The bell-shaped flowers, approximately one inch in diameter, are white or pinkish-white in color with distinct ping markings at the base. Flowering usually begins in June and continues through July, August and September.

Bindweed is the most dangerous weed in Indiana because of its ability to spread rapidly, crowd out crops and reduce land values. It is one of the most difficult weeds to eradicate, especially after it has become wide spread in the field. Knowledge of the weed, taking every precaution to prevent its introduction, immediate attention to small patches and the application of proper methods of eradication will save many a field and farm from complete infestation.

Army Worm Infestation

DeKalb County farmers are warned, by T. E. Myers, County Agricultural Agent, to be on the lookout for infestations of army worms. The first infestation was discovered yesterday on the Glenn Hawver farm southwest of Garrett.

G. A. Fitch, Assistant State Entomologist, states that there is a possibility of a heavy infestation in the county judging from the large number of army worm moths flying at night.

Anyone discovering army worms should notify the County Agent at once and proceed to use control measures which consists of scattering over the area a poison bran at the rate of ten pounds per acre. The formula is 25 pounds of bran, one pound of Paris Green, two quarts of cheap molasses and about three quarts of water. Mix bran and Paris Green thoroughly. In a separate receptacle mix the syrup and water. Then mix the two. The mash should be neither sloppy nor too dry but well moistened so as to scatter thinly when broadcasted. For army worms scatter in the evening.

THE LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

A new feature writer joins The News Staff with a bit of weekly fun.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

The latest thing just off the griddle red-hot—it is a U. S. broadcasting system. So I reckon the mails, they must be too slow.

And the Govt. with a radio, it could clamp down quick on a farmer in Illinois or some place, if he is objecting to some person with a slide-rule telling him just where and how to plant a coupla hills of corn.

They could have a farmer in jail via radio, lots quicker than by R. F. D.

And if you send out word on Monday to plant more because the weather is dry, and then it rains and they want the farmer to plant less, you see how hard it is to get something done—by mail.

But the Govt., it is getting its foot into everybody's door—and it is not just the farmer they are after.

If they can tell a farmer when to wean a calf, what is to keep 'em from telling me when to change my underwear—if I maybe happen to have some, sometime.

So my neighbor he says, Jo, I am glad to see you are half-way beginning to wake up.

A Real Sign of Summer!

The arrival of summer here June 21 can be pictured no more graphically than by the barefoot youngster and his fishing pole. Three months of the year's mildest weather lie ahead for local residents, while the southern hemisphere is experiencing winter.

① JACK NORWORTH is a Philadelphia boy, who made good as a songwriter. He began as a blackface artist without even proper billing.

② Many performers in those days wrote their own songs and patter. Jack wrote his "Moon" song through a harvest of clothes poles.

③ He sang it with Nora Bayes in the Ziegfeld Follies of 1907, and the song caught on. It set Norworth over the borderline from acting to songwriting.

④ He wrote a London Revue with R. P. Weston. The opening night was marked by a Zeppelin raid.

⑤ Norworth went back to "trouping" with a vaudeville skit, married his pianist and made a series of short films in Hollywood before double-features.

⑥ Norworth had forgotten his early song hit, but a little Texas orchestra fooled around with the tune and it began to show new signs of life.

⑦ Ruth Etting picked it up from there, and when Norworth returned from a cruise he discovered that after 20 years he was again the author of a hit song.

Vaudeville has passed; songwriting isn't what it used to be, but Norworth can depend on his membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN"

Rumblings of the earth alarmed the peasants of the little French village of Cinq-Mars on a May morning in 1931. For years many of its inhabitants had lived in the traditional manner of their ancestors, occupying caves instead of more modern dwellings.

Disaster, swift and sudden, menaced their homes as the ground shook and trembled, while a landslide of rocks and earth threatened to wipe out the caves which for ages had sheltered the peasant folk of this quaint community.

Undismayed by the panic of the moment, stood Brigadier General Robert H. Dunlap, of the Marine Corps, on temporary duty in France. By a strange quirk of fate he happened to pay a casual visit to Cinq-Mars that day.

Suddenly a French woman screamed and ran for one of the caves which had been fashioned into a barn. Sensing her danger General Dunlap and the woman's husband followed, shouting their warnings as they ran. They hoped to drag the panic-stricken woman to safety.

They were too late. Buried beneath the falling debris and stones which descended like an avalanche on the would-be rescures, the lives of the two gallant men were snuffed out. Hours later rescue workers found their bodies. The woman was crippled for life.

On the breast of General Dunlap's uniform were ribbons he had won in the Philippines, China, Mexico, and the battlefields of France, including the Navy Cross and D. S. C. Today a monument marks the scene of his last act of chivalry, while the destroyer Dunlap was named in his honor.

SILAS REASONER DIES AT HIS AUBURN HOME

The death of Silas J. Reasoner occurred Sunday night at 9:30 o'clock at his home just this side of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad on Wayne St., at Auburn, the result of uremic poisoning. The aged resident, 82 years old last July 22nd, had been up town on Saturday. He became unconscious Sunday morning at 6:30 and never rallied. He had been ailing for a year.

The deceased, who was employed a short time by the Auburn Automobile Co., moved to Auburn twelve years ago. He was born near Bucyrus, O., the last of thirteen children, and came to Indiana at the age of 9 years. Before moving to Auburn he resided on a farm near St. Joe, where he lived for many years.

He was united in marriage with Alice Baker on January 2, 1876. She died on August 5, 1923. There were three children born of this union, Mrs. Minnie Bleeks, of St. Joe, Mrs. Lora Reinhart, south of Butler, and Marion Reasoner, who died in 1928. Nine grandchildren and four great grandchildren survive besides the widow, the former Augusta Stebing, whom he married on March 8, 1930.

Mr. Reasoner was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock DST Wednesday afternoon at St. Mark's Church, with Rev. O. B. Noren officiating. Burial was made in the cemetery at St. Joe.

INDIANA FIRES BURN 7,560 ACRES DURING FIRST FIVE MONTHS

Forty-three forest fires destroyed a total of 7,560 acres of Indiana forest land during the first five months of 1938,—more than twice the total acreage wiped out by fire during 1937.

During the first five months eight forest fires were reported in the Southeastern district, totaling 1,719 acres, with damage amounting to $25,309.00. The Southwestern district of the state did not have a single fire until May, when they had thirty-five fires, destroying 5,481 acres of forest land, with an estimated damage of $78,629.00. Damage from fires in both districts for the five month period totals $103,908.00.

In spite of the work of fire-fighting organizations in wooded sections of the state and the educational program sponsored by the Department, serious damage to Indiana's woodland continues to result from fire.

Some countries handle speeders entirely differently from the way America does. In Jugoslavia traffic officials don't ask questions. If an officer finds a speeder, he maneuvers the driver over to the curb and politely lets the air out of all four tires. No ticket is issued. Pumping air back into four tires leaves a lasting impression with any driver.

It is a good lesson in safety.

A labor bill has been left hanging in a congressional room, a circumstance which need not be metioned, were it not for the fact that John L. Lewis had informed Speaker Bankhead that it must pass. Combined Democratic and Republican efforts laid it on the shelf, and Mr. Lewis is regarded as having received a rebuke for pointing his finger too plainly toward the road along which, in his opinion, Congress should travel. Mr. Green, of the American Federation of Labor, thinks that Mr. Lewis went too far in his efforts to lay the law down to Congress and characterizes the action of the C. I. O. leader as a brazen invasion.

In these days, when jobs are a little hard to find and often of short duration, postmasters have reason to rejoice. They are to be appointed "without term," if the President puts his name on a piece of paper before him. The phrase "without term" is short, but it makes the postmaster's tenure as long as his life. Unless Mr. Roosevelt fails to dip his pen and sign on the dotted line, all that a person who wants to be boss of the mails in his town will have to do is to get appointed, avoid the smallpox and dodge autos, thereafter.

THE FISH HOG

Now that their brothers have retired to Fall and Winter quarters, the fish hog is left on the scene by the absence of the road hog and the game hog to grab all the glory. Unless it might be the roadhog, and no power on earth can rid the human race of him. When the fish hog, who slaughters just to see how many he can catch, or refuses to throw back those of illegal size, will retire from the scene, no one can tell. Fishing is probably the most popular of all our outdoor sports, and is entitled to greater protection than it ever had. As the conservation forces must now operate they will continue to be imposed upon. About the chief hope right now, we are told, is that a few sparks of sporting decency find their way to the hearts of the fish hogs and that they return to the days of good old honest sport, and fish clean. And even that seems too much to hope for.

THE NEWSY SEASON, TOO

Not only is this period of the year a busy one in all sections of the country, but it is due to become even more so, since the farther along the summer gets the more running around the people will do, with the peak of their activities yet several weeks away. And while we are on the subject here is a good place for us to stick in our oar. We are going, we hope, to continue just as busy as anyone else, but in our business we can always find time to step over the edge of the sidewalk and hear what it is you want to tell us about having some visitors or a party or family reunion at your house, and also where it is members of the family are visiting. The few moments we rest while thus engaged is good for both of us, and the whole community will be glad to get the news you imparted. Start tomorrow at the latest, and make it a practice to halt us and give us the little social items that are new to you, about your visitors, your family and your friends. It's also good to have a word now and then of how some ailing neighbor is getting along. Easy? Easy as falling off a log—and never a better time than tomorrow to start putting it into practice.

TRY HIS WAY

They've called in experts and braintrusters from far and near in their efforts to solve the nation's puzzling, nerve-wrecking problems of finance, industry, trade and employment. But seemingly every time a solution to one problem appears another of equal importance and just as vexing breaks out in a new spot. "They've tried everybody else's plan" writes the editor of a Georgia weekly paper in a serious-minded way, "now why don't they turn to the old-fashioned methods of those who up to a few generations ago turned when all else failed—why don't they try God's plan of working out some of their problems?"

To the average St. Joe citizen this may not be accepted as a workable solution. But look at the fate of Rome, and scores of other nations when they junked His plan and went pretty much as we are running it now, on an "every fellow for himself" basis. Look what happened to those nations that turned their backs on the Golden Rule. They crumbled and perished. And history still has a way or repeating itself.

When men lose sight of the welfare of their country in a selfish grab for political power; when men lay aside the Golden Rule and adopt instead the $ as a yardstick for measuring the way to human bteterment, then the suggestion of the Gorgia editor becomes not only worth thinking about but worthy of a trial. Get men back to the old-time methods of dealing honestly with their fellowmen and many of the problems now besetting the land will solve themselves. Most of them originate from a spirit of greed, anyhow. Most of them were unknown until men began losing their faith in the Golden Rule and putting a pricemark on it. Now why not turn back to rules that did work. Why not try His way?

(Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the attitude of the publisher or editor of this newspaper. —Editor's Note.)

Even New Deal colleagues of United States Senator (Shay) Sherman Minton have become a trifle tired of his tirades against the newspapers of the county.

At any rate, they refused to grant him an additional $12,500 so that his Black "inquisition" committee could continue its "investigation" of newspapers that are unfriendly to the administration. Senator Burke, Democrat of Nebraska, charged that Minton planned to use the money to "abridge the freedom of the press."

But that won't stop "Wonderful One-Hoss Shay" Minton. He has the idea that newspapers shouldn't be unfriendly to the New Deal. Ideas don't happen to him very often and when he gets one, he hangs right on to it because he knows it will be a long time before he gets another.

One of the most interesting and (if you are not easily shocked) entertaining things that has happened in Indiana recently is the recount of the Marion County Democratic primary vote.

If you are not familiar with the situation, Al Feeney, candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor, opposed the "state house machine." He was "defeated" in the primary by Charley Lutz, friendly to the machine. Feeney figures that he had more votes than the canvassing board indicated so he demanded a re-count.

Well, he had more votes, all right. Each day sees the same story repeated in the newspapers. Feeney gains in the re-count and Lutz loses. The writer, for instance, just picked up the paper. It shows that the election officials of the Twelfth precinct of the Ninth ward gave Lutz 89 votes—but the recount cut this to 59. The same election officials gave Feeney 60 votes—and the re-count gave him 84.

It is an extremely enlightening and educational expose of the statehouse machine's methods in politics.

One of the most interesting characters in American political life will be the "keynoter" at the Indiana Republican state convention June 29. He is Bruce Barton, one of the few Republicans to be elected to Congress from New York in recent years, and he is the author of more books than we have space to write down here. Two of them made him nationally famous—"The Man Nobody Knows," which is the ordinary man's approach to the life of Christ, and "The Book Nobody Knows" which, of course, concerns the Bible.

Last year, Mr. Barton, who is the head of the largest advertising agencies in the United States, decided that business men had no real right to criticise government or politics unless they were willing to take an active part. So he ran for Congress—and he ran at a real fiancial sacrifice to himself because his income as head of the advertising agency would make the salary of a congressman look like chickenfeed.

Some business men couldn't understand why he ran when he knew he would lose money by it and they thot he was rather insane for doing it. Others admired him for running. At any rate, his theory that there should be some business sense used in government made him more famous than ever. It is an unheard of thing to mix government with business these days.

The politicians were amused. They knew he wouldn't win anyhow.

But, much to the surprise of everyone, he did win!

That is—much to the surprise of everyone but Mr. Barton. He had figures that business methods would work in politics and government so he applied business methods to his campaign.

In other words, he PLANNED IT THAT WAY!

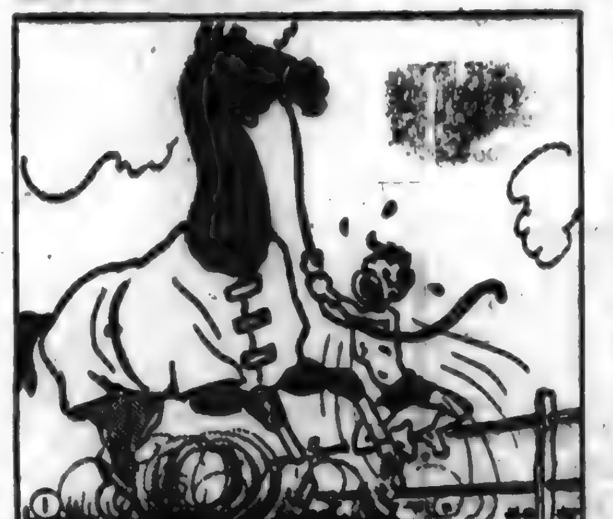
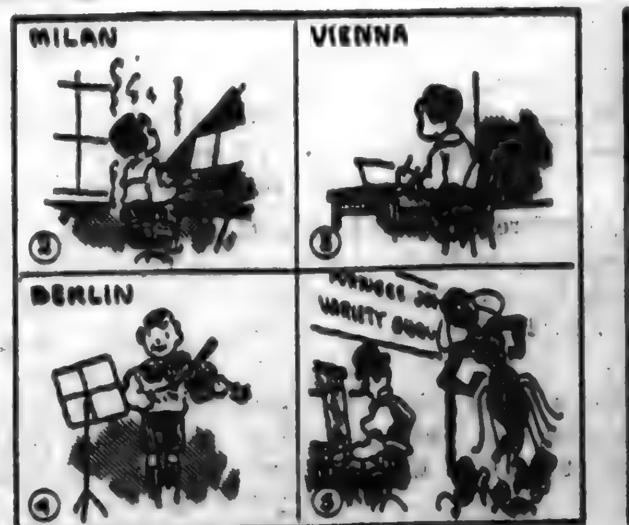
BIRTH OF A SONG

"MY MELANCHOLY BABY"
By Ernie Burnett and George Norton

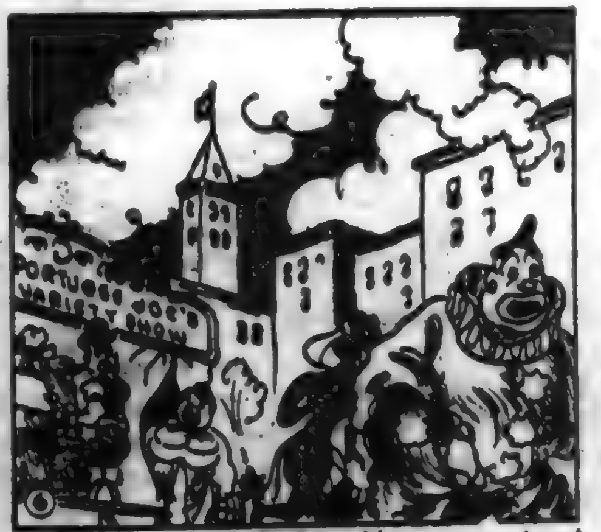
From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



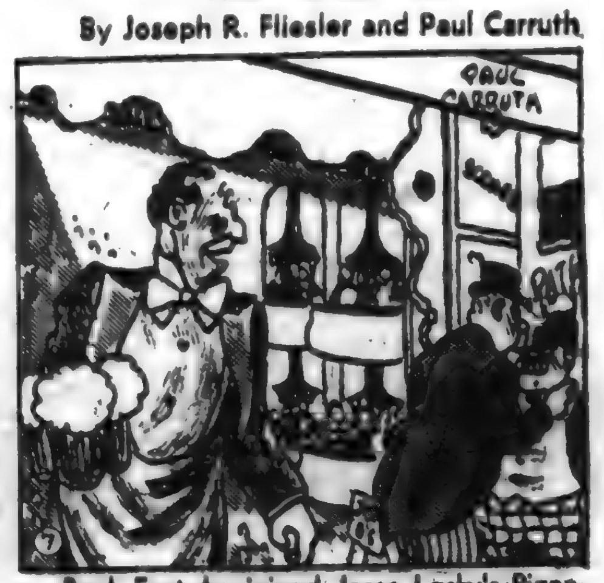
ERNIE BURNETT wanted to be a jockey, and as a boy would swim the Ohio from Cincinnati to Newport to exercise race horses. But his parents wanted him to be a musician.



So at a tender age he was sent off to an uncle in Milan to absorb musical culture, but he soon left for Vienna, then on to Berlin (B.H.). Orphaned and penniless at 17, he returned to America to begin anew.



From concert pianist, with an occasional income, he became pianist to a variety show at a steady salary. The San Francisco disaster left him without funds, and it was a case of 'California, here I go'.



Back East, he joined Jesse Lasky's Pianophiends and began a tour of vaudeville houses, which finally brought him back to "Frisco". Here he fell in love, married, and lost his job.

RAILROAD DENVER

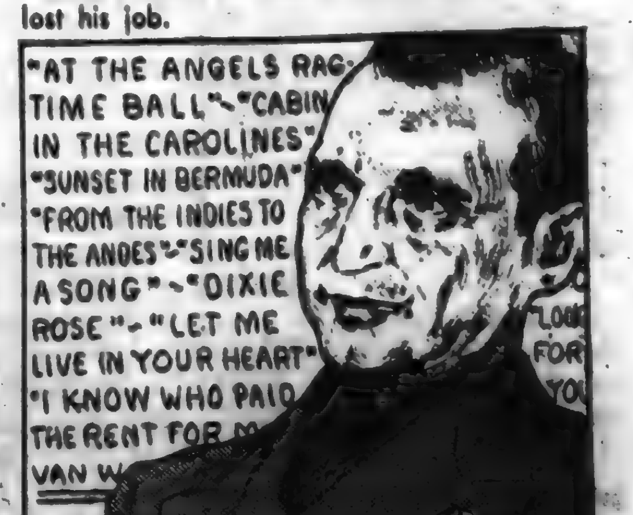
Burnett scurried back to Denver for another job as piano player in a cafe. With his first money he wired for his bride to join him.

Her train was delayed by snow and Ernie despaired that she would ever arrive. Sitting in the waiting room he set his melancholy thoughts to music.

My Melancholy Baby
HALL OF HONOR
IN MEMORY OF ERNIE BURNETT "MELANCHOLY BABY"

The song, "My Melancholy Baby", was a terrific hit. The composer became Sergeant Burnett on the fields of France. Nobody bothered to send him royalties, because he was soon listed as "Died in Action".



"AT THE ANGELS RAGTIME BALL"-"CABIN IN THE CAROLINES"-"SUNSET IN BERMUDA"-"FROM THE INDIES TO THE ANDES"-"SING ME A SONG"-"DIXIE ROSE"-"LET ME LIVE IN YOUR HEART"-"I KNOW WHO PAID THE RENT FOR

Returned like Enoch Arden, he protested like Mark Twain; was elected to the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and resumed his rank as an American composer.

SEVERELY BURNED BY SLIDING DOWN ROPE

George Hart, of Burr Oak, Mich., is reported as being severely burned a few days ago while attempting to mend a hay car in his high stock barn. The ladder being somewhat short, he used a rope and he has found out the truth in the old saying, "that a kid has to be burned before he will give up." George, no doubt acknowledges that one trial is sufficient.

Just how serions his burns are we are not sure, but sliding down a rope is a real serious thing.

You can make the average man believe a lot of things but you can't make him believe the rich man has as many worries as the poor one.

Come and make this day a day of joyous Christian Fellowship for Youth.

THE NATION'S HOPE

So long as there are homes to which men turn
At close of day;
So long as there are homes where children are,
Where women stay,
If love and loyalty and faith be found
Across these sills,
A stricken nation can recover from
Its gravest ills.
So long as there are homes where fires burn,
And there is bread;
As long as there are homes where lamps are lit,
And prayers are said;
Although a people falter through the dark,
And nations grope,
With God himself back of these little homes,
We have sure hope.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

On the 3rd of January, 1938, Congress opened its doors for business, closing them on the 16th of June. It did many things that it hoped to do, and left undone some things that it was expected to finish.

Among the accomplishments of Congress may be mentioned the passage of the Recovery and Relief Bill, by the terms of which about four billion dollars were made available for the W. P. A. Subsidy payments for farmers were assured, and housing projects received attention. Wages and Hours perhaps called for most discussion. So far as the first year of the operation of the measure is concerned, the maximum working week will be 44 hours, with a minimum hourly pay of 25 cents. As time passes, the working week may be cut to 40 hours, with a wage of not less than 40 cents per hour.

Postmasters were placed under the Civil Service and assured of a life job. More than 20 new Federal judgeships were established. Road building was given a helping hand, to the extent of 4 million dollars. Flood control received a like appropriation. The Naval Building program was allotted more than a billion, and defense by means of aircraft was not overlooked. Tax Revision had its day but the details of that matter need not be gone into, since the amount to be collected remains practically the same as it was formerly, the Government, therefore, having nothing about which to complain, and the tax payer nothing about which he has any ground for special rejoicing.

An added kick was put into the A. A. A. in that more firm control over crop production has been established, the farmer, however, retaining something of his former power of choice, in that a vote may be taken as to the production of such staples as tobacco, wheat, rice, cotton and corn. The Merchant Marine is protected by subsidy against too strong opposition from abroad. Food and Drug laws were fortified and expanded.

The R. F. C. will be permitted to lend not more than a billion and a half to states and smaller governmental groups, for the benefit of business and industry in general. Bombing of noncombatants in time of war was condemned. Federal Unemployment Insurance for railroad workers will replace much that has been done heretofore along that line, by the states.

There are several affairs that will be looked into when Congress has more time, definite provision for such investigations having been made. Under this head come monopoly activities, the doings of the T. V. A. and movements of a kind so well known that they are referred to broadly as un-American.

Among legislation that was laid over to create headaches on Capitol Hill in the future may be named Reorganization of the Federal Government, Railroad Aid, extension of the T. V. A. concept, and changes in the Neutrality Laws. The Florida Ship Canal rests in peace for the present. Chain stores and the radio industry were not put on the spot. A bill to legalize the tapping of telephone wires, if the person phoning is suspected of violating Federal laws, remains on the shelf.

Such is the story of the 75th Congress. The scales of time will have to be used to determine whether its doings were of the heavy-weight order or merely the small dust of the balance.

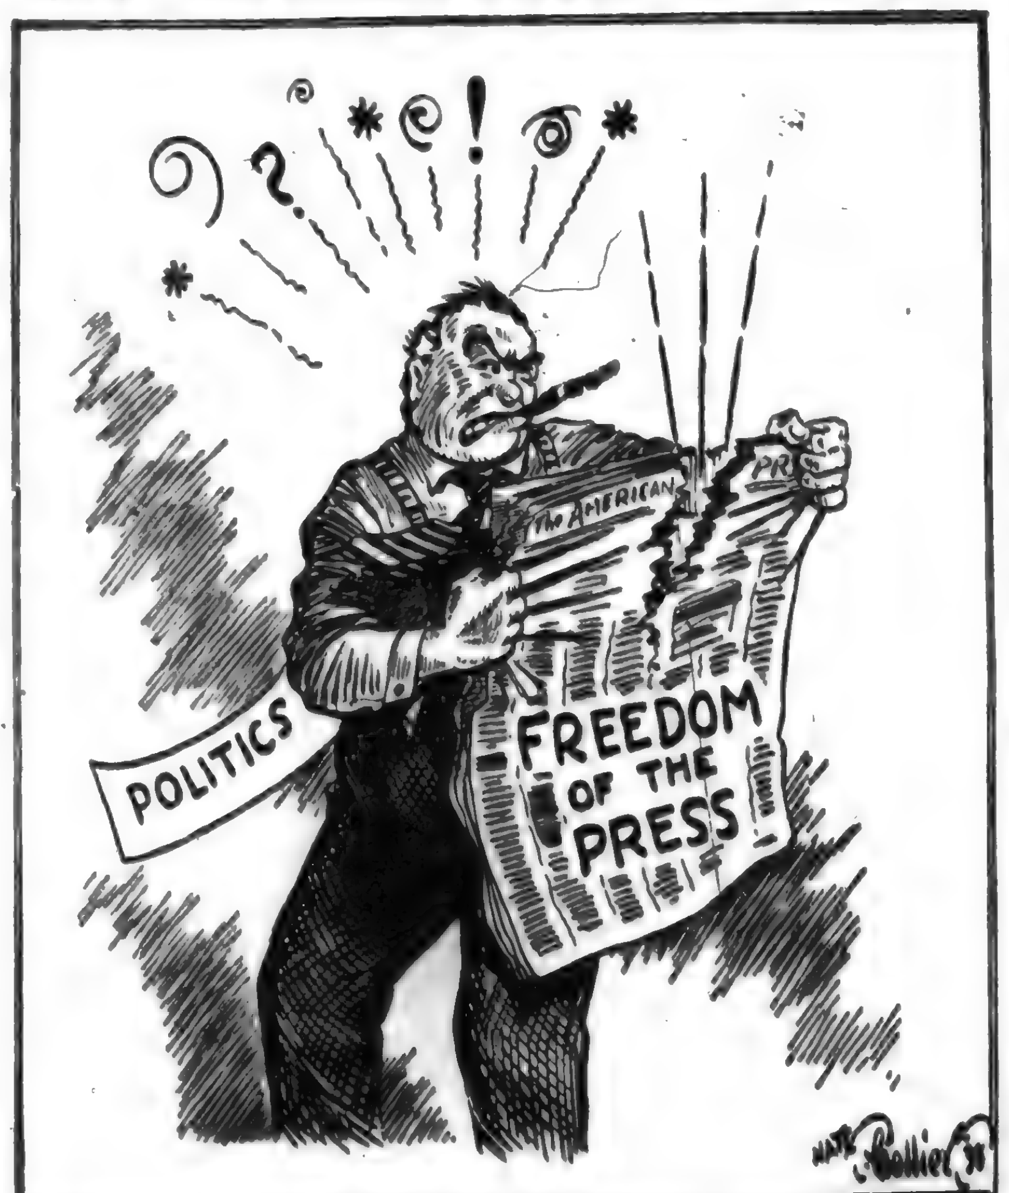
EDITORIAL COMMENT

A burglar can always tell when he is in a bachelor's apartment—the tooth paste isn't squeezed in the middle.

President Roosevelt received a check for $1,010,000, the result of many birthday balls held last January. The check will be used to fight infantile paralysis.

These mental experts at criminal detection will get to be worth a lot more to us when they start pointing them out before they commit the murders.

JUST ANOTHER SCRAP O' PAPER!



A speaker has referred to us as a population on wheels, and all the time most of us thought we were on skids.

Don't confuse them. "Bologna" appeals to the empty stomach and "boloney" appeals to the empty head.

An expert economist on business says the crisis is past, and a lot of others are wondering if he means the patient is dead.

Home life in America is still safe now that nobody has as yet thougnt to patent [illegible] power can-opener for the kitchen.

The young man who puts too much faith in his family tree quite often finds himself without a limb to climb out on.

AND BETTER HEALTH

When the motoring vacation season reached the point a few years ago where it took its place as a billion-dollar industry, no one of the citizens around cared to offer an argument about it. Instead, they viewed it in the light of modern automotive progress and were not surprised.

There is no longer any "auto season." Practically every other industry in the world is touched by it and almost every phase of finance and trade feels its influence some time in the course of a year. But it cannot overlook the many millions of dollars which pour from it to find their way into the educational, social and good health benefits accruing from it. Today, with a demand for millions of summer cottages, roadside cabins, hotel rooms and meals, along with more pretentious taverns and inns, therewise is a vaster insistence for more perfect sanitation. Today, the motoring vacation industry can boast a greater amount invested along this line by all the hotels in any one city in the world and yet the demand is far short of being met in most every part of the nation.

Even though this billion-dollar vacation season is based on a program of pleasure, its health slant is not and must not be lost sight of. It is a vital energizer in that it carries the sick and distressed to all the health resorts and recreation spots known to the American people. It is vital to the well man intent upon keeping well, by providing him with those places concerned with mineral springs fresh from Mother Earth. But, springing up like a mushroom, this health phase is only now catching up with the other automotive features. It is vital in is transportation of the sick and afflicted to these resorts which provide rest and play as well as nursing pain and recuperating from illness. Its health note is now being sounded far and wide at this season of the year. Nothing must be permitted to check it and every effort made to improve it.

FOG AND FLAMES

Fog, the dread enemy of seafaring men, added more victims to the heavy toll of lives it has taken when the coastwise steamer Fairfax rammed and sank the oil tanker Pinthis near Boston in June, 1930. Forty-seven lives were lost in the tragedy. Many more would have died had it not been for the coolheaded sailors and U. S. Marines whose heroic efforts saved many of the panic-stricken passengers.

Several naval men were aboard as passengers when the Fairfax steamed her way across Massachusetts Bay through the fog. There was a sudden crash, followed by a terrific explosion and a volcanic burst of fire.

Terror gripped most of the passengers on the Fairfax. They screamed and ran madly about the decks. Women and children were trampled, and some plunged into the inferno of blazing gasoline floating on the surface of the water. The training of the Navy men and Marines asserted itself and they struggled to calm the milling mob.

One group of enlisted men battled the flames. Others aided passengers who were trapped on the upper deck to the safety of the deck below. One marine climbed the flame-wrapped mast to repair the radio antenna. The entire bow and portside of the Fairfax was a seething furnace.

During the four hours they battled the flames and their subsequent rescue by the steamer Gloucester, bluejackets and marines lived up to the highest traditions of their calling, winning the unstinted praise of passengers and crew alike. They disclaimed all credit, merely doing, as they put it, "what we were expected to do."

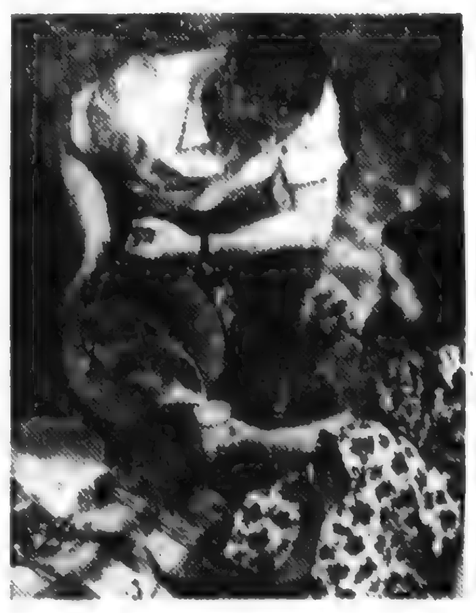
Play Safe July Fourth

Hundreds will be killed or maimed on Independence Day, the National Safety Council predicts. A few of the causes are listed below. Enjoy the Fourth . . . but play safe!

July Fourth is a day of picnics . . . and of picnic accidents. If the gentleman isn't careful, he'll split an artery instead of opening the bottle.



This picnicking couple filled their water bucket at a nearby brook, never thinking it might be contaminated. But it is, and two cases of typhoid will probably result.

Here's one for the books . . . filling a gasoline stove while smoking a cigarette. It looks foolish, and is, but many Independence Day picnickers will try it.

Fourth of July is a favorite day for swimming . . . and drowning. If you're not an excellent swimmer, don't be independent just because it's Independence Day. Don't go in the water right after eating.

If the youngsters MUST have firecrackers, make sure they're small size. You'd better be around to supervise the celebration, too. Children can be awfully foolish with firecrackers. So can some adults, for that matter.

MORTUARY

EULALIA SHILLING

Eulalia Shilling was born to John and Lovina Shilling September 21, 1909 and quietly departed this life at 10:30 Monday morning, June 20, 1938, at the early age of 28 years, 8 months, and 29 days.

Eulalia has always lived in DeKalb County, Spencer Township in the Shilling homestead. She was saved when she was twelve years old and thereby became a member of the Church of God by virtue of a spiritual birth.

Around the age of seventeen years, Eulalia was stricken with a form of paralysis and has been an invalid for almost eleven years. She was very patient and prayerful during this period of affliction.

She leaves to mourn her departure: her mother; one sister, Eunice Zehr; one grandfather, James Kessler, and a host of other relatives, neighbors and friends.

Her father preceded her in death, passing out of this life on Thanksgiving Day, November 28, 1935.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon His love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

The funeral was held from the country home Wednesday afternoon, June 22, with burial in White City Cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. V. A. Chesterman, pastor of the County Line Church of God.

NO FATALATIES OVER HOLIDAY WEEK END

Wouldn't you like to see that headline in your local paper on July 5th? Of course you would. Well, it's up to every one of us to do our part to make it possible.

A careful check to see that your car is in perfect mechanical condition before starting on that trip, extra caution and less speed on the road, adherence to all traffic laws—these are some of the precautions we must observe if we want a holiday week end free from motor vehicle accidents.

There are also other hazards we must consider. Fireworks. Urge the children to be extremely careful when handling them. Swimming. Take extra precautions—don't take unnecessary chances in the water. Boating. Exercise the greatest care while you are in a canoe, rowboat, or other vessel.

Let's not allow the pursuit of pleasure to crowd the thought of safety from our minds. Let's make it a "no fatalaties" holiday.

We've never been able to understand why women as pretty as those in the washing machine ads can't marry men who are able to hire the washing done.

GIRLS' 4-H CLUB WORK NEARS COMPLETION IN DEKALB COUNTY

Girls' 4-H Club work in DeKalb County is rapidly approaching completion week. July 15th has been set as the final date for all projects with exception of Canning. A final visit to the clubs for the month of June by the County 4-H Leader found that all girls were sure their projects would be completed by the completion date.

This year the county has been divided into four sections in order to give the local club leaders more assistance from the county leader. The sections are as follows:

Section I: Fairfield, Richland, Smithfield and the town of Waterloo.

Section II: Newville, Concord and Spencer.

Section III: Stafford, Franklin, Wilmington and the town of Butler.

Section IV: Union, Jackson and Keyser.

Due to the large number represented in the Auburn clubs it was decided best to let them carry on their activities alone.

Three sectional meetings were scheduled for the summer months, two of which have already been held. The purpose of the sectional was to give the leaders more detailed instruction in Judging and Demonstration work. The first sectional which was held the third week in May was merely an organization meeting, but the second which was held June 21, 22, 23 and 24 was a real work out for the County leader, local leaders and Junior leaders. Judging contests were set up and conducted identical to the County Judging event. Judging has for the past few years been one of the under emphasized features in club work. At the close of each sectional Judging contest the leaders and club members voiced their appreciation to be able to take part in such a contest in preparation and preparedness for the county event to be held on August 4th. The results of the sectional meetings may not be so evident this year, but it is a known fact that the principle of Judging is much better in mind and some good is bound to grow from it in the future.

In clothing the girls judged the following: Cotton school dresses for early fall, accessories for a best cotton dress and cotton slips. In Section IV the baking girls judged cookies and cup cakes.

The third week in July will mark the final round of sectional meetings. At this time the girls represented in the section will stage a dress revue, exhibit articles made, baked or canned and give an entertaining program. The public is invited to attend and it is hoped by all that the attendance will be large.

Dates for the meetings are:

Section I—July 26 at East Richland school. An all day meeting beginning at 10:30 with judging of the dress revue.

Section II—July 27 at Spencerville high school. Dress Revue and arrangement of exhibit in the forenoon.

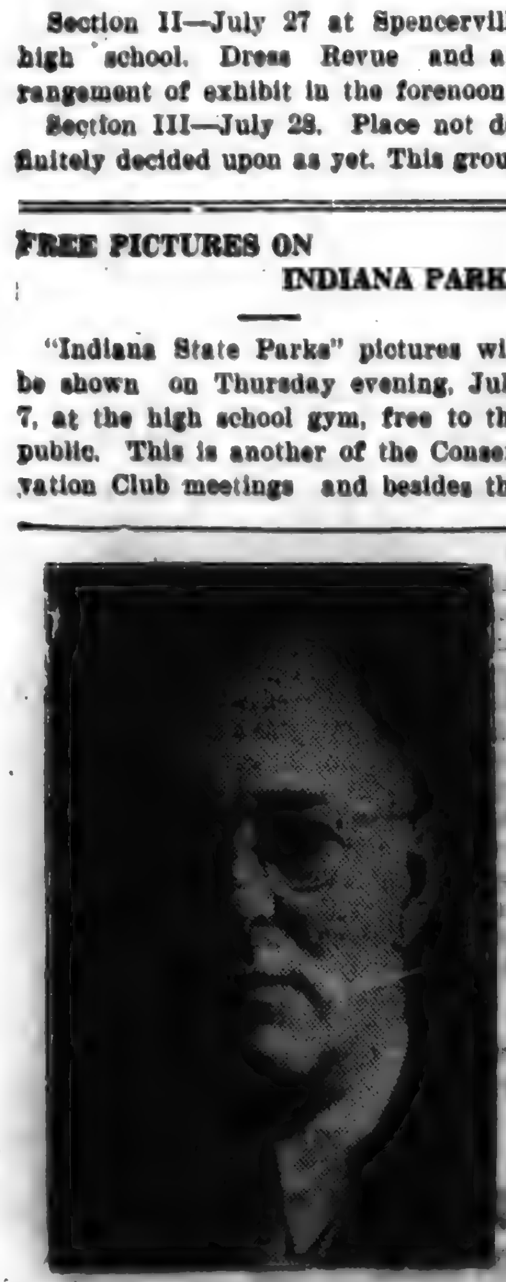
Section III—July 28. Place not definitely decided upon as yet. This group will hold only the dress revue in the sectional. Local Achievement programs will be held by each individual club.

Section IV—August 2nd at Eckhart Park, Auburn. An all day meeting with dress revue in the forenoon.

There will be no judging of project exhibits at the sectional meetings. All project exhibits will be judged at the county show which is the second week in August, however the dress revue will be judged sectionally and two or three of the best costumes represented in each class will be entered in the County Dress Revue on August 4th. The winner in the County will be sent to the State Dress Revue to be held during the State Fair.

FREE PICTURES ON INDIANA PARKS

"Indiana State Parks" pictures will be shown on Thursday evening, July 7, at the high school gym, free to the public. This is another of the Conservation Club meetings and besides the pictures, Mr. Milt Wysong, representing the state department, will talk.



MILT WYSONG

A display of fishing tackle has been promised for this meeting.

Matters of club interest will be talked about.

CHARGES AAA ACT IS ATTEMPT TO "SOVIETIZE" ALL FARMERS

Arthur G. Manning, Kokomo attorney, branded Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace a "virtual dictator" in a talk before 250 farmers and their wives at Peru Friday night as the Miami County group to fight the crop control feature of the AAA was organized.

Manning asserted that Wallace has been given almost unlimited control over the 6,500,000 farmers in the United States and branded the crop control act an attempt to "Sovietize" all the farmers of the country.

He urged the farmers to oppose the compulsory features of the act after he called the agricultural statute the most dangerous piece of farm legislation in the past 50 years.

Under Manning's interpretation, the act gives Wallace the power to limit production of cattle, hogs, poultry and other products if he thinks the prices of grain are affected.

ED LINDLEY PASSED AWAY ON TUESDAY

Ed Lindley, 79 on July 1st, died at the John Gablick home, Tuesday forenoon at 10:25 after only a few hours of serious illness, taking quite sick about 3 o'clock in the morning. For the past year he has been cared for by Mrs. John Gablick and was an invalid most of that time.

Mr. Lindley and wife came to DeKalb County, moving from Waterville, Ohio, on the Lothamer farm, 2 miles east of St. Joe. After residing there for several years they sold their farm and moved to Garrett. Later they returned to St. Joe where Mrs. Lindley died about one year and nine months ago. She was returned to Waterville for burial.

Mr. Lindley has two brothers at Lagro, Ind., and also one sister, Nina Lindley, living at Lagro. One daughter, Mrs. Harley Phillips, of Oak Park, Ill., Mrs. Ethel Likes, niece, of St. Joe, and Charles Lindley, nephew, of Edgerton, O., survive.

BORTHWICK—YOUNG

The marriage of Ronald L. Borthwick, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Borthwick, northwest of St. Joe, and Miss Kathryn Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Young, of near Huntertown, took place Saturday afternoon, July 2, at 3 o'clock at the home of Rev. A. F. Morris, pastor of Cedar Creek Church of the Brethren in Butler Township.

The couple was attended by the bride's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Shefkey, of Ft. Wayne, and the groom's aunt and husband, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Anderson, of Chicago, Ill. The bride wore a dress of blue carrying a beautiful bouquet of sweet peas and delphinium.

The young people both attended school at St. Joe, the bride moving to near Huntertown 2 years ago.

They went to housekeeping in their newly furnished home south of Auburn.

A 6 o'clock three-course wedding dinner was served Saturday evening at the home of the groom's parents, to the following guests, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Young, Huntertown; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Young, south of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Shefkey, of Fort Wayne; Jimmie and Evalyn Smith, of Rochester, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Anderson, Chicago, and Russell Borthwick. Mrs. Curtis Hursey assisted with the serving.

The young couple has the best wishes of their large circle of friends.

Stationery 10c per package at News office.

Mrs. Harley Like is at Adrian, Mich., until August 1, a guest in the Wayne Graber home. Harley came home last week from a week's vacation there and reports a fishing trip into Northern Michigan, and he said they had wonderful success, and they were large ones too.

Thousands Visit Indiana's Lincoln Memorial

BELOW: bronze logs and fireplace marking site of Lincoln cabin.

Indiana's memorial to Abraham Lincoln and his mother, located along Road 162 among the rolling hills of Spencer County, attracts a growing number of visitors each year as a shrine of national interest. It was here that Lincoln spent fourteen years of his boyhood and the area is rich in anecdote and tradition.

Within the memorial area, which was a part of the farm Thomas Lincoln acquired when he moved his family from Kentucky, are the graves of Nancy Hanks Lincoln, mother of the Great Emancipator, and the site of the cabin in which they lived. The grave, located on a wooded knoll and surrounded by a simple railing, has a peaceful setting not unlike that of a century ago.

On a neighboring hilltop, reached by a winding path, is the more formal marker designating the site of the Lincoln cabin. Surrounded by a low stone wall, the cabin site is designated by bronze replicas of the foundation logs and the stones of the fireplace. In the preparation of this site, workers uncovered the original hearthstone and these have been relaid as a part of the memorial.

The grave is the scene of an annual pilgrimage, sponsored by the Booneville Press Club and attended by hundreds. The program this year is being held on Sunday, July 10, and in addition to the formal addresses will include the placing of wreaths on the grave by several organizations.

Across the highway from the memorial area, the Department of Conservation has established Lincoln State Park with an area of more than seventeen hundred acres to serve the recreational needs of the community and the visitors. In the park is a beautiful lake, stocked with game fish; several miles of drives and hiking trails; attractive picnic and camping areas with their shelter houses, outdoor fireplaces and other facilities, and a series of hatchery ponds for the production of game fish.

Both the park and memorial are easily accessible from all parts of the state over improved state highways.

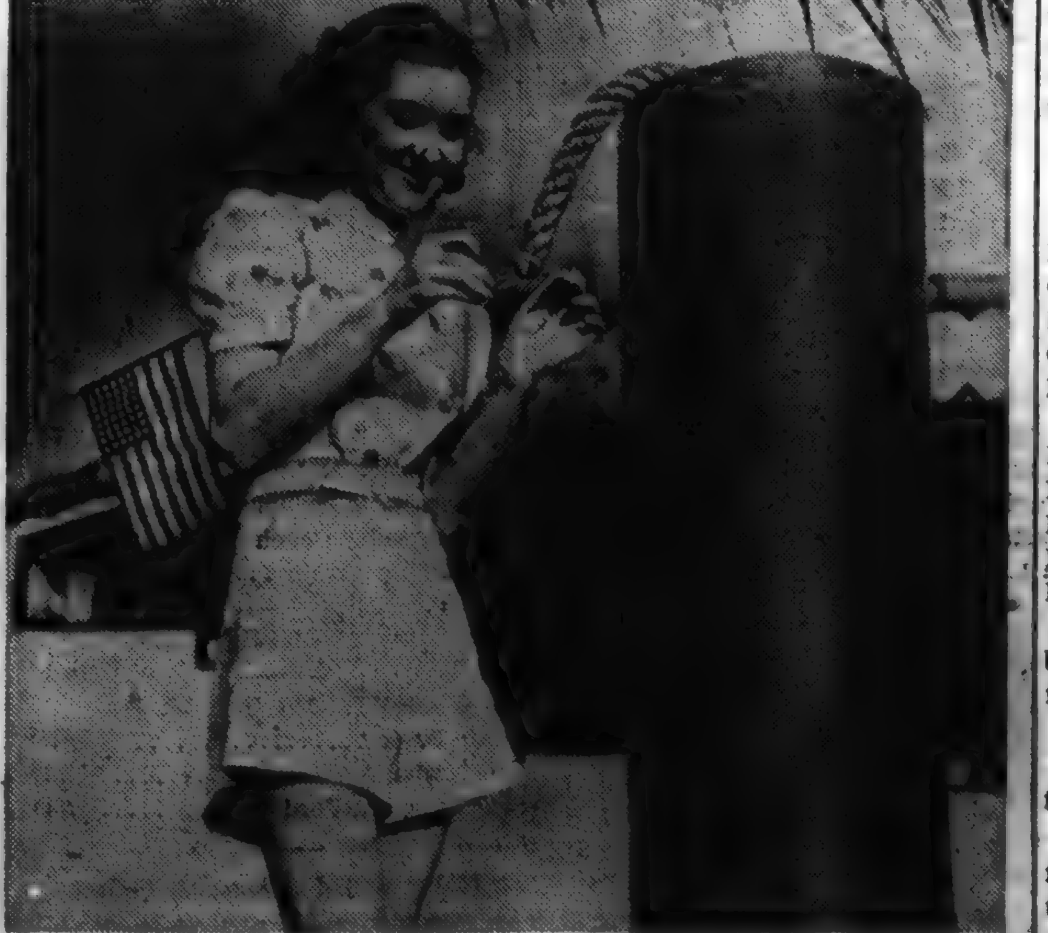
MORE FUR TAKEN BUT PRICES WERE LOWER

Nearly a thousand more pieces of fur were taken by Hoosier trappers during the past season but the selling prices were considerably less than during the 1936-37 season, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, reports.

Reports filed by the fur buyers who operated in Indiana during the trapping season, show a total of 711,801 pelts taken, more than half of which were muskrat. This represented an increase of approximately ninety thousand pelts over the preceding season when muskrats also formed more than half of the total catch. Trappers received $511,471.11 for their furs.

The tabulated reports from the more than five hundred licensed furbuyers, show that they bought 49,582 skunk hides; 170,039 opossum hides; 433,116 muskrat hides; 32,206 raccoon hides; 19,234 mink hides, and 7,624 fox hides. This represented an increase in all species of hides with the exception of skunk and fox with twenty thousand fewer skunk hides and fifteen hundred fewer fox hides purchased from trappers.

The lower prices for fur were forecast in advance of the trapping season, based on economic conditions in Europe and the stocks of fur carried over from the preceding year.



And boy what a cracker. St. Joe and in fact this entire community can be really and truly thankful, that no serious accident happened to its young during the past week of celebration. But we did have plenty of noise. Those tiny crackers were as loud as any 6-inch cracker when we were boys.

TRACTOR ACCIDENT NEARLY FATAL TO OSCAR HARRIS

Oscar Harris, 45, residing one-half mile east of Concord, on the old Jacob Baker farm, had a close call with death Tuesday morning at 11:30 in an accident.

Mr. Harris and his two sons, James and George, were cutting wheat. The tractor pulling a binder had stopped near the highway and Mr. Harris stepped in front of it to crank it. He did not know the tractor was in gear and when the engine started the machines were headed for a 15-foot embankment. To save them, Mr. Harris, leaped onto the tractor.

However, the effort was futile, as the tractor and binder plunged over the embakment, alighting in the roadway. Mr. Harris was found on the groud between the two machines. He was rescued and was rushed in the Kinsey ambulance to the Sacred Heart hospital in Garrett, where his injuries were treated in the operating room.

The worst injury is to the left hand. The bones were all broken and the tendons cut. A laceration was found between the little figner and second finger on the right hand. Mr. Harris also suffered a scalp cut and a cut on one leg. His condition is not considered dangerous. Mr. Harris is employed by the Baltimore & Ohio as a carpenter, but remained off duty Tuesday in order to help with the wheat cutting.

Friends gathered Wednesday morning and righted the tractor and binder and were completing the harvesting.

URGE PROTECTION OF INDIANA'S WILDLIFE

Greater protection for the young birds, rabbits and other species of wildlife is urged by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, as a means of improving hunting throughout the state.

At this seaeson of the year thousands of young quail and other ground-nesting birds are destroyed by mowers and other farm machinery operating in the fields along highways, a loss that could be reduced by the use of flushing bars. This is any device which will cause the parent bird to flush and warn the operator of a mower to raise the sickle until he passes the nest.

Additional damage to the state's wildlife crop results from the mistaken interest of persons who disturb the nests of birds and other wildlife or those who catch young birds, rabbits or other forms of wildlife to take home as pets. Taking any species of game during the closed season is a violation of the laws enacted for its protection while the bird or animal usually dies due to the lack of proper food and care.

Reports being made by the game wardens indicate that traffic on the highways takes a heavy toll of wildlife. Rabbits are among the chief traffic victims seen by the wardens. Motorists are being asked to avoid striking rabbits and other wildlife on the highways whenever consistent with safe driving.

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

How long is it since you had the steering mechanism on your car checked? Is your automobile hard to steer?

One of a number of conditions may be responsible. The tires may be oft; the steering gear may need grease; tie-rod bushings may need lubrication. Many other items should be checked, but these are some of the most important.

If, after checking these possibilities, you find the difficulty still there, better consult a mechanic. Very probably some part of the steering mechanism on the front axle is bent.

It is absolutely essential that steering apparatus be in perfect working order at all times.

It's smart to be careful.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

SAVED ITALIAN VESSEL

Loaded with explosives and other combustible materials, the Italian ship Delaide lay at anchor in the harbor of Callao, Peru, in June, 1873. The ship caught fire and threatened every moment to explode, incurring the loss of lives and the spreading of the flames to other vessels in the crowded harbor.

As the smoke curled upward from the vessel's decks and its crew battled desperately with the flames, the distressed ship attracted the attention of other vessels anchored nearby. Among them was the American warship St. Mary's on a friendly visit to Peru.

A call for volunteers among the American sailors and U. S. Marines of the St. Mary's met with an immediate response. Soon the ship's cutters were lowered and their crews pulled away for the flaming ship heedless of the risk of losing their lives in an effort to save a foreign merchant vessel.

After some severe exertion, accompanied by great danger, the Americans succeeded in extinguishing the flames, fully aware that at any moment the entire cargo might explode, sending the Italian crew as well as volunteers into oblivion. When the danger had passed, the marines and sailors returned to the safety of their own ship.

The King of Italy, through his minister of foreign affairs, conveyed the appreciation of the Italian government to the brave officers, seamen and marines who had taken part in this endeavor, and for their "gallant and skillful services" in lending their aid to a friendly nation.

Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Freeburn were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lester and children, of Ft. Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reasoner and son, of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham went to Leipsic, O., Wednesday to see the latter's brother, Clyde Foltz, who is in poor health. Chas. Bassett drove through for them.

A FARM WOMAN'S WOES

The arrival of the warm season, summer with its sunshine, flowers and vacations of carefree days, may mean a lot to some people but to the average farm wife it only means a lot of additional woe that no other season of the year brings her.

The farm wife can't reckon her time in so many straight hours of labor, with Saturday afternoons and Sundays off. Nor can she, and here is where her greatest woe comes in, even count on Sunday as a day of rest with her family, a day of peace and quietude about the house, with maybe a few hours to read and a few hours to spend in social conversation with neighbors from nearby farms who come in for a little while along in the afternoon. No. So far as the farm woman is concerned all of that is "out." Pass most rural residences nowadays on a Sunday and you'll quickly see why. Lolling about in the yard and playing all over the barnyard you'll see from a half-dozen to a score or more men, women and children, and the two or three—often a half-dozen—autos parked in the driveway, noisy evidence as to why "the good old summer time" isn't so good for the farm wife who is the victim of "city cousins" who have spent a big part of the week figuring out where they could drive to on Sunday for a chicken dinner. Maybe she hasn't laid eyes on them during the Fall and Winter months. But just as soon as summer approaches she knows her so-called day of rest, and often a big part of her Saturday in addition, is going to be spent in a red-hot kitchen cooking up a big dinner for a lot of people whose friendship always seems to take on a warmer glow as chicken dinner days draw on.

When they're moving heaven and earth at Washington to do something for the unemployed they ought to do something for the one who is too much employed—they ought to try to find some sort of relief for the farm woman whose woes begin when the "city cousins' start their season of chicken dinner chasing.

RADIO TROUBLE

I must be obvious to owners of radio sets around St. Joe aid in every nook and corner of this nation for that matter, that radio is going to come in for a period of outside investigation and probable inquiry every so often. There is too prominent a position occupied by radio in its effect on public opinion for it to be disregarded, and the fact is there have already been numerous instances of examinations of this nature. But radio seems to be bringing on its own trouble. A great many programs are too stupid to be appreciated by the average intelligent listener. There is too much advertising and far too much of it is misleading and harmful. The majority of complaints are reported to come from distraught persons, largely parents, who have been pestered to death to buy brands of breakfast foods by their children who listen to blood and thunder programs appealing to the young. Radio has too many good things to offer the public to allow itself to cause a disturbance and invoke censure for its too ordinary types of entertainment.

UP TO "ROAD HOGS"

There's a report circulating through some of the automobile organizations of the country to the effect that the legislaures of a number of states, unable to reduce auto fatalities in any other way, are contemplating laws forcing manufacturers to place gadgets on cars limiting their speed to a certain mile per hour. Byond that they would not be able to travel. Sounded out with a view to placing the blame for even a discussion of such drastic legislation, numerous safety experts declare that it is all traced directly to the "road hogs." Refusal to abide by speed laws when it is humanly possible for them to violate them and escape punishment, speed devices mean nothing to them. Regardless of the safety of others, the "road hog" has usurped highways that do not belong to him. The time is here to make him return them.

COURTING WITH CANDY

Most any wife will tell you that when she was a girl almost every boy who called to court her carried along a little sack of candy—boxes were not too numerous to be noticeable but too expensive to have the call. Yet, with as much sugar in candy then as now, the total demand has climbed from a few million of dollars to a total of close to 1,600,000,000 pounds last year and about twenty per cent of that amount not for courting but inside-the-family use. Changes in our eating habits have brought a demand for candy to the point undreamed of in the average man's boyhood days. Today housewives often use it in making desserts, and men who once spurned it as a childish luxury now treat themselves to it most lavishly, while some carry it in preference to the all-essential plug of tobacco The modern miss must get her sweets from the family bon-bon dish on the sideboard but we wonder if, after all, it tastes as sweet as it did when Dad used to carry it home to her mother in the sack, member.) Somehow it strikes us that member.) Somehow it strikes us that the average young man is missing a good trick when he doesn't go on a courting excursion armed with candy as his ammunition, just to see if it has any advantages over other courting methods.

SUMMER PICTURE STORIES

In picturing summer romances, keep the romance! Don't let your subjects pose stiffly or smile at the camera!

IT'S a camera axiom that every picture should tell a story. Will you remember that this summer when you are snapping pictures of friends and their summer activities?

Nothing is easier than to get a member of your crowd to "stand over by that bush while I snap your picture." But that sort of picture-taking doesn't produce the best kind of pictures—because such pictures don't "say" anything.

It's easy to go on a picnic with Bill and Janet Smith and get snapshots of them standing by a bush or a tree, smiling for the camera. But it's more fun, and makes better pictures, to catch Janet feeding Bill a huge slice of chocolate cake, or get Bill helping Janet over a barbed-wire fence, or get the two of them, heads close together, laughing as they set the picnic table or cloth.

Such pictures tell stories—and there are hundreds of such story-picture chances on every summer jaunt. Try your hand at picturing summer fun and summer romance (there's always plenty of it) from a "story" viewpoint. Don't let your subjects appear camera-conscious—catch them when they're busy doing something, and watch your pictures "wake up and live."

There's no need to waste film, but if it takes two or three pictures, or more, to tell a story properly—go ahead and shoot them. Film is not expensive, so don't risk missing a good picture.

Hogs were scarce and sold on an active market in this week's auction. The top of $9.10 was paid for hogs in a weight range of 160 to 180. One consignment of light Yorks averaging 130 pounds and showing unusual quality brought $9.50.

Fat sows $6.85 to $7.10. Boars $4.25 to $4.80. There was a scarcity of feeder pigs only a small per cent of the buyers being supplied.

Calves weer of good quality and made a top of $9.50 with a liberal sort. The bulk going at $8.75 to $9.25. All lower grades were strong and active.

Cattle sold higher and faster than for the past two weeks. Grass steers $6.00 to $7.25; heifers $5.60 to $6.50. (Intended for last week)

Perfect hay making weather made receipts of livestock slightly lower than last week, this condition being general some new slaughter house buyers were on our local market creating an active demand for all slaughter aimals, hogs and veals seemed to profit most from these additional orders.

Hogs made a top of $9.10 this price being paid for weights from 150 to 225, a few rather thin lots in this price range changing hands at $8.70 to $8.85. Fat sows $7.10 to $7.20. Boars were all taken by Chicago buyers at from $4.60 to $4.75. Feeder pigs are still selling at strong prices on good demand, lighter weights showing more action than the 90 to 125 pound weights.

Veals topped at $9.40 selling too high for dealers and order buyers, they were about evenly divided between direct slaughter buyers from Toledo and Chicago. The in-between kinds selling near top prices, very few going below $8.00.

In the sheep department some ewes with lambs sold from $7.00 to $9.00 per head, fat ewes for slaughter up to $3.20 per cwt.

Calves were of good quality and stock with prices about in line with last week. Some grass steers $7.00 to $7.80, heifers off grass and grain $6.50 to $7.80. Most of the butcher cows in a price range of $4.00 to $5.00. Bulls $6.00 to $6.20.

Wheat harvest and hay making were again in full swing Tuesday after a week of heavy rains. In many places the fields were flooded, destroying the crop completely. Indiana farmers are advised to sow their bottom lands with soy beans, buckwheat or millett, which are short season crops and would mature with July planting.

John Lochner, of Clermont, Florida, called on The News force, Tuesday morning. The Lochners are here visiting relatives until Thursday morning when they will return home. They attended the N. E. A. convention last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Koch, of Ft. Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch, spent a very pleasant Fourth with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henderson at Newaygo, Mich. Mr. Henderson expects to open another store at Grant, Mich., this will be managed by their son, Frank.

Tustison and son, Keith, enjoyed a get-together party in the Hamilton home. The Hamilton boys made the trip of 703 miles Friday starting from Lincoln at 4 A. M. arriving here at 10:00 P. M.

The rush expected at the offices of the DeKalb County welfare board on the third floor of the court house Friday did not materialize. It was the first day of the lowering of the age limit for old age assistance from seventy to sixty-five years and scores of applications immediately were anticipated. However, only twenty applicants appeared. It was deemed probable that many prospective applicants expected a rush and deferred filing on that account. The estimate on the number to apply in this county was 225, with 175 to be eventually placed on the rolls. Investigation of the new cases, it was believed, would require the remainder of the year.

Mrs. Nan Lysher and son, Edgar, had as their week end and Fourth of July guests, Mrs. Rose Coy, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Melter and son, Jerry, all of Cleveland, O. THRESHING RING TO START OPERATION MONDAY

The threshing ring, beginning with Charles Morr, as the customer on the east end and with Clarence Berry on the west, will start operations, west of Concord next Monday. This ring is made up of 14 farmers. While they do not own their separator, Lewis Wills contracts for the ring.

At their meeting last week, the farmers elected their captain and made complete plans for the operation of the ring. Each farmer put in seven sacks to start with, the seven farmers on the east take their teams and wagons to seven farmers on the west, and vice versa. Each man carries his dinner and they quite work at 7 o'clock DST., and they are home for supper.

When the ring has been completed, they meet and every man pays in according to his crop, and receives his proportion in return. Thus the man with a small crop is on the same footing as the farmer with a large crop.

When the ring starts operation, every farmer is taken care before the machine is allowed to leave for outside work.

The farmers all like this plan and the ladies seem to like it too, as they are relieved of the cooking of meals over hot stoves.

There was a large offering of butcher bulls showing more weight and quality than we have had for many weeks, the top was $6.20 with several head making $6.00. Dnnes State Park--Indianas "Seashore Resort"

Stretching for three miles along the Southern tip of Lake Michigan, Indiana Dunes State Park possesses a magnificent beach and all the vacation facilities to be found at most of the "seashore" resorts. Located near Chesterton on Roads 49 and 20, the park is easily accessible from any part of the state.

The bathing beach, constantly supervised by experienced lifeguards, is famous for its expanse of fine, white sand and is an ideal playground for children since it slopes gently into the water. It is a colorful sight during the vacation season, dotted with beach umbrellas and bathers whose suits reflect all colors of the rainbow. A first-aid station, located on the beach and supervised by a physician, provides emergency treatment for bathers and park visitors.

Also located at the edge of the beach is the Pavilion and the Arcade Hotel. Across the park, back of the dunes, is the Duneside Inn, where cottages are available. Reservations should be made in advance and direct with the hotel or inn.

While the beach is the major attraction for the thousands of visitors, many of them find the winding trails through the heavily-wooded areas, the mountainous sand dunes with their shifting contours, and the opportunity to study a wide range of plant and bird species—an inducement to return time after time.

This park has an extensive picnic area equipped with tables, benches, shelters and comfort stations. In the wooded camping areas for tents and trailers, are similar facilities. There is also a group camp where hundreds of boys and girls are enjoying healthful outdoor vacations this summer.

Dunes State Park is a distinctive part of Indiana, attractive at all seasons of the year to the visitor.

CASTING TEAM COMPETES WITH GARRETT

The local casting team went to Garret Monday evening to compete with the Creek Chub team in a friendly casting bout and by appearances of the score sheet the local team held its own pretty good for a young, inexperienced team.

The total score for St. Joe was 562 points while Garrett totaled 659, a lead of 97 points.

Of the Garrett team G. Hollis and Jack Barnes tied for first with a score of 91 points.

The local boys were treated royally and the three high scorers were given very nice pirzes, G. Haver, 79, was given a box containing three artificial baits; Leonard Curie, 77, he received $1.25 line, and Roscoe Moore, 74, received a $1.25 line.

This was the first experience for the boys in casting with out of town contestants, and while some had experience with back lashes, that is liable to happen to the most experienced, without any reason.

The game is to hit the targets, with the casting bait, stationed at 40, 50, 60, 70, and 80 feet from the dock. Each caster is given 10 chances in the round with a possible 100 points as a perfect score. Z. Haver and Jack Barnes, both from Garrett, struck the bull's eye or targets, 5 times out of 10 tries. Charles Coburn, G. Haver, Leonard Curie, Clay Coburn and Walter Ervin had two perfect casts to their credit.

Carl Akins was called back to Moline Ill., leaving Wednesday afternoon to report for work Thursday morning.

Music was provided by the Misses Ruby and Gladys Shoudel, of south of Auburn, vocalists, and Miss Lorraine Stroh, of Waterloo, accordion player. Miss Ruby Shoudel is secretary of the council.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

BULLETS AND BANDITS

Driving the enemy ever backward in the jungles of Santo Domingo, the U. S. Maries finally faced a row of trenches where the bandits were preparing to make a last stand. The last long mile had been typical of guerrilla warfare, the two forces taking advantage of any shelter they could find. It was a hot July day in 1916.

At last the marines were out in the open, and it was up to them to push their drive home or fail in their efforts to defeat a foe who had contested every foot of their advance.

The enemy trenches had been dug on a hill in a naturally strong position, and precautions had been taken to remove any fresh earth which might betray their exact location to the marines. From this point they kept up a withering fire with rifles and old-fashioned breech-loaders, which they were using with a fair degree of effectiveness.

Directly in front of the enemy position Corporal Glowin placed the machine gun of which he had charge behind a large log, lying across the road, and immediately opened fire. He was struck once, but continued firing his gun. A second bullet hit him and he had to be dragged back.

At this juncture Sergeant Roswell Winans arrived with a Colt gun and commenced firing. The bandit fire had become heavier. Bullets were striking the log and around the marines. Seven men were wounded and one killed within twenty feet. Then the Colt jammed.

Without a moment's hesitation, Sergeant Winans coolly stood up and repaired the gun under fire, miraculously escaping from the hail of bullets. He stuck to his post until the bandits had fled, and both he and Glowin were awarded Gongressional Medals of Honor.

Theer is nothing a man likes more than having a woman make over him, and nothing he likes less than having her make him over.

Women are now wearing dresses of a material they call "banana cloth." That should make something nice to slip on when you're in a hurry.

Why is it that when some women can't think up anything for their husbands to do they tell him to go and get his hair cut?

The only objection some fellows have to these modern electric carpet sweepers is that they can't get a straw out of it to clean their pipe.

Doctors say that every boil is worth five dollars. But we want it known that we are not taking any on subscriptions.

They arrested a Toledo, Ohio man for driving recklessly, charging that he was kissing his wife. Fact is, that sort of recklessness should be encouraged.

The biggest optimist is the man who thinks that after mother and daughter have learned to drive the family car he can have it any time he wants it.

You usually can tell a failure in life by the amount of advice he gives others on how to succeed.

No matter how disreputable a man looks, he never appears quite so horrible as just before he fixes himself up before breakfast.

Another thing you can't make children understand, is how grown-up people can get up in the morning without being called.

Show us the man who always wants to be on the right side of everything and we will show you one who is mighty hard to satisfy.

It used to be that a newspaper would get sued for printing a picture exposing the female person. But now it only gets sued for printing the wrong name under it.

Why is it a man will take it as a compliment if you say he is level-headed, but he will want to cut your throat from ear to ear if you say he is flat-headed.

BACK IN THE FOLD

Thousands of flower-lovers around St. Joe will learn with interest that the geranium is coming back, thus adding, declares the editor of the Dayton, O., Journal, another familiar touch to the window sills that millions of people will delight in seeing there. "Pelargorium" we are told to call it, rather than geranium. But that is he name we learned to call them in our childhood, and that is the name that it will doubtless remain.

There on the window-sill, the Ohio editor points out, as well as nearer the stove in chilly climatures, they bloomed in radiance under the light of the white-shaded kerosene lamps. Memories blend in the blossoms of the geraniums with the rose which spilled over the pale gray Brussels carpet and bordered the rug with the running stag woven upon it—a rug which lay before the grate, (we did not call it a fireplace then.)

Many of those articles have disappeared with the advent of the more modern furniture, but the flower has come back in newer and more pleasing colors. The landscape gardener is using it more for decoration than in many years. One of the prettiest sights in a stream-lined kitchen of today is the touch of a pot of geraniums on the window-sill. A very well-dressed society matron appeared in evening clothes with a corsage of, guess what—geraniums! Both cheered and blessed is the gardener who can boast of grandmother's favorite flower.

IT PAYS TO PAY

In a town the size of St. Joe business may be ever so good, as far as retail advertising is concerned, and the community still may suffer from what is known as "poor collections." A merchant buys stock in the expectation of enlarging it when those goods are disposed of and he gets the money for them. The wholesaler he bought from, and the factories from whom they bought make their base production figures and estimate their future profits on the strength of what the retailer is going to do in the matter of prompt payment. So it goes in a circle; when everybody pays everybody can buy. During the summer, when your general overhead should be lower than at any other time of the year, try going on the cash down principle as far as you can. If you feel you must resort to credit then figure in advance the earliest possible date on which you can pay the bill—then pay it if the heavens fall! You'll find yourself better off for your credit is strengthened, your community benefits and money is circulating to make it easier to get back your proportionate share of it.

MAKING VACATIONS PAY

At this season of the year we skip the political and war talk to discuss with our neighbor our vacation plans; where and when we go and how long we expect to be away. Peoples ideas differ as widely in regard to vacations as in other matters of moment. And their ideas differ as widely as to where they will spend these vacations. There are always some of us who can't get away for a long stay but there are always most of us who manage a short auto trip to break up the monotony of summer heat. However brief our journey, be the excursion an expenisve one or a less costly week-end jaunt, we can profit by observation with no additional cost. It doesn't have to be an expensive event to make it an enjoyable and instructive one. There are ways of depriving yourself of the real foundations of a beneficial vacation by previously wearing yourself out physically in preparation for your trip. Those "where did you put this" and "where did you pack that' followed by "last year I had it" and "this year I used it," all tends to weaken our morals before the journey actually begins. If you have selected a spot far from home and drive unceasingly for an entire day without a let-up and at a rapid speed, you are half-dead behind the steering-wheel when they shout "here we are."

The St. Joe man who gets the most out of his vacation prepares for it in moderation, drives at a reasonable pace, stops often for a breathing spell and makes it a point to observe as he drives. If he is a farmer he notices the new fads and experiments in farming; if he is in the building trades he watches the architecture of new structures in towns and cities he passes through. If a machinist, he inspects the new labor-saving devices used elsewhere. By close observance he finds it easy to become interested in every section he visits and upon his return home, tired yet physically and mentally rested, he has a headful of valuable pointers. Why not make your vacation pay?

STARTLING FIGURES

Back in the days when a St. Joe citizen who carried life insurance had to die to get it, long rows of insurance figures didn't mean a thing to him whenever they appeared in print. Today insurance statistics of every kind interest millions of newspaper readers. Why not, when you can talk to 64,000,000 people who will be interested as policy holders? Surely the average man's eyes must pop open when he learns there are not only this large number of policy holders in this country but that they are carrying $170,000,000,000 in life insurance. To most every man in America, along with several million relatives, insurance is bound to be an even bigger thing tomorrow than it was today. And for all time to come there is going to be deep interest in insurance figures.

Since the government now deems it the proper thing to care for so many of its citizens in sickness, in idleness and in old age, it is going to be interesting to watch what effect, if any, this government paternalism has on this good old American practice of laying something aside for a rainy day, for old-age, or for care of the family upon the death of the bread-winner.

If this new social order reduces the number and amount of our insurance policies, or if it results in a decrease in our savings accounts, then there is danger that we are sacrificing the virtues of old-fashioned American thrift for the fleshpots of today, only. And such a development would be a distinct loss to our strength as a nation.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURES ON THE FARM

Everywhere on a farm there are pictures—simple, pleasing snapshots that will give your albums new appeal.

Use the Quick Service of THE NEWS in the developing of your next roll of films.

PICTURE SETTINGS

In your springtime pictures, use blossoms and flowers to help get the "feel" of the season.

IN TAKING outdoor pictures of people, are you careful to get the "feel of the season" into each picture, by proper selection of background and surroundings?

An outdoor picture without such "feel" is like a stage without scenery—or, worse, with the wrong scenery. For instance, some of us will take a springtime shot of a child in the yard, with the garage or back steps as a background—when the child could just as easily have been pictured kneeling beside a row of jonquils, bending over and sniffing one. In the latter case, how much more pleasing, and meaningful, the picture would be!

In your Maytime pictures, why not associate people with blossoms and the early flowers? In summer pictures, emphasize the deep blue of the sky and white masses of cloud by using a color filter on the lens. In autumn, let your pictures show the withering leaves and brown fields, with gray skies or billowy clouds hovering over, as backgrounds for your pictures. And in winter, make full use of the snow, and bare branches against the sky.

Try to work into each of your outdoor pictures some feature, even if a mere detail, that gives definite indication of the season. Make it an essential part of the picture, so that folks who look at your snapshots can "feel" the time of year. It seems like a small point, but you will be surprised when you see how much it adds to the pictures that come out of your camera.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

FAITHFUL AND FEARLESS

The hot tropical sun blazed down on a group of fighting U. S. Marines in Cuba on an afternoon in June, 1898. They had driven the Spanish outposts back from their position and had found a temporary breathing spot in the shadow of the Cuzoc Hills.

Out of the blue waters of the bay the U. S. S. Dolphin was steaming toward a point opposite the marines to assist in the rout of the enemy. From the vessel's position the marines ashore could not definitely be distinguished from the Spaniards.

Suddenly the gunboat sent a shower of shells directly toward the spot where the marines were attempting to rally their forces against a foe which greatly outnumbered them. The Dolphin's crew had mistaken the marines for the enemy. Someone had to signal the vessel at once. A young marine sergeant, named John H. Quick, volunteered.

Standing on a ridge and fully exposed to the Spanish fire, he made three attempts to warn the ship before his wig-wag signals were seen. Shots splashed up the sand around his feet and clipped the branches of a tree overhead. Eventually the Dolphin changed the direction of its fire. Quick was awarded a Medal of Honor.

Later this courageous marine faced starvation during a strenuous campaign in the remote and hostile island of Samar in the Philippines. He played a heroic part in the memorable landing of our naval forces at Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1914, for which he was highly commended, and eventually reached the battlefields of France.

Twenty years, almost to the day, after he dared death and Spanish bullets in Cuba, he volunteered to take a load of ammunition into a town near Belleau Wood, over a road swept by artillery and machine gun fire, winning two more decorations for his feat. Quick died soon after the World War. No brighter name than his illuminates the Log of the U. S. Marines.

Mrs. Arthur Woodcox, of Auburn, was in town Wednesday.

INDEPENDENT PROPHETIC BIBLE CONFERENCE

Methodist Protestant Church To Be Opened

Rev. W. D. Koehnlein, pastor of the St. Joe Circuit, in conjunction with the local trutsees has given permission for the church to be used for evangelistic and Bible teaching purposes. Rev. Arthur E. Bloomfield, of Butler, and Rev. Kenneth Neuenschwander, graduate of Moody Bible Institue will conduct a series of meetings on Bible Prophecy as it relates to our times, beginning Monday evening, July 18 at 8 o'clock. The meetings will be held every night except Saturday for two weeks.

Mr. Neuenschwander will conduct a young peoples choir. All the young people of the community are invited to come and sing. Mr. Bloomfield is the author of a number of booklets on Bible Prophecy. Many of the unusual happenings in the world today will be discussed in the light of the Prophets. Some of the sermon subjects will be: Daniel's Vision of World Empires, How Hitler is Fulfilling Prophecy, Antichrist and World Dictatorship, The Church Faces Apostasy, The Resurrection, After the Resurrection, What? The Great Tribulation, The Judgment, Where We are Living in God's Plan of the Ages. Mr. Bloomfield uses large colored charts to illustrate some of his talks.

The Methodist Protestant Church has been closed for two years. Although regular church services are not contemplated, these meetings will be welcomed by many as an opportunity to attend services in their own church again. The Rev. W. D. Koehnlein will be in attendance at some of the meetings and delegations from neighboring towns are expected.

Manufacturers are improving cars every year. Highway commissions of all states are improving roads. But the human being does not want to be improved in his ability to drive and walk carefully.

People are still trying to compete with trains at railroad crossings. Many motorists still claim the right of way after an accident. Many still insist they can pass other cars on hills, curves, and dangerous crossings. Too many motorists feel that after they once start to cross an intersection the pedestrian has absolutely no right.

The improvement in cars and highways goes on, but the increased amount of horsepower in an automobile does not justify the decreased use of horse sense by people.

It's up to the individual, whenever he takes hold of that wheel, to drive safely and to drive courteously.

POKAGON STATE PARK--An All-year Playground.....

right: Potawatomi Inn as seen from the trail over Dryer Hill.

Bordering Lake James, third largest of the Indiana lakes, is Pokagon State Park with its thousand acres of rolling hills and thick timber—an ideal, all-year playground for the entire family.

Pokagon State Park, named for one of the most famous chiefs of the Potawatomi Indians who once ruled this area, is four miles north of Angola on Road 27 and then one mile west on Road 127. It is easily accessible over improved state highways from any part of Indiana, Northern Ohio and Souther Michigan.

Lake James and connecting Snow Lake form an attractive background for Pokagon Park at all seasons of the year. During the summer months park visitors enjoy swimming, boating and other aquatic sports along with some of Indiana's best fishing. In the winter the ice-coated lakes privide skating, ice-boating, sail-skating and hockey while the snow-covered hills are well suited for skiing, tobogganing and sleighing.

The park has many wooded acres through which hiking trails and bridle paths form a network carrying the visitor over hills, through pleasant valleys and along the lake. Along the lake are shaded picnic and camping areas with shelter houses, cooking ovens, drinking water and comfort stations. Potawatomi Inn, with its lawn sloping down to the lake, is noted for its appetizing meals and comfortable rooms and is open throughout the year.

Deer, buffalo and elk range in securely-fenced corrals while a series of ponds in which thousands of game fish are propagated annually, are continuous attraction. Pokagon Camp, a summer camp for boys, is located in one of the wooded sections along the lake and has its own beach and pier. A nature guide is stationed at the park during the summer months, conducting bird and plant study hikes and giving illustrated lectures on nature subjects.

As a vacation resort at all seasons of the year, Pokagon State Park enjoys a growing attendance from all parts of Indiana.

SURE THAT PRESIDENT WILL BE CANDIDATE

Prominent Democrats have become convinced by President Roosevelt's unprecedented incursion into party primary campaigns that he is a candidate for a third term.

Not so long ago these same Democrats were stoutly asserting that the President entertained no ambitions to succeed himself and would not permit his name to go before the 1940 convention. Developments of the past week have caused them to whistle another tune—and it is a doleful strain.

A Democratic senator declared Tuesday after studying the words and actions of Mr. Roosevelt on his personal appearance tour, that he could come to no other conclusion than that the President feels that the right man to fill his shoes is the man who has been wearing them.

SCHOOLS OF COUNTY TO SHARE DISTRIBUTION

Schools of DeKalb County will receive checks totalling $58,100.00 from the State in the current semi-annual distribution of teacher's salary funds made available by the gross income tax, it was announced by Floyd McMurray, state superintendent of public instruction, as the current second quarterly period for filing gross income neased its close. The checks are to be mailed Saturday, July 16.

The county's share is part of a statewide distribution of $6,970,250, the largest single apportionment of school funds made since the gross income tax law was adopted, and the second distribution of state-collected school funds on the new basis of $700 annually for each teaching unit.

Payments are being made to the schools at the rate of $350 for each teaching unit, as compared to $250 a unit in the distribution last July. Teaching units are based on an average daily attendance of thirty-five grade school pupils or twenty-five high school pupils. A total of 19,915 such units were allocated in making the present distribution, according to J. William Bosse, director of statistics and finance for the Department of Education.

A similar distribution of $350 a unit was made last January. The total amount distributed at that time was $6,-943,300, making a total for the year of $13,913,550.

In addition to school distributions DeKalb County will receive $37,954.40 from the State during 1938 for old age assistance, aid to dependent children, and other welfare services provided for under the public welfare act passed by the 1936 special legislative session, in the largest distribution of funds for welfare purposes since that time. According to figures released recently by the Department of Public Welfare, the distributions to be made to the counties for welfare purposes in 1938 total $6,220,392.30. The distributions are made from the state general fund, to which the gross income tax is by far the largest contributor.

Zay Sailer is able to report good luck at Hamilton Lake. Sunday he landed two 12-inch bass and one 17-inch large mouth weighing 3¼ pounds.

Dr. Paul Rader, former manager of Ft. Wayne Gospel Temple, and world wide evangelist, died at the Hollywood Hospital on Tuesday. He will be buried in California on Friday.

Mrs. Jemima Thomas, Auburn, lovingly called "Aunty" by hundreds of friends in DeKalb County, died at 6:20 Tuesday morning from senility at the age of 93. She had been seriously ill for two months. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Lutheran Church with Rev. O. B. Norea officiating. Burial will be made in Woodlawn cemetery. Mrs. Thomas has assisted at the births of over 2,000 babies in DeKalb County.

The following DeKalb County students are enrolled at Indiana University this summer: Ashley, Homer Stomm; Auburn, Horace Clark, Donald Coar, Carol Dawson, Cecil Young, Fred Goudy; Butler, Alan Miller; Garrett, Lois Cobler, Donald Painter; St. Joe, Leslie Wilbern.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry and daughter, Lois, and Mrs. Hazlett, of Dry Run, Pa., were guests of Mrs. Jennie Sechler and son, Merritt, and other relatives Tuesday and Tuesday night. They had expected to spend several days here but a telegram awaited them on their arrival telling them of the death of Mr. Harry's brother. They left for home Wednesday morning to be there for the funeral on Thursday afternoon.

There is still evidence that the St. Joe River contains some real fish. Sunday, as G. L. Haver and Chas. Coburn were sitting in their boat near one of the rifles, a nice bass jumped into Haver's lap, smiled and flopped into the water again. He had his hands occupied, but of course, it is against the law to catch any fish in this manner, "This is the truth." Of course this riled Mr. Haver and he said "I'll get you Wednesday morning." And he landed a 2¼ pound Wall Eye. LeRoy Coburn caught two one pound Small Mouth this week.

Many a man who is known as a "go-getter" in the business world is known as a "bring-it-to-me" at home.

Did you ever stop to think that maybe the other fellow's faults you see so plainly are only reflections of your own?

How many women can remember when they hoped the first one would be a girl so she could take care of the balance?

A "painless dentist" is one of those who does not suffer a particle when he hands you your bill.

Nothing is more annoying to a motorist than to drive ten miles into the country on Sunday to see a friend and then find his spring chickens are not large enough to fry.

Still another rather difficult job is for the father of several children to tryo to look dignified while riding in a rumble seat.

A European statesman says people who speak different languages and scorn one another, cannot be united as a single nation. How about America?

There are a few political races this year, so it is still a good idea for voters to keep in mind that staying out of an argument means staying out of a fight.

"Early to bed and early to rise" and you miss a good many things that don't go on in the daytime.

A substitute for work, which will work, has never yet been found.

The easiest way to find a needle in a haystack would be to run through the stack on rubber tires.

Highbrows get the publicity, but the country is still safe in the hands of men who eat their breakfast in the kitchen.

There's nothing to it. Any man could become famous if he wasn't so busy making a living.

CIRCUS STRIKES

As far as the small boy of St. Joe is concerned, all this talk about strikes and "sit downs" never amounted to a thing, up to a few weeks ago. The argument of interfering with one's "personal liberties" got nowhere with the youth of America. There's a different tale to tell and the young ones are joining their protests in denouncing strikes, all because the C. I. O. stepped in to say what the circus should not do. These protests concerning labor and between unions did not mean much as long as they were confined to the industrial world, but when they enter the circus arena they are trifling with a tender part of a boy's heart. Any circus, no matter where it is booked to show, that has to take orders from unsentimental labor agitators, gets the small boy's vote—he casts it against any such move. Looking back to boyhood days and the part the circus played in those days we are not so sure that we would vote right along with the lad.

SENSIBLE STAMPS

The fact that frequent changes in the postage stamps of the U. S. has been profitable during the past few years, seems to meet with general approval. You seldom, if ever, hear a taxpayer complaining that it is an unnecessary waste of money. Now that it has been decided to make some of the future issues of educational and safety value to the public, will preclude the possibility of such a protest altogether. One of the first issues seemingly to appear in the very near future will be a stamp emphasizing the dangers of "Fire Prevention Week" national observance of which will fall this year on Oct. 9th to 15th. Other new stamps intended to preserve human life and natural resources are being worked out. When complete this can be referred to as our series of "sensible stamps," since they cover a double purpose.

WATCH THIS LAW

Newspapers thorughout the country recently carried the story from a neighboring state of a young man who invited his mother for an auto ride and suffered an accident in which she was injured. Her attorney promptly sued the son for damages and it developed that the insurance company, in which the son had a policy covering personal injuries to others, had to settle. Of course, it was a frameup, but it was legitimate in the eyes of that state. Under this law, that so many motorists know nothing about, it doesn't make any difference whom you invite into your car or to whom you extend the hospitality of a ride, you are running the risk of a damage suit in case they may be injured. The lowliest hobo has a claim if he happens to be your guest rider, as has any hitch-hiker you pick up. Right now as motorists are starting on vacations in states whose laws are unknown to them, is the time to get posted. Ask yourself, before you start out, if it pays to take a chance.

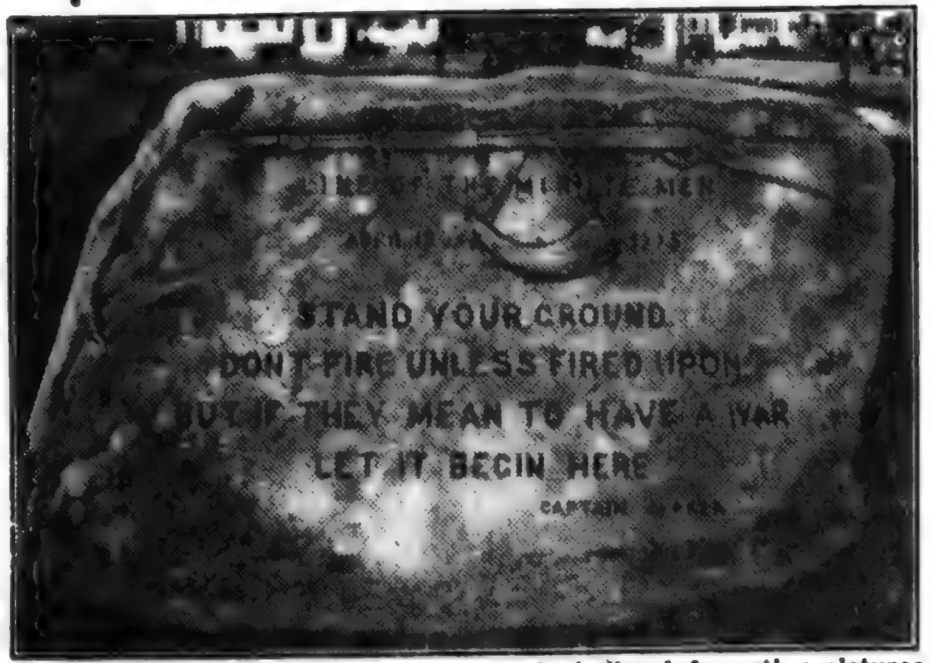
Telling the Vacation Story



Keep a full record of your vacation tour, including information pictures as well as scenics and "fun" pictures. Use the camera for reminders such as this—it's quicker than a notebook, and much better.

THIS is the season for vacation tours, and every such tour includes many pictures, both of your vacation group and of the scenes you visit.

These tour pictures should tell a complete story of your vacation trip. They should outline the route, show the type of road and country, overnight stops, the points of interest and historical spots you visited. Often some of these pictures are neglected, and in consequence the tour story seems incomplete.

One of the important points in making a tour record complete is to picture the historical markers, signs, place names, road markers, and similar "identification points" you pass. These pictures, placed in your vacation album in proper sequence with the other pictures, provide valuable information for the friends who see your album, and help keep your own memory fresh.

The camera is especially useful for preserving long historical inscriptions. It is much quicker than using a notebook, and pictures of unusual markers (such as the one above) are far superior to a mere notebook text.

On this year's vacation tour, try to keep a comprehensive picture story. Remember that if you miss a picture your record may not be complete. A half-made record is better than none, but a full one, that really tells the vacation story, provides for memories that are far richer and more satisfying.

SHOOT 'EM IN SERIES

"Wonder could I chew my way out of here? . . .

"Mmmm—it's a funny taste . . .

Not bad, though, at that . . .

"Heh! I was only kidding. I really like it in here!"

ANYBODY can take a single snapshot—a landscape here, an informal portrait there. But have you ever tried taking a series, to tell a complete story of an incident, or to picture a person more effectively?

Summer activities offer all sorts of chances for series pictures. Wherever there is fun—on a party, a picnic, a motor trip, an afternoon at the swimming pool or beach—you find amusing occurrences which are best pictured thus. One picture tells part of the story. Several pictures "follow through" and tell all of it.

The incidents don't have to be unusual. Good "fun" series can be made out of the cutting of a watermelon, a small boy blowing up a balloon until it bursts. Try picturing a child's tea party in this fashion—the small girl playing hostess to her dolls and pets. Also, try "expression" snaps of the baby in his outdoor crib.

Sports series are good. For instance, a man catching a fish. Show him baiting, casting, playing the fish, landing it, dropping it into the creel or threading it on the string. Later on, snap a picture to complete the series—the fish on the table at home, or the fisherman back at his office, describing his catch.

The series-picture idea can be applied in a thousand variations. Series pictures have extra "punch," because each picture supports and reinforces the next. A series of five good expression shots of the baby—laughing, crying, "crowing," questioning, shouting, and so on—is better than five unrelated shots.

One picture may be just a paragraph, but a series is a complete short story. Try such picture stories this summer. Nature stories are good, if you have a focusing camera, or a portrait attachment for your box camera. For example, picture a squirrel accepting a nut,—taking enough pictures to tell the complete story.

Don't miss series pictures this season. They're immense camera fun!

FROM Boston with his fiddle under his arm and high hopes of a musical career—to a Colorado honky-tonk.

Restlessly moving from town to town, Billy organized one of his first jazz bands in the West. His music was appreciated when the round-up began.

Billy Hill, watching the cowboys at their hard task, decided that music was still his forte—and left to seek his fortune anew in New York: but the plains were in his blood.

Greeted by canyons of brick and steel, Billy looked in vain for the heart of the city.

In Greenwich Village where artists create and starve, Billy wrote the "Last Round-Up" to pay his gas bill, butcher and his landlord.

No publisher would buy a song about "dogies", even at twenty-five dollars. Billy, however, finally found a sympathetic firm, which bought the song for a cash advance against royalties.

Success followed immediately, and Billy Hill's hill billy songs became a vogue. He was elected to the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and took his place as an American folk song writer.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1938 NUMBER 30

FIRST AGE PENSION UNDER LOWER LIMIT

The first award made by the DeKalb County Welfare Board under the new regulation reducing the age limit from seventy to sixty-five was recorded at the monthly meeting in the court house Friday night.

The successful applicant is a woman sixty-seven years of age. This was the only old age applicant less than seventy years old whose case was ready for consideration. Four other awards were granted to aged persons and three applications were rejected. Two cases reinvestigated were left the same as before and one award was reduced. Two awards were stricken from the records, as one of the recipients is now at the county infirmary and the other moved from the county.

Two new awards for the assistance of children were granted, involving seven children. Three awards, involving five children, were withdrawn.

The deaths of five aged recipients since the June meeting of the board were reported. One burial claim was allowed.

The board decided to ask the county council in September for $3,000 additional for assistance of crippled children during the balance of 1938. The $1,100 appropriation made for the year was exhausted in the first five months. The county now has five patients atthe James Whitcomb Riley hospital, Indianapolis, and three applications are pending.

VITIT CLIFTY FALLS PARK and LANIER MEMORIAL

Clifty Falls State Park, high above the Ohio River and the Lanier Memorial in historic Madison, form a combination to atract the week-end motorist and the vacationist to a section of Indiana which is often designated "The Switzerland of America."

Located on Roads 56 and 62, and connected with Road 7 by Road 107, the Park is easily accessible from any part of Indiana and neighboring states. The Lanier Memorial, located in Madison, is only a few miles from the Park.

Clifty Falls State Park was established in 1920 and has an area of more than six hundred acres on a plateau overlooking the Ohio River. Ruggedness of the landscape, untouched by the glacial movements, gives it a special attraction for the visitor from the prairie or rolling sections of the state. The wooded hillsides, the gorge cut by Clifty Creek and the silvery falls, the lookout points along the trails, and the winding Park drives contribute to the scenic beauty of the Park.

There are attractive picnicking and camping areas, complete with shelters, ovens, drinking fountains and comfort stations; an inn noted for its appetizing meals and comfortable rooms; a nature guide to conduct hikes for the study of birds and plants; and a riding stable filled with easy-riding horses.

From vantage points in the Park the visitor glimpses the city of Madison. There, with a lawn which sweeps from the pillared porch to the banks of the Ohio River, is the Lanier mansion, a state memorial. Noted for its architectural beauty, the mansion has been refurnished with the original possessions of the Lanier family and today presents an authentic picture of the setting in which life flowed during the middle of the nineteenth century. One of the attractions for most visitors is the children's nursery with its dolls and toys of more than a half century ago.

A SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A surprise birthday party was tendered Roy Koch at his home here on Thursday evening. As he returned from Auburn and coming into the house he found a room full of people.

After a social hour, a pot luck plate lunch was served. Concealed in one of the guest's sandwiches was a note bearing the words "Roy, Savilla, July 15, 1938." This came as a surprise to most of the guests and we yet are unable to say where the wedding took place.

Mrs. Koch, a sister of Mrs. Ray Reasoer, has lived in Auburn for a number of years.

Congratulations and the best of good luck were extended the couple at the time the party broke up.

Those present were: Frank Curie, Carl Perkins, Wm. Hamilton, Ray Reasoner, Glen Cole, Roy Reidenbach and F. B. Leighty, accompanied by their wives.

The members of the Newville U. B. Church gave a miscellaneous shower Friday evening, July 15, in honor of Mr. and Mrs Weldon Reas, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reas, on Road 8. The newlyweds received many beautiful and useful gifts. Ice cream and cake were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Zay Sailer spent from Firday night until Sunday at their cottage at Hamilton Lake.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283

Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month. - - - -

At the Legion's meeting Tuesday evening, the public was entertained by Comrades Orrin and Rupp of Decatur Post 43 and District Commander Carl Graham, of Post 47, Ft. Wayne, with the showing of two reels of talking slides, "Stop—Look and Live" and "Night Driving," and four reels of moving pictures, "Horse Sense and Horse Power," "Aesop's Fables, Mad Melody," "The Chance to Lose," and "An Evening with Major Bowes."

"Stop—Look and Live" showed rules of safety for pedestrians as explained by the city mail carriers, the policeman on his beat at the edge of town, and the State Police in the rural sections.

"Night Driving" very forcefully showed the need of keeping lights at the peak of efficiency and explained why the greater per cent of automobile accidents occur between the hours of 1 and 6 A. M. when traffic is the lightest.

"Horse Sense and Horse Power" and "The Chance To Lose" showed the danger in which some reckless or careless drivers and pedestrians place themselves, and also those around them by not considering the rights of others or using common courtesy while on the public highways.

"Aesop's Fables" and "An Evening with Major Bowes" were added attractions of entertainment.

A short business meeting was held after the entertainment at which time a delegate and alternate were chosen to represent the Post at the State Convention next month at Indianapolis. Commader Lehr Wilder will act as delegate and Comrade Dean will act as alternate.

An early payment of next year's membership dues will be appreciated by the Post as we wish to send cards for at least fifty per cent of our membership to the State Convention.

SWEEPSTAKE ANNIE

(8 reels)

Running Time: 80 Minutes
Story by: W. Scott Darling
Director: William Nigh
Cast: Tom Brown, Marion Nixon, Wera Engles, Inez Courtney, Ivan Lebedeff, Lucien Littlefield, Dorothy Peterson, William Janney, Carol Tevis.

SWEEPSTAKE ANNIE is a thoroughly amusing comedy-drama based on the Irish Sweepstakes.

The story's central figure is Marion Nixon, a working girl from a middle class family who longs for the "better things" in life. She is about to marry a nice electrician, Tom Brown, when she finds her ticket in the Irish sweepstakes is the winner. With $150,000 she acquires, a penthouse, furs, jewels, and all the things she ever wanted.

The train of events that follow Annie's declaration of independence make for comedy and tense drama of the most entertaining kind.

Eugene Carper, of near Auburn, is spending the week with his daughter, Mrs. Foster Gee.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

As the month of July moves into its concluding days, the chief business of Washington, both official and private, is looking at the thermometer, mopping moistened brows and longing for a cooling rain. A few other affairs, however, have managed to thrust themselves into notice. The absence of the President leaves a gap, although, as a matter of fact, few Washingtonians see him often and many never have seen him at all. Official Washington is busied for the most part in taking stock as to what it has done and laying plans regarding what it hopes to be able to do when Congress again convenes.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace reports the probability of an unusually large wheat crop, and would see to it that wheat sells at a proper price. Loans in the sum of sixty cents per bushel will be available, through the Commodity Credit Corporation, to those who work with the government in crop control and soil conservation. The United States and China have renewed a recently expired agreement by the terms of which this country buys Chinese silver, and it is expected that trade along that line will amount to 50 million dollars between the present date and the first of the year, roughly stated. China is establishing a credit in American dollars and the credit is used to maintain the Chinese end of the war in which she is engaged.

The clothing business was given a boost a short time ago by the governmental acquisition of 10 million dollars worth of mens' clothing, and the movement has progressed through the promised buying of womens' garments having a value of 3 million dollars. The supplies will be laid aside until next winter, for distribution to the needy. None but the small time political partisan wants to see the federal authorities make a mistake simply in order to have something with which to find fault, but wouldn't there be a grand and glorious feeling if, before the season to wear the garments arrived, times would improve to such an extent that coat donation would not be necessary? Desperate diseases sometimes depart suddenly. Who can tell what will happen before snow-fall?

Some anxiety is manifested in the Department of Commerce regarding the alleged decrease in the number of small stores, although doubt is expressed as to whether so many corner shops have been closed as is generally believed. It appears, rather, that the drop has been in the amount of sales. At any rate, the small store is not passing from the picture so rapidly as to suggest extinction. Such establishments seem indispensable and probably will abide for a long time, not necessarily because they furnish employment to those content with a small gain and likely to be out of work otherwise, and since they afford the community a convenience for which it is willing to pay, in the way of prices slightly higher than those asked for by more pretentious but less readily accessible places of purchase.

The Home Owners Loan Corporation has come in for some knocks and is said to be grinding the faces of the poor. A group in Congress has suggested changes involving a reduction of interest from 5 to 3½ per cent, a three year moratorium on the payment of principal, and leave to remain in a house after foreclosure, if a rental agreement can be reached. The chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank indignantly denies that his organization is a Shylock. He points out that the suggested moratorium would seriously hamper the goverment, and states that in the average Federal foreclosure, the property owner has no taxes for five years and has lived in his dwelling rent-free for more than four years, which certainly does not seem to justify the charge of oppression.

DOMESTIC RECORDS

We recently read where a farm woman shows her 1937 diary with her daily work-out for one month. Many a woman around St. Joe will get out her pencil to compare notes, and we feel this list isn't of greater length than that of housewives of this community. It looks mighty impressive in black and white! It reads as follows: 14 sewed garments which included dresses, aprons, slips, sleeping garments and a coat; she baked 45 loaves of bread, 74 cinnamon rolls, 11 pies, four batches of cookies and four cakes; she dressed 16 chickens for customers, served 56 meals to company, and nursed ill members of the family for 14 days. This diary did not include the record of family washings, cleaning and sweeping, dish-washing, bed-making and other such daily tasks. This farm-wife contends she is not an exception but is not a bit busier than her neighbors. We often read of the hustle-bustle of the life of the city dweller, of her lengthy social engagements, and wonder now if her dairy would top this farm woman's list of accomplishments.

PICNIC DAYS

The days of baked beans and lemonade, potato salad and pickles are upon us in full blast. A hot wind blows and someone is apt to suggest a picnic. There is no more pleasant custom in our American life, where a grown-up is permitted to romp with the youngest of them with a spirit of care-free enjoyment of simple pleasures. One can hardly be standoffish and stiff at a picnic gathering. It is a good thing for us to get away from the narrow streets that bound the gaze and form the same busy picture for us day in and day out. Sameness is a disease and our lives grow stagnant without a change. With a picnic you are really getting right down to earth with the feel of the cool ground and grass where you relax and breathe more easily. The pleasant talking with relatives and friends in such surroundings puts you in a more comfortable mood than if it was all being conducted around a dining table. Best of all, it seems, is the assortment of delicious foods brought in all shapes and sizes of pans and dishes, which we work out with gusto and wind up by over-eating and retiring to a shady spot for a nap. If you haven't attended a picnic so far this summer, go out and get a group of friends around St. Joe to have one.

During these vacation days every driver of an automobile has an added responsibility—to watch out for those youngsters on the streets.

Children listen to our warnings and instructions to be careful when crossing streeets, but, as we all know, they forget very readily, and when they are engaged in a spirited game of tag our words of caution are completely erased from their minds. That is why we motorists must learn to anticipate seeing a boy or girl dash suddenly across the street without a sideward glance.

We often become impatient and angry with youngsters for these thoughtless acts, but remember, their's is a carefree life. We cannot expect them to keep serious thoughts in mind constantly.

Let's give the kids a break and be just a little more alert when we sit behind the wheel of our automobile. That is one way we can make life safer for our children.

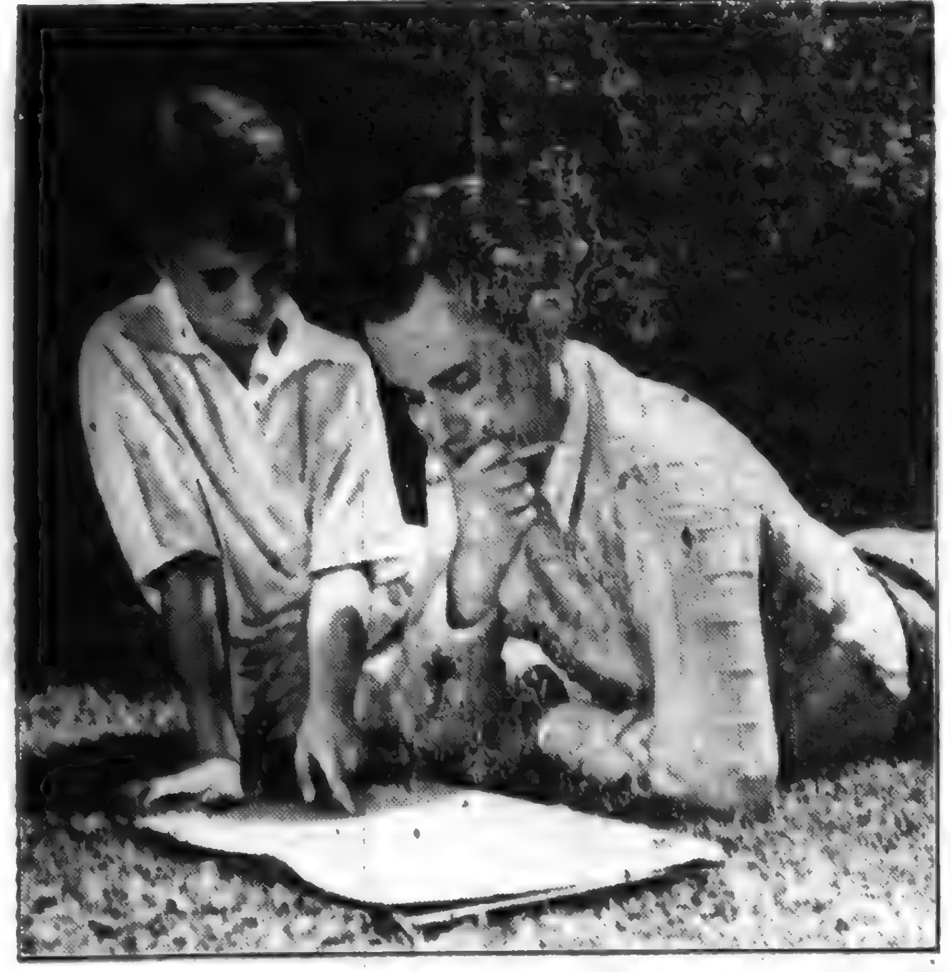
The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SOFTEN THOSE SHADOWS!



No harsh shadows on the faces in this picture! The paper makes an excellent reflector, allows subjects to face AWAY from the sun, not squint INTO it! Try it and see!

WHEN one advises, "Use a reflector to soften and lighten shadows," most snapshooters think, "Oh, that is too complicated — too much trouble."

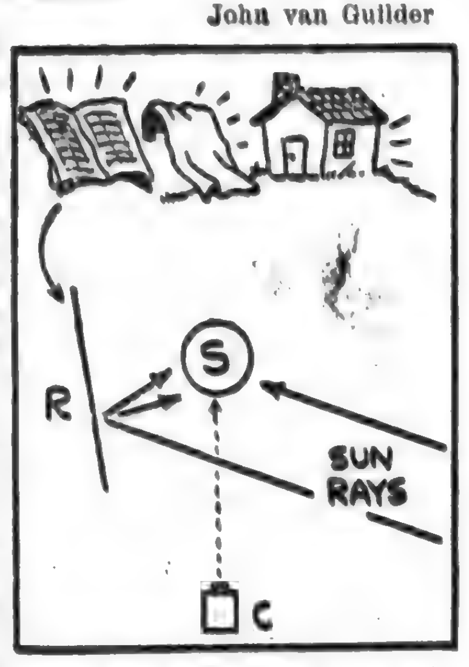
As a matter of fact, any white or light-colored surface can serve as a reflector, to make shadows soft and full of detail. For instance, look at a man reading a newspaper. The newspaper catches light and reflects it into his face — it is a very good shadow illuminator.

A white spring or summer dress catches light and reflects it to the subject's face, and under her chin. A broad white hat brim catches light from the dress, and reflects it to the subject's forehead.

A white building (see diagram) can be used as a reflector to lighten the shadow side of the person you are picturing. A white picnic cloth, spread in the sun, reflects enough light to soften shadows in the faces of all the group around it.

Whenever you are taking pictures of people, especially in sunlight, make sure that the shadows are softened in some fashion. Black shadows under the subject's eyebrows and nose ruin a picture. Use any sort of reflecting surface — a white cardboard, white cloth, newspaper, the wall of a white house — anything handy that will reflect light. It takes only a moment to arrange subject or reflector properly —and the picture will be immensely improved.

John van Guilder



A white wall will reflect light to the shadow side of the face if the subject is placed properly. So will a newspaper, or white sheet. S, subject; C, camera; R, reflecting surface.

By CARL OGLE

(Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the attitude of the publisher or editor of this newspaper. —Editor's Note.)

Fears of residents of Marion county concerning the recent primary—that is, concerning the honesty of the election machinery—appear to have been justified.

For instance, in the original primary count, Al Feeney, anti-machine candidate for the Democratic nomination for sheriff, received 21,760 votes while his opponent, Charley Lutz, who had the support of the State House machine, received 24,015.

The recent recount of those same votes gave Feeney 21,967 and Lutz 21,695.

Therefore, Feeney, if the courts uphold the verdict of the recount commission, was nominated.

In precinct after precinct, ballots were found to have been altered. There seems to be no question whatever as to the manipulation of the election. Those who did manipulate it were so brazen that their methods were not even clever.

The entire situation seems to justify the demands of Arch N. Bobbitt, chairman of the Indiana Republican State Central Committee, that officials of his part throughout the state purge the election lists of names that have no place there.

For instance, Mr. Bobbitt tells one story about an apartment building in a southern Indiana city. The building was washed away by the flood—but the persons living in that building voted at the last election—and they voted from that address although the address was no longer in existence.

Noble Johnson, candidate for Congress in the Sixth district, says that there probably are thirty thousand persons listed on the registration records of Vigo county alone who are not entitled to vote. He has joined with Mr. Bobbitt in asking that Republican workers ascertain the names of those who are not qualified to vote and file affidavits, if necessary, with the county clerks of their respective counties to eliminate the names from the lists.

It is the view of the Republican leaders that if the machine can use such methods as those applied to Feeney in the Marion county Democratic primary, the same methods may be used against Republican candidates this Fall.

Another thing that seems to indicate beyond much doubt that some rather unscrupulous methods are being used is this:

Not one of the resolutions calling for investigation of these election conditions have been adopted by the members of the Indiana General Assembly during the special session.

For instance, the Republican members of the Legislature introduced a resolution asking the state to provide Judge Frank P. Baker of the Marion Criminal Court, a Democrat, with $20,000 to pursue an inquiry into election conditions. It was "tabled" without hesitation.

Another interesting resolution that was tabled was the one asking that United States Senator Frederick VanNuys be called before the Legislature to present his evidence of alleged irregularities. State Senator William Jenner of Shoals has expressed the opinion that Nan Nuys must have had some evidence or he would not have made his charges. But the Legislature doesn't seem to wish to hear about it.

All of these conditions seem to make the close scrutiny of the registration lists extremely necessary.

IRTH OF A SONG
"AT DAWNING"
By Charles Wakefield Cadman and Nelle Richmond Eberhart
from ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth

NELLE RICHMOND'S family moved from Detroit, where she was born, to a small town in northern Nebraska, where at the age of fifteen she began to teach school.

She had to walk a mile each day to her school and became acquainted with Nebraska's sunrise, which did not come up like thunder.

Her only diversion was attending the occasional barn dances and husking bees in the farm country. So she gave a lot of her time to her poetry.

By twenty she was teaching in another school which had an evening a week devoted to "literaries". It was one of these evenings that her poem was read and her blushing sweetheart proposed.

[illegible] and went to make a home [illegible], where Charles Wakefield Cadman, A.S.C.A.P., visited them and took an interest in the young author.

Cadman discovered Nelle's love lyric, "At Dawning", in an old note book, had her write another verse and immediately composed the music. They sold the song outright; it was published and lay dormant for six years.

Then the great tenor, Bonci, sang it and John McCormack made a record of it. Sales mounted rapidly, and the publishers, in fairness, revised the contract, and paid the composer and author due royalties.

Nelle Richmond Eberhart and Mr. Cadman are high ranking members in the standard class of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, which licenses the performing rights of their works.

Think!

YOUR home, furnishings, automobile and other possessions are valuable. They should be insured . . . not only against fire but every hazard that threatens. But think before you choose the type of insurance. There is a difference.

Consider this: 4 out of 5 property owners choose Capital Stock Company Fire Insurance because it provides definite protection at a known cost . . . because it is backed by financial surplus and capital stock as well as legal reserves . . . because it maintains local Agents for quick, courteous service when you're in trouble.

That's the kind of insurance YOU want! That's the kind of insurance WE supply.

PRODUCERS TO HOLD MEETING IN ST. JOE TOWN HALL

Every person who is interested in growing fruits and vegetables within ten or fifteen miles of St. Joe should attend this meeting as plans will be discussed for grading, packing and marketing.

On account of the short time the first interest will be in this year's cantaloupe crop, but those interested in cantaloupes for next year, or any kind of fruits or vegetabits in the future should be interested in the discussion and plans to be worked out at this meeting. Remember the date is Wednesday, August 10th at eight o'clock, Daylight Saving Time, at the Town Hall, St. Joe.

The arrangements for this meeting were hurriedly made so we are reproducing the correspondence between the BB. & O. officials and J. R. Leighty.

BALTIMORE & OHIO R. R.
(Agricultural Development Dept.)

A. F. Stephens,
Grand Central Station,
Chicago, Ill.

Chicago, Ill., July 30.

Mr. John R. Leighty,
St. Joe, Ind.
Dear Sir:—

I was sorry to miss you yesterday afternoon when I stopped at your home, accompanied by Mr. J. R. Dickerson, in charge of fruit and vegetable production for the state of Indiana. However we did have a very nice visit with Mrs. Leighty.

I want to talk with you about a plan I am attempting in the St. Joe area, for the marketing of quality cantaloupes to vine ripen, making a quality pack, that is, U. S. No. 1 or better, pre-cooling the melons after loading in the referigerator cars for movements to Eastern points, such as Philadelphia, Pittsburg, New York and Boston.

As you know, the only competition for these melons at the time they come to market is from Colorado, and of course, the freight rate from St. Joe is from one-third to one-half of that on the Colorado melons, and I am convinced that if the gorwers in the St. Joe section will pack a quality product, they can successfully compete on the Eastern markets with the Colorado melons.

I have visited a few of the growers around St. Joe and found considerable interest in the possibility. Knowing of your interest in the further development in the St. Joe section, I would appreciate it if you would discuss this with some of the melon growers so that I can notify them of a meeting. I would suggest that the meeting be held in the afternoon or night of Aug. 10th at St. Joe. I will appreciate your suggestion in connection with the meeting.

I am leaving the office Monday Aug. 1st, and will be gone until Saturday, Aug. 6, and hope that you can let me have any suggestions you have in mind by that time.

Yours very truly,
A. F. Stephens,
Agricultural Agent.

Aug. 1, 1938

Dear Mr. Stephens:—

I have just received your letter of July 30. I have been sure that the trip we made around the country in this neighborhood last year would get you interested enough to work out something that would benefit both the growers of fruits and vegetables and your railroad, as our interests are mutual.

Your suggestion of a meeting is good but the time is too short to first canvass the area for interested growers and have you send them personal invitations, as it will take some time to get organized and the melon crop will have to be moved when it is ready.

Under these circumstances I am taking the responsibility of giving the meeting publicity in the local papers which circulate in this territory and inviting not only those who may have cantaloupes out this year but the greater number who will be interested in planting in the future if a way can be found to market them at a small cost.

At present the grower can hardly afford to haul less than a two hundred bushel load to market and only the largest acreage can get a load of melons in first class condition, and usually not even these growers can do so.

If we can get a plan that allows every one to take off every day or two what will grade up to the top, every one will be better off.

We will have the metting at eight o'clock Wednesday, Aug. 10 at the Town Hall in St. Joe, and every one interested in growing fruit of any kind as well as melons will be invited because if we start with strawberries in June we can keep a shipper interested through potatoes and onions in the Fall.

Of course I understand that the present problem is to get the cantaloupe crop cared for, but there is no end to the proposition until we go through the whole season in future years.

Trusting I have not assumed too much in calling the meeting as above, much in calling the meeting as above,
I am

Sincerely yours,
Jno. R. Leighty.

INSPIRATIONAL:

Do not worry; eat three square meals a day; say your prayers; be courteous to your creditors; keep your digestion good; exercise; go slow and easy. Maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy, but my friend, these I reckon will give you a good lift.—Abraham Lincoln.

Indiana's open season on squirrel hunting begins next Wednesday, August 10, in the sixty-nine counties composing the Southern Zone and on Thursday, Sept. 1, in the remaining twenty-three counties which make up the Northern Zone.

Reports from game wardens and sportsmen throughout the state were cited by Virgil M. Simmons, Commissioner of the Department of Conservation, in predicting that the squirrel hunters would have some of the best sport of recent years. In most parts of the state, reports indicate an abundance of squirrels.

Attention was called to the Indiana law which requires every person to have a license to hunt—excepting only: an owner of farmland who is a resident of Indiana, his wife and children living with him, may hunt on any land belonging to such owner without a license; and a bona fide tenant of farmland, his wife and children living with him, may hunt without a license only on the farm on which he resides.

Other laws applying to squirrel hunting, include:

It shall be unlawful to shoot, kill, take or possess more than five squirrels during the open season.

It shall be unlawful for any person to sell, offer to sell, purchase or offer to purchase any fox squirrel or gray squirrel in this state.

It shall be unlawful to hunt, shoot, kill, shoot at or in any way disturb any squirrel in any public park or state grounds at any time.

It shall be unlawful for any person to hunt, shoot, or kill any wild birds, rabbits or species of game with any kind of firearms on the first day of the week, commonly known as Sunday.

It shall be unlawful for any person to use or possess any apparatus designed for use with or on any firearm, commonly called a silencer, or to use or possess any device used as a silencer while in the act of hunting in this state.

TRAIN FLIPS STONE AND BREAKS WINDOW

The old saying that wonders will never cease, has again been proven true, when Mrs. George Kess related the incident Monday evening, of a passing train flipping a stone through one of the windows at their home. She said that it occurred at that particular time as the stone bore marks of the wheels. This is one of the strange happenings.

WHEN YOU CAN:

Cut string into a desired length (depending on size of jar tops.) Lay cord over top of jams and jellies before pouring on the paraffin. When you wish to remove the top the ends of the cord hanging over edges of jar will facilitate in removing without breaking paraffin......Warm jelly glasses before putting in the jelly, as it helps it to thicken, or set them in the sun.

STRICKEN SUDDENLY WITH HEART ATTACK

A sudden heart attack caused the death of Mrs. Christine Engle, 54, wife of John Engle, of northeast of St. Joe, at 11:05 o'clock Monday night. Death was very unexpected for although she had been in poor health for several years, Mrs. Engle was not considered seriously ill and was active until her death. The deceased, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alden Engle, and her granddaughter, Janice Engle, had visited in Auburn on Monday afternoon with Mrs. Scott Showers, Miss Engle's maternal grandmother. They returned home in the afternoon and Monday night Mrs. Engle prepared to retire at 10:30 when she suffered a heart attack.

Born March 15, 1884, Mrs. Engle, then Miss Christine Levy, was reared in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Simanton, now deceased, after she was 10 years of age until October 2, 1907, when she was married to John Engle and moved to a farm in Concord township. They also lived four years in Auburn and for the past four years have lived near St. Joe on the old Simanton farm.

Surviving besides the husband, are two sons, Henry and Alden, and one granddaughter, all at home, two brothers, William and Hubert Levy, and two sisters, Mrs. Cora Lepper and Mrs. Mary Furney, all of Hicksville.

The body will be at the Engle home until the time of the funeral, 2 o'clock daylight saving time Thursday afternoon, at the Kinsey funeral home. Rev. Frank Stevenson, pastor of the St. Mark's Lutheran Church of St. Joe, of which the deceased was a member, will officiate. Burial will be made in Riverside cemetery, St. Joe.

EDITORS MEET GILLIE TUESDAY EVENING

Ethusiastic and unqualified endorsement of the candidacy of Dr. George W. Gillie, of Fort Wayne, Republican congressional nominee, was given by a group of Fourth District newspaper publishers and editors at a Gillie-For-Congress dinner Tuesday evening in Fort Wayne, who attended the gathering and participated in laying plans for a vigilent campaign to send the popular former Sheriff of Allen County to the U. S. Congress.

Mr Gillie expressed his gratitude for the loyal support being afforded him and re-affirmed his stand against spendthrift and unsound policies of the New Deal.

Dr. Gillie said, "I give you my solemn pledge that should I be given the honor to represent this district in Congress, I shall use that opportunity to do all in my power to uphold and preserve the American system of Government.

"The United States can and should go forward with a truly progressive program, and do it under the Constitution. Let us have a government cooperation instead of interference with industry, to the end that men will be put back to work at good wages on a sound basis."

Those who attended the dinner as guests of Dr. Gillie included editors from Ligonier, Wolcottville, Columbia City, Angola, Waterloo, LaGrange and St. Joe.

It is a lot easier to back into trouble than to back out of it. Backing dangers are a source of worry to truck drivers who do not have helpers. Statistics prove that there is good cause for this worry.

Whenever possible, backing up should be avoided. For example, where you can park parallel instead of at an angle, do so.

If you must back, KNOW the way is clear for you to do so. Always back slowly.

(7 reels)

Running Time: 70 Minutes
Story by: E. B. Mann
Director: S. Roy Luby
Cast: Johnny Mack Brown, Sheila Manors, Ted Adams, Karl Hackett, Hal Price, Nelson McDowell, Charlie King.

DESERT PHANTOM, the latest sensational Johnny Mack Brown Western, is a picture with a three-fold appeal, the sort that furnishes entertainment for everybody.

For those who react to the call of rapid action, there's enough to satisfy any thrill-seeker.

Those who respond to tender romance will be enthralled by the love affair between the hero and his sweetheart.

As for the juveniles, they will shout themselves hoarse over the dare-devil feats of horsemanship, crack shooting, etc. This is a typical western picture with plenty of action.

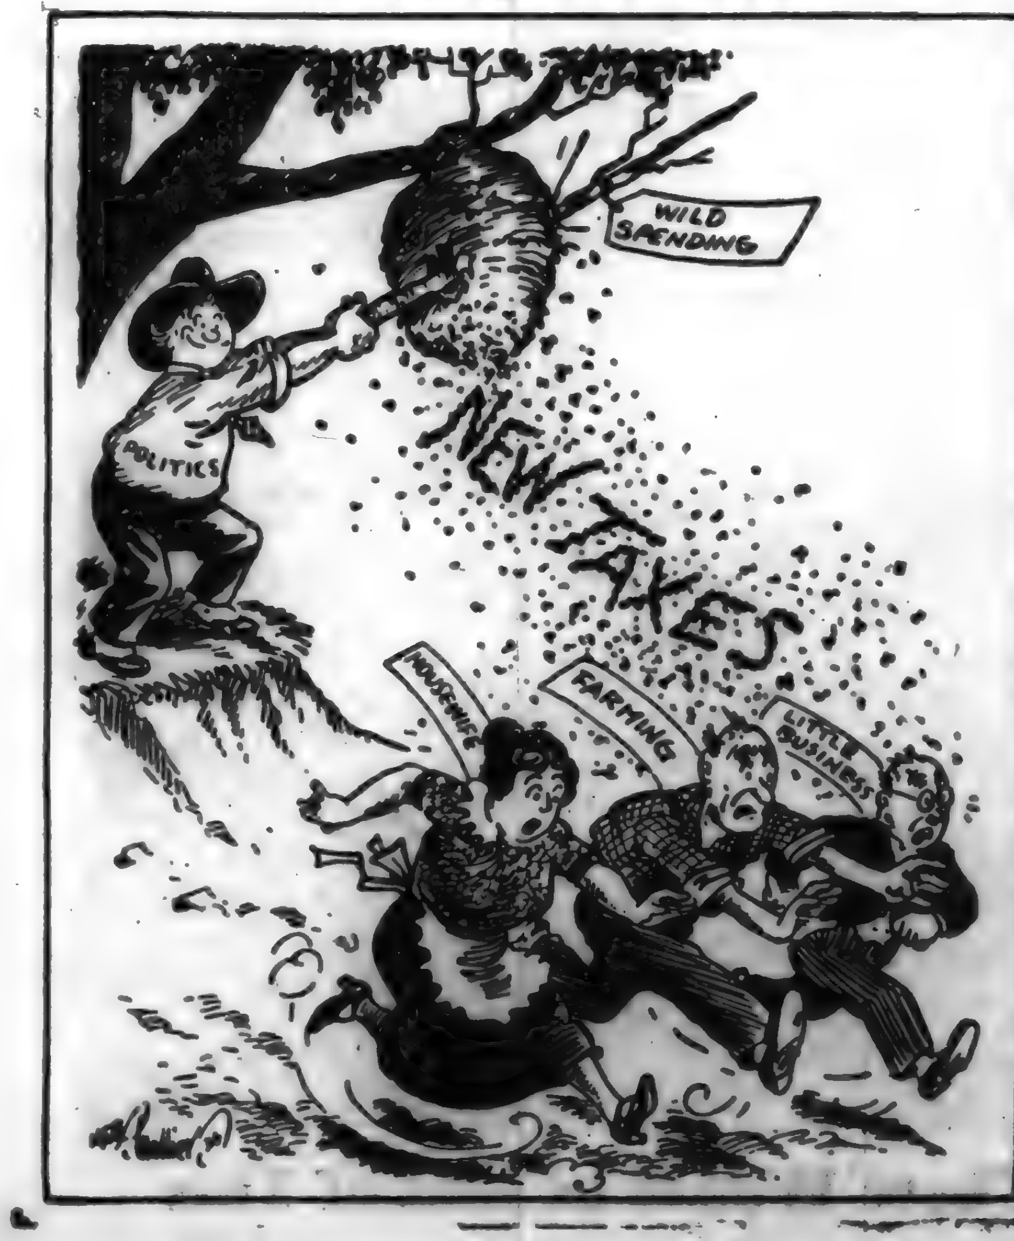
WHAT IT MEANS

The farmer holds a prominent place in the conversation of the nation, and yet there are many people around St. Joe who do not know how the word "farm" originated. We think of a farm as a place where hens lay eggs, cows are milked and vegetables are grown. Yet to "farm out" anything means to rent or lease land for a certain period at a specified price. One explanation was that the word appeared when a "farm" was a district of country, or section of land, leased or farmed out for the collection of government revenues. Following this came the reasoning that a farm was any piece of land leased for purposes of cultivation. It is possible, today, for a farmer to own his farm and still call it a farm, as it means any land used for agricultural purposes.

The Southern farm used to be termed a plantation and the Western farm was known as a range. We use the word "farm" now to include these two, as well as the tracts which specialize in products and are known as "chicken farms" and fox farms." Wherever it is and whatever it is called, we owe a lot to the farm, and learning a bit more about them won't hurt us and will be worth a bit to the politician, whose sole aim in life (according to the politician,) is to "do something for the farmer."

THE HORNETS' NEST



NATIONAL SALESMEN'S CRUSADE

There is being inaugurated, throughout the country, a National Salesmen's Crusade, which started in the offices of a Detroit, Michigan, corporation, and is now spreading to various parts of the country. This campaign, with its motto, "Sales Make Jobs," is intended to stimulate buying by the employed in order to give work to the unemployed and also increase their purchasing power. One salesman could not do this but the co-operation of many groups of salesmen has proven effective. Their idea is to show the people there is a difference between a rational amount of thrift and an amount of certainty that may prove false. There are folks about towns like St. Joe who have felt that their security depends on the hoarding of earned profits and this crusade is trying to show the buyer the result of such an attitude. It is hoped to inspire confidence and over-ride fear. Lincoln, Nebraska, was the city chosen for the first campaign, due to its location in the heart of the nation, it has no principal industry and is a typical American city. Winning such favor in Lincoln three other cities became interested and now there are hundreds of towns supporting it. There are large umbers of citizens besides sales people who are lining up in the battle for business.

THE NATURAL BACKGROUND

We have always felt closer to God in nature and we have always realized that the rural dweller is especially religious, maybe due to his close contact with nature. There is a book recently written by Dr. Malcolm Dana, entitled "Christ of the Countryside," which brings us a much better realization of the man who lives on the land and tills the soil, and his relationship to religion. This daily association with the natural things would tend to make a closer contact in religious thought. As we all know, the Bible story starts with a scene in a garden and it closes with a scene in a famous garden. The Bible, throughout, deals with the subjects of soil and seeds, harvests and grain, with thoughts concerning loaves and fishes. The country was the setting for miracles and the basis of thought in many parables. He found his peace away from crowds and in the serenity of the open spaces. It would be an enlightment for many a reader in St. Joe to take his Bible and go through it, listing each incident and statement regarding the association of land and Christ, and to know how close we are to Him in this place.

SAFE AT HOME?

"Home Sweet Home. There's no place like home," would lead us to believe in the safety of them as well as the sanctity of them. Our home is our refuge and our shelter. We seek it as the surest place in our existence of disorder and confusion and little stop to think that 88,500 persons perished in accidents in the home during the year of 1936, while traffic, the more publicized evil, took 37,800 lives. Would we be safer to stay in the street instead of in the house? Our Sunday afternoon drive causes us to remember the Monday morning papers with their list of auto fatalities—but what about those accidents that happened to the fellow who remained at home? Statistics compiled by Federal relief workers, under the supervision of the National Safety Council, have made the most complete research into home accidents occurring in Chicago where 4,602 cases were investigated from records of the Cook County Hospital.

There are many traps of danger to be found in homes, the kitchen leading as the worst with its poor stove connections, careless usage of kerosene and gasoline; grease, water and bits of food on the floor resulting in serious falls; steam from covered kettles causing fatal burns, and so on we could enumerate the various hazards. There are many accidents caused by stairways too steep and with steps holding odds and ends of things. Cellar steps are usually too dark for safety. Skidding on scatter-rugs and on polished floors, and slipping in bathtubs always enter into the picture. Accidents occur in bedrooms where little children fall out of bed or are smothered by too many covers or pillows. Falling on and over furniture in the dark is apt to happen to old people. There are many other kinds we have not mentioned that have probably taken place in your own home. The safest way out of such a situation is to eliminate the causes by getting together with your family and putting on a safety campaign in your own house.

HORSE SENSE

It is almost a rarity to see a horse on the city streets as used to them as are folks around St. Joe. The horses still seem to rule the farm but there is not much left for him in the city except for hauling requiring numerous stops, and even then the auto seems to be more popular. With the introduction of the auto, the freight truck and the tractor, it seemed the horse was doomed to oblivion. It was said the horse had lost its usefulness and its hold on our sentiment. Many years have passed since we first heard such talk, but the horse we still have with us. The greatest change that has taken place concerns the breeding of the horse. The popularity of horseback riding increasing regularly, as well as the ever-popular horse races throughout the country tends to demand a better breeding in the horse world. There was a time when any equine with four legs was termed a horse, when often he might better be deemed a "plug." Today, most horse flesh has been standardized to such an extent that most of them are splendid examples of select and scientific breeding. They command as high a price as at any time in our history. It is estimated that the horse population of the cities today is about the same as it was in 1927. Figures of the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicate that about 14,000,000 horses are in use. A comparison of these figures with peak years, 1909 and 1910 when 20,000,000 horses were in use, shows a very small decrease. Today we have fewer of the cheap plugs and more of the finer bred animals capable of better performances, and despite our mechanical progress the horse remains with us.

THE MARCH TO SEOUL

Journeys afoot have been made by the U. S. Marines across the desert sands of Africa, through tropical jungles, or in France when haste was urgent, but a hike made by the sea soldiers in hostile Korea in 1894 was among the most noteworthy of these marches.

China and Japan were on the eve of war, and the Nipponese had seized the Korean capital at Seoul, where many Americans were in grave danger. At the seaport of Chemulpo was the cruiser Baltimore, and a telegraphed request from the American Minister at Seoul started twenty-two Marines forthwith on their march to the Capital.

Unknown dangers lay before them as they started at sundown, each man bearing sixty rounds of ammunition and three days' rations. Through the sultry night they plodded over clay hills, through a mountain pass, and over three miles of deep sand, fording two mountain streams en route. Once they made a detour through soggy rice fields where there was not even the semblance of a road in order to avoid contact with a Japanese division.

Under normal conditions, two and a half miles an hour over good roads in daylight is standard marching time for seasoned troops. The sea soldiers made 31 miles in 11 hours, finding Seoul virtually a deserted city, heavily guarded by the Japanese. Frightened Americans as well as some Koreans had sought refuge in the American Legation.

The nocturnal march to the Korean capital was one of the most strenuous made by the Marines in the Nineteenth Century. Additional naval forces arrived over a river route the next day, and for many months various ships' detachments of Marines were on duty there.

Happily, they succeeded in guarding the legation, its refugees and the nearby misisons without any armed conflict, although they were literally living in the midst of the warring factions of three nations.

AUGUST

A PICTURE A DAY—

Indoors . . . Outdoors . . . Washday . . . Birthday . . . family history is being made.

NOT long ago a young friend of mine married. He is a camera fan, like the rest of us, and he told me:

"My family history is going to be kept in pictures. I plan to take at least one roll of pictures a week—many more whenever possible. Whenever we do anything—move to a new house—go on a week-end trip—plant flowers—celebrate a birthday or an anniversary—add a new member—whatever it is, the story will be told in pictures."

His plans go further than that, too. His picture record is to be kept in handy, useful form. "There will be a new picture book for every year," he told me. "I plan to have the best shots enlarged, and mount the others contact size. Everything goes into the book, where we'll always be able to find it and recall—from our own snapshots—what we did in past days."

There, now, is an idea for all of us. In every family, things happen each day that we would like to remember. We buy new furniture, plant gardens, build a trellis for roses, put new screens on the back porch, take vacation trips. Children are born, grow up, change year by year. We change, too. And a true day-by-day picture-history of all our everyday activities, as well as activities not-so-everyday, would greatly enrich our memories in later years.

Let's make a mental note—make it a household ritual, and abide by it. "A picture a day keeps the family history up to date. And a complete picture-book each year keeps it permanently."

John van Guilder.

Each family picture-book becomes more treasured as the years roll by.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

DRAMATIC SEA RESCUE

Four Marine Corps flyers, accompanied by a naval surgeon, peered through the haze of the Carribbean sky on a July afternoon in 1936. They were looking for the steamship Catherine, whose captain, Terrance Burrows, had been gravely wounded by a seaman who had suddenly gone stark mad.

The airman's goal was merely a dot on the broad expanse of waters about 140 miles away. Smoke clouds from the vessel's funnels helped guide them to their mark. Finally, the ship was sighted and the amphibian plane settled down on a choppy sea, which caught one of its wings and spun the aircraft around until it righted itself with wings and fuselage dripping with water.

Radio messages, sent from the ship to Puerto Rico, and thence relayed to the Marines' aviation base in the Virgin Islands, had promised the rescue effort. The cryptic message gave few details save one significant phrase: "An hour gained may save my life."

Once the airmen had alighted on the tossing Caribbean, their problem was only partly solved. The Catherine's lifeboat, with the wounded man aboard, was edged toward the plane until a wave thrust its bow close enough to the nose of the amphibian to permit the safe transfer of the wounded captain to the airship.

Twice when the plane attempted to take off it was buffeted and nearly swamped in the heavy seas, while its crew tried to gain the necessary speed. On the third trial it rose in the air and sped toward Puerto Rico. The wounded man, who received first aid en route, recovered.

No code of either honor or duty compelled these flyers to undertake their voluntary and hazardous rescue mission. It proved to be as exciting as any venture which may have occurred in those waters during the earlier days of the Spanish Main.

WHERE increased weight is desired for farm livestock, such as in quick "finishing" of hogs for market, the value of ground grain has been definitely established.

Naturally the farmer is vitally concerned with the most economical and generally satisfactory method of grinding. . . . The development of the small, portable electric grinder has eliminated time consuming trips to the mill, and farmers who use it have proved that electricity can cut grinding costs to a new low.

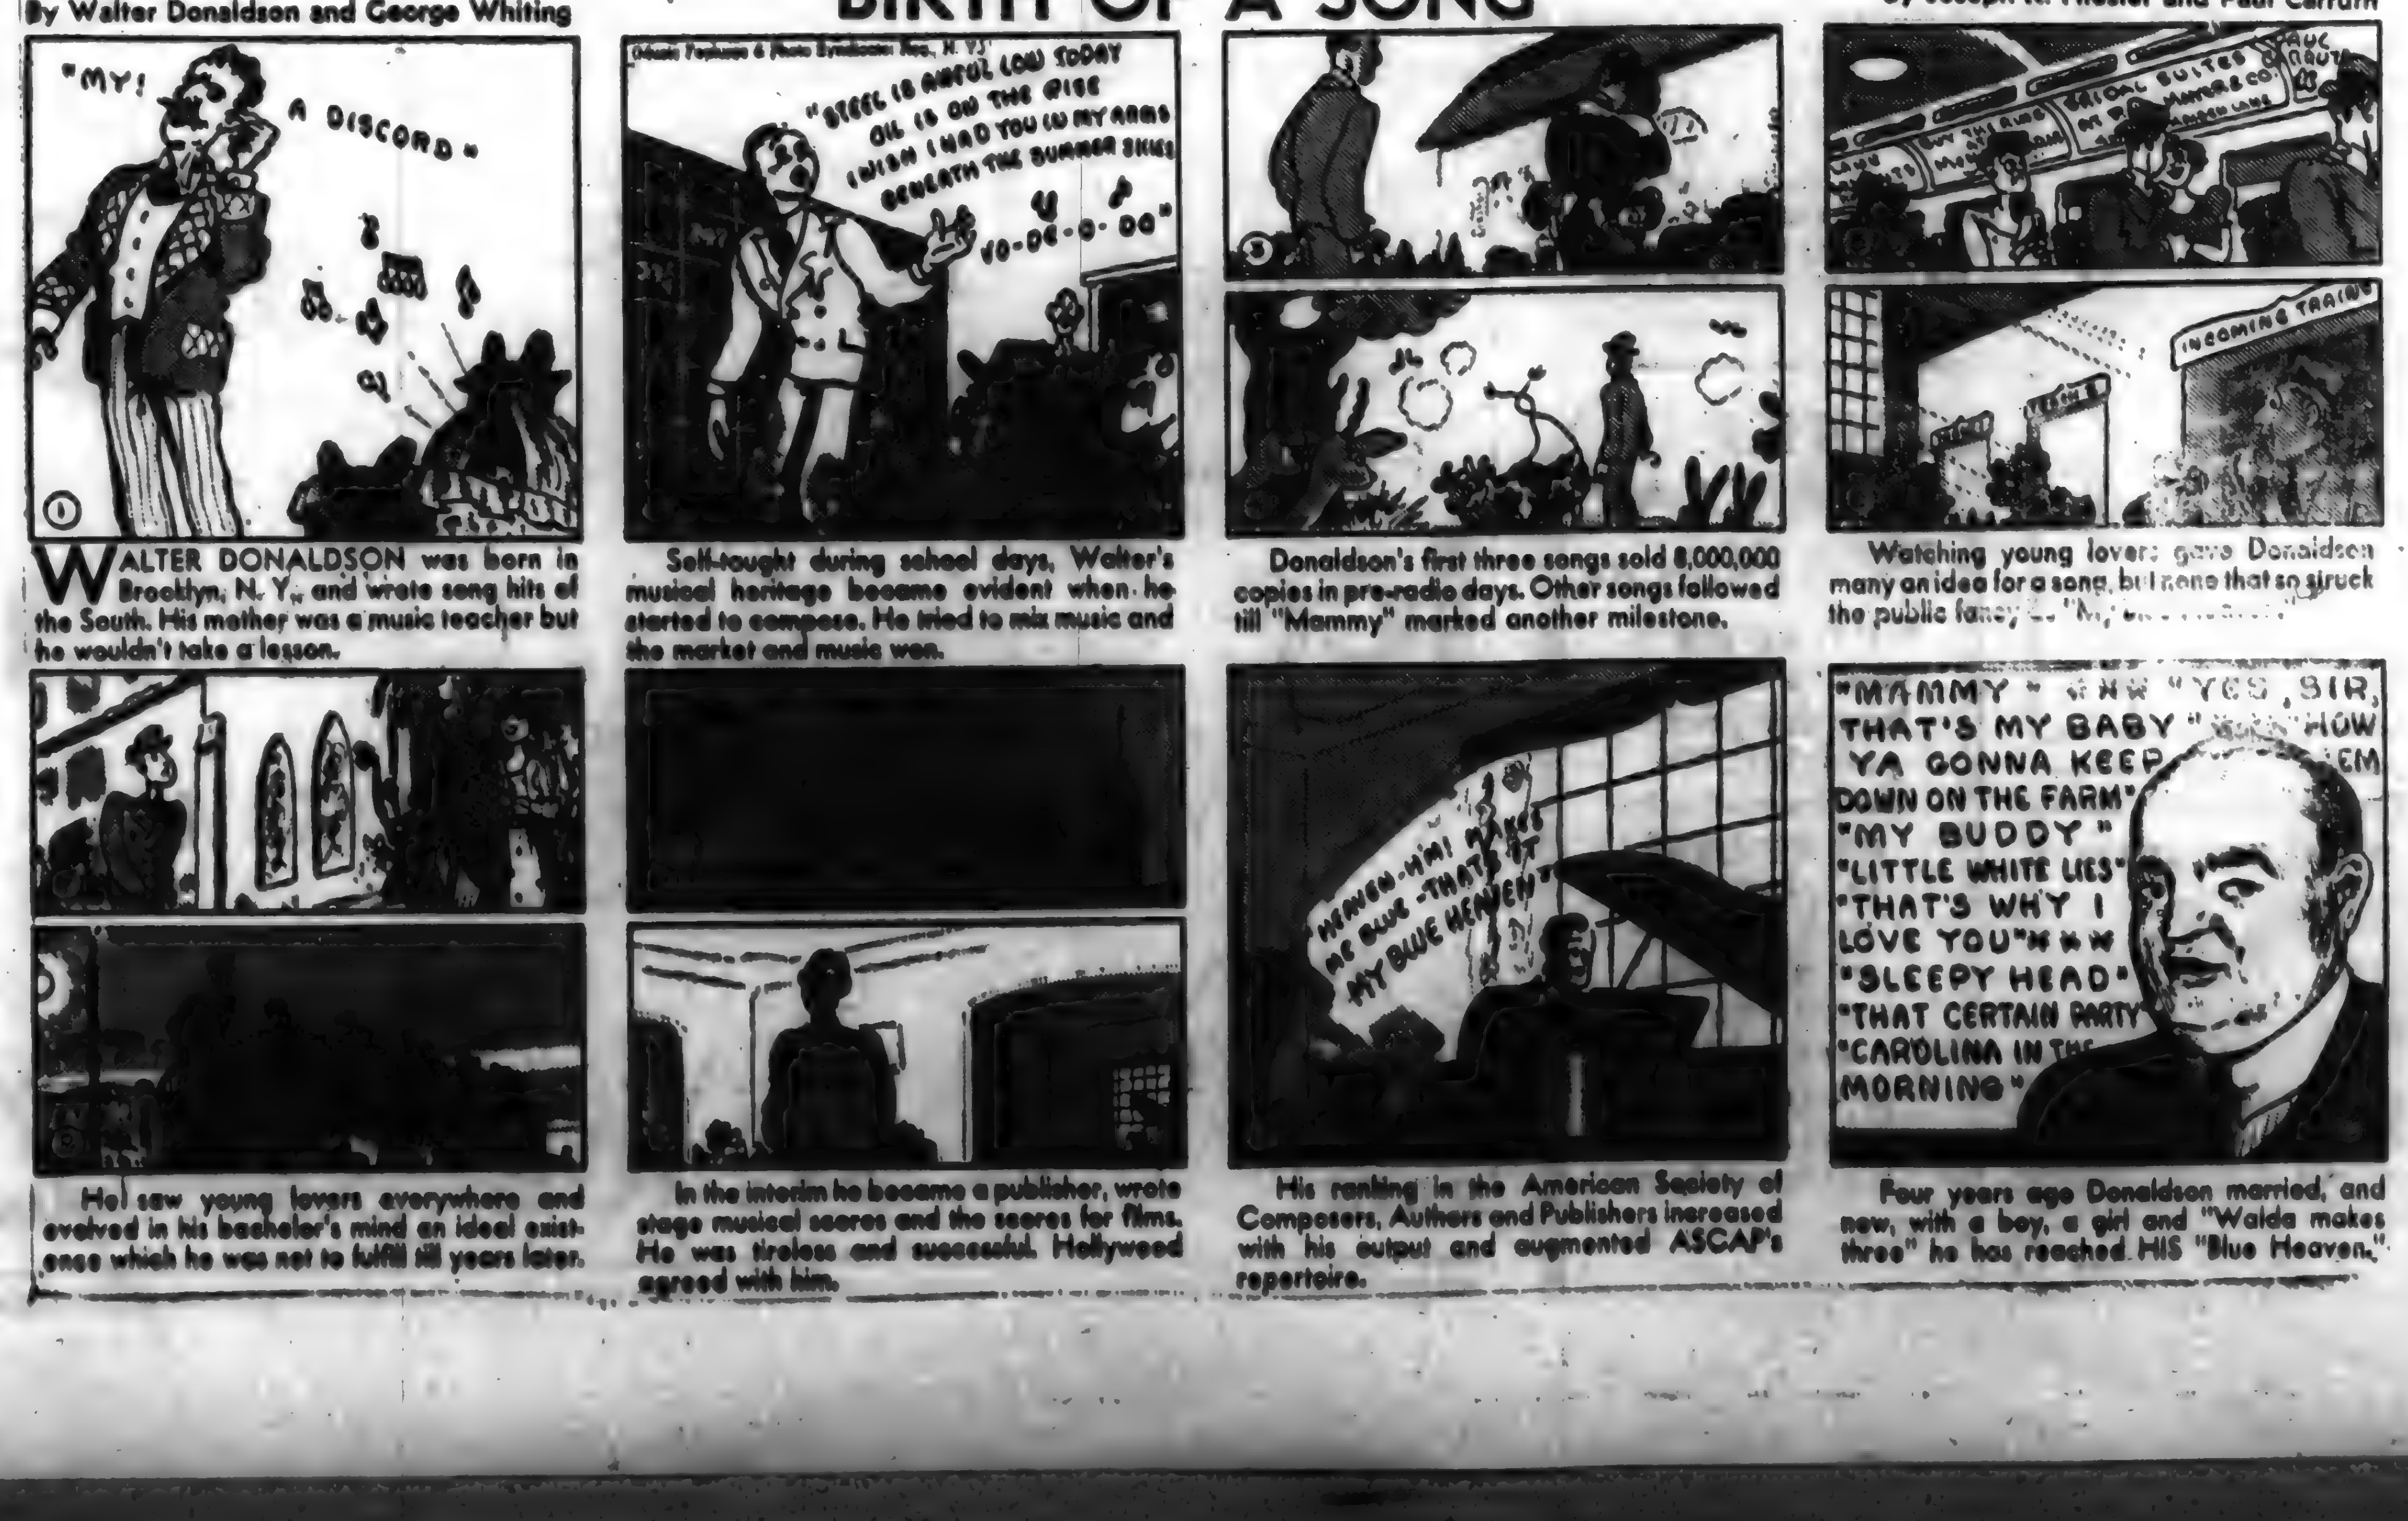
"My Blue Heaven"
By Walter Donaldson and George Whiting

BIRTH OF A SONG

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth



"MY! A DISCORD"
"STEEL IS AWFUL LOW TODAY OIL IS ON THE RISE I WISH I HAD YOU IN MY ARMS BENEATH THE SUMMER SKIES VO-DE-O-DO"
INCOMING TRAINS
"HEAVEN-HM! MAKES ME BLUE - THAT'S IT MY BLUE HEAVEN"
"MAMMY" "YES, SIR, THAT'S MY BABY" "HOW YA GONNA KEEP 'EM DOWN ON THE FARM" "MY BUDDY" "LITTLE WHITE LIES" "THAT'S WHY I LOVE YOU" "SLEEPY HEAD" "THAT CERTAIN PARTY" "CAROLINA IN THE MORNING"

WALTER DONALDSON was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and wrote song hits of the South. His mother was a music teacher but he wouldn't take a lesson.

Self-taught during school days, Walter's musical heritage became evident when he started to compose. He tried to mix music and the market and music won.

Donaldson's first three songs sold 8,000,000 copies in pre-radio days. Other songs followed till "Mammy" marked another milestone.

Watching young lovers gave Donaldson many an idea for a song, but none that so struck the public fancy as "[illegible]"

He saw young lovers everywhere and evolved in his bachelor's mind an ideal existence which he was not to fulfill till years later.

In the interim he became a publisher, wrote stage musical scores and the scores for films. He was tireless and successful. Hollywood agreed with him.

His ranking in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers increased with his output and augmented ASCAP's repertoire.

Four years ago Donaldson married, and now, with a boy, a girl and "Walda makes three" he has reached HIS "Blue Heaven."

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1938 NUMBER 32

WPA WORKERS ON STRIKE OVER NAMING OF FOREMAN

A short-lived strike among WPA workers on Road 101 south of Butler was terminated Monday at 1 P. M. when workers accepted the ultimatum of local WPA officials that they must accept the appointment of a new foreman, or lose their jobs. The reason for the action was the appointment, effective Monday morning, of a non-certified foreman. However, after discussion among themselves and consultation with the officials at Auburn, the men decided to return to their work.

The new foreman appointed was J. M. Leighty, who had been employed by the county for the past few years on special work. It is reported that the strikers wanted one of their gang to have the appointment.

ROADSIDE BEAUTIFICATION

The Indiana Highway Department has invited the State organization of Women to co-operate in making a program of road-side beautification and safety.

The Federated Clubs have included this subject in their ajenda for the year and their members, or any other group of women, are requested to submit specific recommendations by letter, to Mrs. Herman Brown, of Auburn, DeKalb County chairman for the project. Mrs. Nelson Richey, of Fort Wayne, is District chairman and Miss Julia Landers, heads the state organization. The recommendations will be co-ordinated by Miss Landers in council with Mr. H. J. Schnitznis, Landscape Supervisor of the State Highway Department.

The following outline will serve as a basis for suggestions:

1. Note safety hazards of intersecting roads. Shrubbery, weeds, trees, or bill boards obstructing views.
2. Note opportunities for roadside landscape, development, stressing use of native shrubs, redbud, dogwood, etc.
3. Note—Junk yards—and make suggestions for screening them from view.
4. Suggestions for beautifying unsightly roadsides at the entrance to your home town.

ST. JOE, SATURDAY Night

HAPPINESS C. O. D.

(7 reels)

Running Time: 70 Minutes

Story and Screenplay: Robert Ellis and Helen Logan

Director: Charles Lamont

Cast: Maude Eburne, Donald Meek, Irene Ware, William Bakewell, Polly Ann Young, Lona Andre, Frank Coughlan, Jr., Malcolm MacGregor and others.

HAPPINESS C. O. D. is an unusual story of a very unusual family. It deals humorously with the tribulations of Thomas Sheridan, the long suffering father of a family of spendthrifts. Papa Sherridan, played by Donald Meek, is beaten at every turn in his efforts to force economy upon his extravagant children.

Then, Aunt Addie, played by Maude Eburne, takes a hand in the proceedings, and she soon shows her brother a thing or two about handling youngsters. Aunt Addie, of course, saves the day and the old homestead, but not until the frightened family has almost turned the house upside down, fleeing from her bombasting wrath.

A hilarious solution to the problem that besets every family. A new formula for getting your own "Happiness C. O. D."

LOCAL AND PERSONAL ITEMS

Miles Baxter, Claude Fitch, William Goe, A. D. Beebe, James Guy, C. E. Rainier, Frank Lyon, James Eldridge, Henry Osbun, Wayne Van Auken, E. T. Cochran, Charles Falka and Calvin C. Arthur Lyon, formerly of Auburn and now conducting a general store at St. Joe was given the rank of Esquire in the lodge. The Auburn knights exemplified the work.

A get-together meeting, hurriedly called, was held Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Leighty on their lawn, for the purpose of meeting Dr. Geo. W. Gillie, Republican candidate for congress. A good attendance and a representative group from the Tri-Townships enjoyed the evening. The program was informal. Miss Martha Olinger, of Garrett, gave a couple of readings; James Hart, of Coburntown played and sang for the crowd and was cheerfully received. A number of impromptu talks were made and a general good time was had. This was the first of a series of open forum meetings.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

Receipts of stock in all departments was much lighter than last week and prices for the most part were lower, in line with the recent drop in terminal market prices.

Hogs: 175 to 225, $9.10. Fat sows, $6.00 to $6.30. There were no light sows on sale but order buyers were present with prices up to $6.75. Feeder pigs were about twenty-five to fifty cents lower than last week.

Veal calves topped at $9.70 with second and even third line calves selling nearer top than buyers expected at the opening of the auction.

Lambs seemed to change hands mostly at a range of $7.00 to $7.50. Feeders are buying thin lambs freely for their feed lots.

There were not many butcher cattle on sale and it seemed hard to get grass steers above $7.50. Heifers $5.00 to $6.50. The top on fat cows was $4.80. Bulls mostly $5.75 to $6.00.

TAFT ISSUED FRANK STATEMENT OF AFFAIRS

Thoughtful people must admire the frank stand of Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, who is a candidate for Republican nomination for United States senator at the primary election on August 9. Mr. Taft freely declares his stand in an advertisement in the current issue of the Ohio Farmer. Taft is convinced that federal control of production has failed and will continue to fail to maintain prices, that it will further increase unemployment, further upset the necessary rotation of crops, further infringe upon the farmer's freedom and keep him from developing his farm as he knows best. He believes that production control should be repealed, and competing imports checked by a tariff equal to the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. Taft's record indicates that he is a careful thinker and a powerful champion of common sense methods and economics, and it is quite probable that the people of that state will not only see that he is nominated but that he is also elected in November.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy and also for the many flowers after the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. John Engle.

Prehistoric Earthworks Attract Visitors to Mounds Park

Prehistoric earthworks, formed by a vanished race which once inhabited much of Eastern Indiana and Western Ohio, are among the attractions which each year draw thousands of visitors to Mounds State Park. Undisturbed for generations, the mounds hold the secret of their original purpose and whatever mementoes may have been placed within them by the builders.

Mounds State Park is located on Roads 32 and 67, east of Anderson, and is bordered by White River. It has an area of 251 acres and was established as a state park in 1930, as a means of preserving the series of mounds.

Most interesting of the series is the Great Mound with its encircling embankment that is nine feet high and twelve hundred feet in circumference. It is believed that this was a ceremonial mound.

This area was well known to the Indians who succeeded the Mound Builders, and the high bluff on which the arrow-makers had their lodge is another of the points-of-interest. Small pieces of chipped flint and an occasional arrow-head are found in this vicinity. A display of arrow-heads is housed in the Pavilion, where meals and refreshments are available.

The park area is heavily wooded and is threaded by foot trails and bridle paths which carry the hiker and the equestrian to all places of interest. There are attractive picnic and camping areas which serve thousands of visitors each year. Shelter houses, outdoor ovens, tables and benches, and other facilities are provided for the picnic group or the camper. The Park is a popular stopping place for tourists traveling with trailers.

THE recent tragic death of James Weldon Johnson separated brothers, who had been composing songs for two generations. The elder was, besides, an outstanding lecturer and leader of his race.

They were born in Jacksonville, Florida, educated in Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga. J. Rosamond went to Boston to study music. James Weldon became principal of the Stanton School in Jacksonville.

The summer of 1899, they left for New York City to interest producers in some songs they had written. They were taken up by many celebrities, including the famous vaudeville performer, Bob Cole.

They soon formed a partnership with him and created many songs and frequently made the rounds together.

Walking up lower Broadway, J. Rosamond hummed a negro spiritual, and Bob Cole was quick to see that it had popular possibilities.

They wrote the song, but the publisher didn't like it, and kept it in a drawer until Marie Cahill sang it to success.

The Johnsons and Cole were the songwriting sensations of the world in the first decade of the century.

When the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers was formed in 1914 the brothers were able to protect their copyrighted songs against infringement by commercial users of music.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1938 NUMBER 33

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE GROWERS MEET

Last Wednesday evening a number of fruit and vegetable growers in the St. Joe River Valley met in the St. Joe school building in response to an announcement made the week before. For several years there has been growing a feeling that some selling outlet for the products of the Valley would help to make the growing of fruits and vegetables more profitable, and this meeting was to formulate some plan for marketing that might help the growers find a better market.

The handling of cantaloupes was stressed at the meeting because that crop is about ready to move and must have immediate attention if anything is to be done this year. The growers of about a hundred acres were present and showed an interest in the proposals that were discussed.

The meeting was addressed by Mr. A. F. Sephens from the Agricultural Developement Department of the B. & O. Railway and by Mr. J. R. Dickerson, Chief of Federal Inspection of Fruits and Vegetables for the states of Indiana and Kentucky.

Mr. Stephens believed it would be possible to have an experienced and reliable buyer establish a packing and grading depot at St. Joe so that the growers would bring their melons in as they were at their best when they would be graded, packed and precooled for shipment to Eastern markets.

The cantaloupes from this district come in at the same time as those from Colorado which at present control the market prices, and since there is a much lower freight cost from here than from Colorado we should be able to get a little more for our product than the Colorado grower, provided our melons can be substituted for the Western ones on the Eastern market. Both Mr. Stephens and Mr. Dickerson thought this could be done.

Mr. Dickerson made a very interesting talk on the effect of rigid grading and inspection on the marketing of fruits and vegetables and since he has no interest in any commission house or broker or in any way connected with the commercial handling of the products his talk was unbiased and only for the information of those who were in the business of growing and shipping or selling the products.

Mr. Dickerson gave several examples of growing districts that had made a success of growing and shipping thru proper grading after having failed without it. The use of the Federal Inspection is growing as it not only raises the quality of the product that goes to market but protects both the seller and buyer against misrepresentation and stabilizes the market so that when a certain grade is sold or contracted for both the seller and buyer know exactly what their obligation is and the Federal Inspection is taken as final in the settlement of all disputes that may come up.

Mr. Stephens went from heer to Cincinnati to report what he found to a buyer he had discussed the matter with before he came here, and we should know in a few days what can be done with this year's crop. At any rate some good has already come from the meeting as there was a party here Saturday looking into the situation for a large buyer in Louisville, who had heard of the meeting through Mr. Dickerson.

PLEAD GUILTY IN U. S. COURT AT WAYNE

Lewis Loftus, 27, and Floyd Knisely, or Freeze, of St. Joe, pleaded guilty when they were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Wm. D. Remmel in Fort Wayne on a charge of breaking into the St. Joe postoffice. They remain in jail at Ft. Wayne under $500 bond pending further proceedings. Their loot consisted of only a few stamps. Entrance was gained by prying open a rear window.

The local postoffice has been broken into a number of times during the past two years and just why local men would attempt such a thing is more than our citizens can figure out. They could not hope to get anything sufficient to warrant such an act, but it only goes to prove that those who contemplate such acts are bound to slip sooner or later and give themselves away.

Aquatic Stars to Perform at Shakamak State Park.......

Below: Drinking fountain and oven shelter in the picnic area.

For the fourth consecutive year swimming and diving stars from Indiana and neighboring states will compete at Shakamak State Park on August 20 and 21, to determine championships in National Junior, Mid-States, and Indiana-Kentucky A. A. U. events.

A record number of entries has been assured for the 26 events to be staged during the two days under the supervision of Amateur Athletic Union officials and the joint sponsorship of the Departmet of Conservation and the Jasonville Industrial Bureau. Among the title-holders who are expected to participate in the 1938 meet are: Theron Feigel, Huntington Y. M. C. A.; Al Rust, Indianapolis Athletic Club; Helen Lee Smith, Indianapolis Athletic Club; George Lowe, University of Illinois; Mary M. Ryan, Louisville; Gerald Rudig, Huntington Y. M. C. A.; Al Patnik, Ohio State University; Adolph Keifer, Chicago; Bettijane Whitcomb, Indianapolis Athletic Club, and others.

Trials for the various events will be staged at 10 o'clock each morning during the two-day meet, with the finals starting at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoons.

Shakamak State Park, scene of the meet, is one of the most popular of Indiana's parks; noted for its fishing in Lake Shakamak and Lake Jason; for its attractive picnic and camping areas, its wooded trails, and other points of interest. Deer, elk and buffalo occupy strong corrals and a number of game birds and waterfowl are displayed in an aviary near the corrals.

The Park is on Roads 48 and 159, just east of Jasonville and 33 miles southeast of Terre Haute. It is widely known as the site of 4-H club and other group outings attended by hundreds of boys and girls, and is the setting for scores of community, club and other picnic outings. The location of the park in the coal-mining section of the state adds to its attracion for visitors from other areas who are unfamiliar with the mining procedure.

(Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the attitude of the publisher or editor of this newspaper. —Editor's Note.)

Down in Georgia President Roosevelt has opposed the re-election or renomination of Senator Walter George because, he said, George is not a liberal.

He said that if he were voting in the Democratic primary in Georgia, he unquestionably would vote for Lawrence Camp, one of George's opponents.

"He (George) is beyond question a gentleman and a scholar—but so also are other gentlemen for whom I have an affectionate regard but with whom I differ heartily and sincerely on the principles and policies of how the government of the United States should be directed."

His speech was one of the most interesting that ever has been made by any president of the United States. In the past, it has been considered that when a president was elected he became the president of all the people. There also has been a view that a president, following his election should take no actual part in influencing party primaries or in influencing elecions unless he, himself, was a candidate for office.

President Roosevelt, however, has boasted of the fact that he breaks a precedent every day. This, then, is another broken precedent.

The president's views differ materially from those of a great many people concerning the functions of a legislator. Mr. Roosevelt objects to Mr. George because Mr. George's ideas do not coincide with his own.

Actually, the function of a legislator is to vote his own views on any issue. His constituents elect him to office because they believe that his views reflect their views. They do not elect him to office because his views reflect the views of the chief executive of the nation.

President Roosevelt seems to have an entirely different conception of what a legislator should be and should do. He seems to think that a legislator is elected to reflect the views of the chief executive—not the views of his constituents and not his own views.

If the views of the president were correct on this question, why elect legislators to office at all? Why not just vest all of the power in one man?

If the legislators are not to vote their own views or the views of their constituents but merely the views of one man, then it seems to us that the people of the United States are wasting a lot of money by paying legislators merely to be yes men.

For instance, there are a great many farmers in Indiana and other central states who do not agree with the administration's program on crop allotment. President Roosevelt does believe in that crop allotment program. It would be his argument, then, that legislators should be elected to agree with him on the crop allotment and not to express the views of the farmers who are opposed to that program.

This "broken precedent" idea is a bad one from the American point of view. Precedents are the unwritten laws of the land. England, for example, has no constitution. It depends on precedent—the unwritten constitution—for decisions in most of its problems.

Football Time!

Crashing its way into the headlines once again comes football, king of autumn sports. Local interest in the game will reach a peak during the next few weeks. Pictured here is Capt. Joe Kilgrow of last year's Alabama championship team, who was picked on several all-American teams.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

A KING IN KHAKI

Novel as the adventures of the U. S. Marines have been, few of them could equal the bizarre experience of Faustin E. Wirkus, who unwittingly acquired a kingdom while he was merely exercising a mild control over the natives of the Island of La Gonave in Haiti.

During the Marines' occupation of Haiti, Wirkus was assigned the task of administering law and justice on the island. The skill of the white man impressed the islanders. He had a knowledge of mechanics, agriculture and sanitation which amazed these simple folk, whose lives were almost as primitive as those of their African forebears.

Through an odd coincidence his first name, Faustin, fitted in with a popular legend that a former monarch of that name would return to rule over them. The island already had a queen and Wirkus was appointed by them to share her rule, not as her consort, but as a bachelor sovereign whose decicions would outweigh those of their dusky matriarch.

No foolish dreams of romance or empire entered the practical mind of Wirkus, whose boyhood had been spent in the coal mines of Pittston, Pa. He was not a little embarrassed when they insisted on crowning him king to the beating of tom-toms, the waving of palm leaves and a ceremony which conformed to the Haitian idea of a regal ritual.

For nearly four years Wirkus ruled in somewhat less than kingly majesty, while he performed the combined services of a marine sergeant, a lieutenant in the Garde d'Haiti, and "King of Gonave," under the official supervision of the Marine Corps.

His benevolent rule ended when the exigencies of the service led to his transfer elsewhere in 1931. Behind him he left an excellent record for sobriety, deportment and just dealing, along with many loyal subjects who mourned the departure of their king in khaki.

MILLION DOLLAR BABY

(8 reels)

Running Time: 80 Minutes
Story by: Joseph Stantley
Director: Joseph Stantley
Cast: Jimmy Fay, Arline Judge, Ray Walker, George E. Stone, Eddie Kane, Willard Robertson, Ralf Harolde, Lee Shumway, Ed Peil, Paul Porcasi, Wilbur Mack, Jeanette Loff.

MILLION DOLLAR BABY is the amusing story of the frenzied efforts of a rival film company to find a new Shirley Temple. Ray Walker and Arline Judge, playing the parents of Little Jimmy, determine to enter their son in the contest. Much agaist his wishes, Little Jimmy is forced to don a blonde wig and enter the competition under the distasteful name of Patricia Sweeney.

He wins the contest and many amusing complications ensue as the parents attempt to disguise the fact that the little girl is really a little boy. Further laughable and thrilling situations develop when gangsters learn that the child has been insured for a million dollars and decide to kidnap him.

Jimmy Fay, newest sensation of the screen who has just passed his fourth birthday, has the title role, perhaps one of the most difficult that has even been written for a child performer.

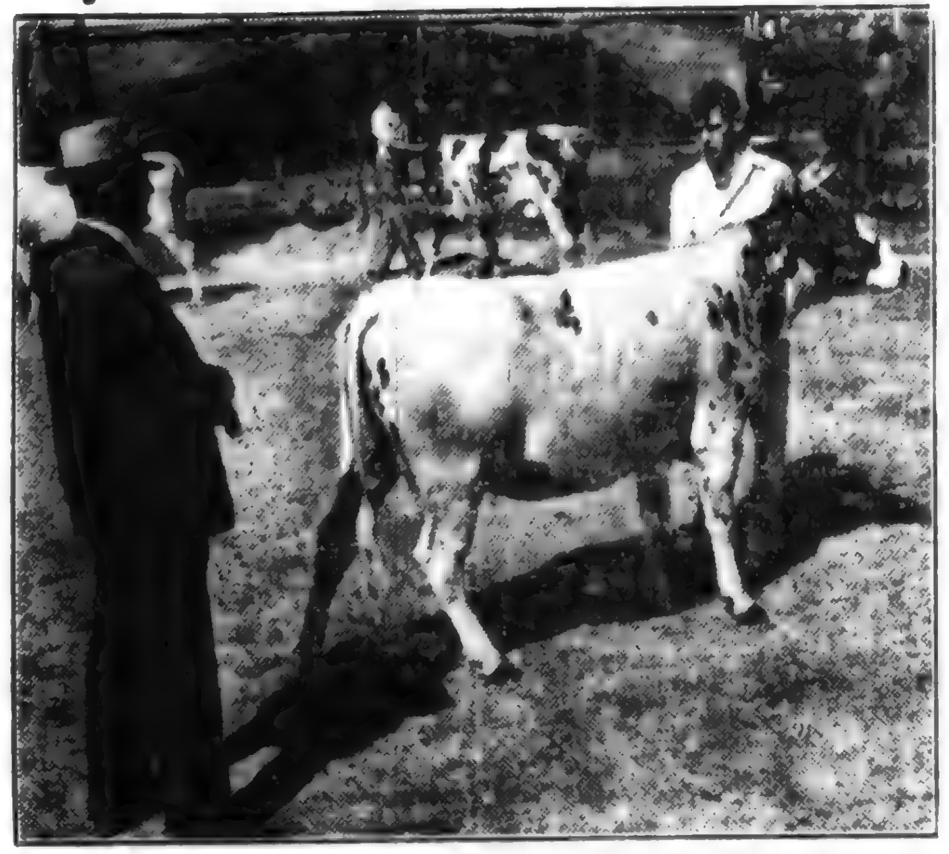
The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURES AT THE FAIR



Stock showings provide snapshot chances at the fair—and so do many other events. Take the camera wherever things are going on!

COUNTY and State fairs supply a wealth of picture material for the busy camera. So do street fairs and carnivals. Take your camera along when you visit these lively affairs, and you'll have no difficulty keeping it active all day long.

On such occasions, there is always plenty going on, and wherever things are happening one can find subjects for pictures. Especially do these events offer opportunities for the "off-guard" type of story-telling snapshots. The vendor of toy balloons making a sale, the fat man munching a hamburger at a midway booth, the "barker" in front of a sideshow, the child gazing longingly at the merry-go-round — these are but samples of the dozens of picture chances you may find in an afternoon's visit.

And there are many other types of snapshots to take. One always finds contests and exhibits, ranging from home-canned peaches to prize watermelons, chocolate layer-cakes and the "best bushels" of corn. Snapshots of the judging, as well as the exhibits, make good pictures for your collection. Too, there are horse and livestock shows that offer many picture-taking possibilities.

Keep your eyes open, try to capture the spirit of the fair in all its aspects, and you will come home with a pocket full of good snapshots. These occasions just give point to an old rule—if you want really good pictures, and plenty of them, take the camera where there's something going on!

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

Some drivers insist on doing foolish stunts day in and day out although they know better. Some of these stunts are staged during the worst kind of weather.

Recently during a severe thunder storm when driving conditions were bad, rain was falling in torrents, and visibility was poor, driver after driver passed me on curves and hills.

Hurry to get home, worry over open windows and curtains getting wet, and fear that the new carpet would get soaked by the rain—these and many other silly reasons are frequently given for the haste and violation of all traffic rules which endangers the drivers' lives as well as the lives of others.

Such drivers are just plain fools. They simply will not, or do not want to learn; therefore, the law should take action and revoke their driver's licenses until they learn how to drive.

We have repeatedly mentioned in this column that the one thing needed by drivers today is more courtesy. Place a little more trust in your own ability to drive, and make that ability live up to the trust you have placed in yourself.

A great many of our traffic accidents could be prevented if people would only realize that they cannot depend upon the other fellow doing the thing which common sense, or the law, or courtesy dictates should be done.

In other words, in driving today you cannot trust anybody but yourself.

Courtesy pays.

The fish in the North Eastern Indiana lakes and streams benefit from the Glacial Soil of this region. The State Department of Conservation has found that the vegetation growing in the bottoms of the lakes and streams of this area make the best food for the developmet of the game fish they raise and plant for the improvement of the sport of fishing.

This area has a geological history not found in many other places in the world. The Carboniferous, Reptilion and Tertiary formations are missing. A long time ago a mountain range was thrown up from Newfoundland to The Lake of the Woods, Canada, and about the same time the ocean currents were thrown in close to the North American shore far to the North.

As a result of the warm water in the cold North, the snow piled up to great depths and glaciers began to push Southward, scouring off the mountains until very little is left of them.

It is hard to get in mind a picture of ice a mile or more deep and a thousand miles wide moving south carrying the mountains along, grinding them into sand, gravel and large boulders, but that is the way this Glacial soil got here. As the front edge of the ice met the warm sun tremendous rivers were formed and poured over the mile high ice front gouging out the Great Lakes and carrying ice bergs loaded with pulverized mountains to make this wonderful soil. This was slower transportation than modern trucks but was certainly effective. When one of those big boys dumped a load there surely was a pile of mud in North Eastern Indiana. The small lakes were the result of lesser waterfalls. Many of the smaller lakes and ponds have filled with decayed vegetation and made the Muck and Peat soils.

These changes in soils ranging from heavy clay through sand and gravel in all sorts of variations together with muck makes possible a great variety of production.

People who grew up in this territory and were accustomed to the things raised here were never quite satisfied with the flavor of fruits and vegetables when they went away from home, as they tasted flat, but laid it to prejudice. Since travel has become more general and direct comparisons, more easily made by canning and fast shipments, the earlier impressions are confirmed. This soil does produce more flavorable products.

The Honey Rock Cantaloupe was developed here and has spread to other places, but it is not the Honey Rock of its native locality. Some sweet corn is raised and hauled a hundred miles where a canning plant that has found its value pays a good premium for it. Strawberries raised on this soil are said to be among the best for flavoring ice cream and other prepared foods, while canned tomatoes from this soil bring a top price. Bush berries are of fine flavor but not raised yet in enough volume to attract processors. Apples of any given size or variety weigh more per bushel than from most other localities. Of course, every one knows about the peppermint raised here and recently spinach for canning has become a recognized crop. Potatoes are raised on both sand and muck land, while onions are raised in considerable volume on the much soil.

These uses of the soil have grown up in rather a haphazard way, attention having been given to raising rather than marketing the products. As it is becoming more generally recognized that the products are really superior, marketing is being given more attention and the State University has begun to educate the grower in several phases of market requirements.

A short time ago at a meeting of the LaGrange County Horticultural Society it was decided to form an organization of the fruit and vegetable growers in the four north-eastern counties of the state to give particular attention to he development of markets for the products of these counties which have Glacial Soil.

The program contemplates investigation into the best uses to be made of the things that can be raised here of superior quality. The organization was effected at a meeting at Wolcottville. The first officers are: President, Henry Shull, Rome City; vice president, Paul Rhoem, Shipshewanna; secretary, Henry Rehm, Shipshewanna. The directors are J. M. Yoder, Wolcottville, and Paul Rhoem for LaGrange county and Henry Shull for Noble county; Ora Butler, Pleasant Lake, for Steuben, and Jno. R. Leighty, St. Joe, for DeKalb counties. After membership has been built up it is intended to have two directors from each county.

It is the expectation of those who formed the organization that they may be able to let the trade know something about the products of these Glacial soils that will be of benefit to both the growers and the buyers of the things that are raised here.

LATE BULLETIN !!

We have just learned that after a tour of a part of the St. Joe River Valley looking at the growing cantaloupes, a commission house has decided to try out a plan for marketing them this year.

If they have the success they expect they will go into the market on as large a scale next year as the growers will supply. They will require the melons from at least sixty five acres before they can feel assured of enough to supply the smallest market they go into. Mr. Stephens, Agricultural Agent for the B. & O. Ry., is visiting the growers today to get promises of at least that acreage and the commission people will begin shipping within two or three days after the necessary seventy acres are in sight.

It will be impossible for Mr. Stephens to see every one who may want to take advantage of this chance to help make the trial a success, so do not think you are being left out if he does not see you. If you have cantaloupes and believe that the development of a market here at home will be a good thing for the future, call at The News office for particulars, or see Mr. Jno. R. Leighty, who will know of the details of the proposed plan.

It now looks as if the plans and hopes of the last three or four years are about to be realized.

PEADS "NOT GUILTY" TO PUBLIC INTOXICATION CHARGE

Elgin Curie, of St. Joe, made another of his frequent appearances in the DeKalb circuit court Friday on a charge of public intoxication.

Asked by Judge Endicott how he wanted to plead, Curie replied, "Not guilty." Bond was set at $300. Then the defendant made a plea to be released on his own recognizance. He claimed he was in a private building when he was arrested and was not bothering anyone and therefore was not guilty. He insisted he had some "important work to do."

However, the court denied the request. "I have heard many complaints about you," the court commented. It was reported to the court that Curie, who has served time at the state farm and also in the county jail, has been drunk for the last two or three weeks and at times drove his mother, Mrs. DeLora Curie, away from home.

The affidavit was signed by Henry S. Platner, who was named some time ago to take Curie's place as administrator of the estate of his father, the late Wm. Curie, who was a well known St. Joe merchant.

Curie was unable to furnish bond and was taken to jail pending trial.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Many motorists have complained to me about the hitch-hikers. Their question usually is, "What shall we do with the hitch-hikers"

My answer is: "Let him hike."

Frequently people decide to pick up hitch-hikers, stop suddenly on the road, give no warning to others behind them, and thus cause accidents.

Hitch-hikers themselves are becoming more daring daily. To avoid hitting them motorists have to turn out of their regular lane of traffic and hereby endanger other cars going in the opposite direction.

The sooner we let the hitch-hiker hike, the sooner he will disappear.

METHODIST CHURCH URGED TO FIGHT LIQUOR TRAFFIC

L. E. York, superintendent of the Indiana anti-saloon league, in a speech before the Indiana Methodist Protestant conference at the camp grounds just east of the soldiers home at Marion, Ind., pleaded for church members to "unite their minds and hearts in a determined effort to rid the state of the greatest enemy of the home, church and school—the beverage liquor traffic."

"Home rule cannot be realized so long as we send to the legislature men who are engaged in the wholesale and retail liquor business, and whose chief purpose in the general assembly is to block all temperance legislation," York asserted.

An effort against the present liquor program must include both an educational and legislative program," York said. "We must unceasingly remind the people, and especially the youth, that alcohol is a narcotic habit-forming drug and racial poison.

"We must constantly be reminded that alcohol is now the greatest ally of crime, and by far the major factor in motor traffic accidents.

"Indiana Methodism has at least 180,000 voters in its membership which should be a vital factor in deciding the fate of liquor traffic," York concluded.

"A MAN'S LAND"

(7 reels)

Running Time: 70 Minutes
Story by: Adele Buffington
Director: Phil Rose
Cast: Hoot Gibson, Marion Shilling, Skeeter Bill Robbins, Ethel Wales, Robert Ellis, Al Bridge, Charles King, Hal Burney, Bill Nye.

A MAN'S LAND is the greatest of all the Hoot Gibsons. It is vividly dramatic, teeming with romance, suspense, comedy, intrigue, alive with bristling action. From the very start to the finish, it bristles with sparkling entertainment. There is never a dull moment—never a foot of film that is not vitally alive.

In the picture, Gibson is portrayed as the partner-manager of a vast ranch. His partner is a city girl, who does not know the West, but has very determined ideas as to how she would like to change it. Romance, roguery, and comedy play a big part in the detailing of the story, and there is enough daring adventure, hard riding and climatical situations to do for half a dozen usual pictures.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURING THE HOUSE

Careful "framing" with trees made this snapshot more pleasing.

Space didn't permit taking a complete view, but the doorway and roof angles alone made a charming shot.

ALMOST everyone who has a camera takes pictures of his home, but many of us neglect the few simple suggestions which would make our snapshots of "home sweet home" much more pleasing. Here they are:

First, keep the camera level, or vertical lines will be distorted. Stand back far enough to get the picture without tilting the camera. If necessary, shoot from across the street—perch yourself in a fork of a tree, or maybe a step-ladder will give you the proper elevation.

Second, pick a time when the sun lights the house at the proper angle. The sun rays should strike the house at a slant so that shadows are cast by such details as window frames and weatherboarding. These shadows outline all the brightly lighted projecting details, and they will appear clearly in the picture.

Third, try to "frame" the picture attractively with trees or overhanging branches. Such a natural "frame" for the house gives depth to the picture and adds pictorial charm.

A good fourth rule—use a color filter over the camera lens to give tone to the sky. Rich-toned sky is especially pleasing in pictures of white houses, and it improves the effect of any picture.

If you have no recent pictures of your home, take a few today, following these suggestions. Perhaps your house is so situated that you can't apply all the rules, but each, by itself, will help you produce pictures that more attractively present the place where you live.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

RISKED LIFE FOR COMRADES

Heavy seas pounded on the sandy shore of Jaina Beach, Santo Domingo, where Private John Gerey and several of his Marine Corps buddies were with a swimming party one sultry afternoon in 1923. They were a part of the expeditionary force which at that time was engaged in bringing a measure of stability to the West Indian republic.

Under normal weather conditions in that tropical country it was customary for the marines to take a dip in the Caribbean. Despite the heavy surf and the unusual roughness of the sea, some of the group ventured into the waves, heedless of any immediate danger.

Gerey was watching from the beach, and when two of the swimmers were some distance from the shore he noticed that they were in trouble. Obviously they had become too exhausted to swim back and were in imminent danger of drowning.

Grasping a line he swam boldly to their assistance and succeeded in bringing them part of the distance back to the shore. With great difficulty he was able to get one of the marines within reach of his comrades on the beach. Then Gerey, again risked his life to swim back to the second man whom he finally succeeded in rescuing.

Gerey's brave act was witnessed by his commanding officer and several of his marine comrades. It was a purely voluntary action on his part, and above and beyond the call to duty.

When the facts of this heroic rescue became known Gerey was highly commended by the Commandant of the Marine Corps, and later was awarded a Life-saving Medal of Honor for the "gallant conduct" he displayed.

Eickmeyer—Ginther

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Ginther, of Spencerville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Virginia Lee, to Mr. Robert W. Eickmeyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Eickmeyer, of Fort Wayne. The nuptials were solemnized Friday afternoon, August 26th, at 5:30 o'clock in a quietly impressive and charmingly simple ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. William D. Koehnlein, pastor of the Harlan Methodist Church, read the vows before an altar improvised at the fireplace. Garden flowers and greenery were used to form a colorful and effective banking for the altar. Only members of the immediate families were witnesses of the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a Teal blue velvet costume, cut along princess lines and accented with wine silk pique. Her hat was a high draped turban of blue velvet, with shoulder length veil, and other accessories were in wine. She wore a yellow gold bracelet, set with a large hematite stone, gift of the groom. Belmont gardenias fashioned her waist-length corsage.

The bride's mother wore a sapphire blue lace afternoon dress with navy accessories and a shoulder corsage of Rubrum lilies. Mrs. Eickmeyer, mother of the groom, wore royal blue chiffon with navy accessories and also a corsage of Rubrum lilies.

The briday party was entertained at supper at the residence immediately following the ceremony. The table was centered with a tiered wedding cake flanked by tall white tapers and garlanded with smilax and roses.

During the evening the couple left on a honeymoon trip through the West to the Coast. After September 12 they will be at home at 2002 Gallatin Street, Marion.

The bride was graduated from Indiana University and has been head of the English Department of Morton Memorial High School at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Children's Home at Knightstown for the past three years. She is a member of the Order of Eastern Star. The groom attended Purdue University and is a member of the Beta Chapter of the Sigma Nu Fraternity. He is a representative for the Fort Wayne Agency of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company.

The bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Condrey, and their daughters, Susanne and Margery Lee, of Chicago, were out-of-town guests.

PLANS FOR HANDLING CANTAOUPES ABANDONED FOR THIS YEAR

On account of the small acreage offered the plans for shipping cantiloupes had to be abandoned for this year.

After a considerable effort on the par of those who were trying to establish an outlet for the cantiloupes grown in this neighborhood, it was finally arranged that Gerrard & Co., of Cincinatti, would put in a plant for precooling and shipping melons from St. Joe.

This concern handles about 5,000 cars of cantiloupes a year, beginning with early ones from California and following the crop through as they mature. It so happens that the melons in this neighborhood mature at the same time as the Rocky Ford in Ordway districts in Colorado, and it was thought these melons might be substituted for the Colorado crop.

The shipper would be put to a considerable expense to get ready to handle them, and could not see his way clear to do so with less than the output of at least 70 acres. After a close canvass of the growers, very much less than the repuired acreage was promised so the plans had to be abandoned.

The acreage this year is very much less than it has been in the past due to he lack of an outlet for the melons after they are raised. In the past from five to six hundred acres have been grown, but only a few growers had enough to warrant the long hauls to Cleveland, Pittsburg, Cincinatti and other points where there was a chance to dispose of them at any price. All these markets are within truck distance of melons coming on at the same time as ours and the market has been very much overdone for that reason.

The plan worked out would have done away with this trouble and it is too bad that we will have to wait another year to find out if we can get a wider distribution for our melons through precooling and rail shipment.

The commission man was enough interested to say that if a meeting with the growers could be arranged some time in January to go over the plans for next year, he would come here and go into the matter with them. So think over the possibilities and when the meeting is announced be sureto attend. Don't leave the whole thing to some one else to arrange.

DEATH FROM A DISTANCE
(7 reels)

Running Time: 70 Minutes.

Story and Screenplay by: John W. Krafft.

Director: Frank Strayer

Cast: Russell Hopton, Lola Lane, George Marion, Sr., John St. Polis, Lee Kohlmar, Lew Kelly, Wheeler Oakman, Robert Frazer and others.

Here is a new kind of mystery-thriller with a most unusual setting. Here for the first time, so far as we know, you will see a planetarium projector, a gigantic complicated device which projects a complete picture of the heavens, a device which shows the stars as they are today, as they were a thousand years ago, or as they will be a thousand years hence.

Then, to, as a vital part of the story is a hugh telescope, similar to the one on the top of Mount Wilson, and, of course, a completely equipped, scientifically authentic observatory. The story is as unusual as its background. It is thrilling and baffling and will hold you to the last scene.

The supporting cast is excellent. Russell Hopton walks off with stellar honors in what is undoubtedly his best role; he brings real vitality to one of the most unusual, cleverest, and most likable of all screen detectives. Lola Lane is gay and entirely charming as the reporter who always hinders, rather than helps, the solution of the problem.

McCormick's Creek State Park Grows in Popularity

Below—Canyon Inn with its columnedporch.
Inset—Gatehouse at the Park entrance.

McCormick's Creek State Park, located on Road 46 just east of Spencer, has grown steadily in popularity during recent years both as an all-year outing place and as a site for group camp outings.

Established in 1916 and now including an area of 662 acres, the Park has long been noted for its scenic beauty. McCormick's Creek, from which the Park takes its name, flows through the area to unite with White River. The stream flows through a deep canyon which geologists say was once an underground cavern. Other points of interest include the low falls, the Beech Woods, the Pine Forest, the numerous sink-holes common to the limestone region, and the abandoned quarry from which stone was taken for the foundation of the State capitol.

This year the Park has been host to hundreds of boys and girls, members of 4-H clubs, Scout Troops, and other junior organizations who have occupied the three group camps. This week the group campers have included 300 members of the Clay-Sullivan-Putnam county 4-H clubs, and 40 girls from the Indianapolis U. B. Church Guild. Eleven groups, ten of which enjoyed outings at the Park group camps this year, have already made reservations for the camps in 1939.

The Park has a number of other attractions for visitors: the miles of hiking trails, a nature guide and a natural history museum; a riding stable and several miles of bridle paths; a modern swimming pool, and a fire tower which affords a sweeping view of the country-side.

There are attractive picnic areas in wooded sections of the Park, furnished with tables, benches, comfort stations, outdoor ovens, drinking fountains and shelter houses. The camping areas are available at Canyon Inn, which is open throughout the year and is a popular place with football fans during the fall months.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Another week-end holiday is before us. Labor Day brings thousands and thousands of vacationists to our vacation lands and adds to the number of cars on the highways.

Recently a newspaper editor published a warning on the front page of his paper prior to one of these week-end holidays. It announced that any automobile driver who intended to violate all the rules of the road during these crowded days, who was going to pass cars on hills, go through stop lights, and drive recklessly, should leave a complete obituary with the editor so reporters would not have to bother relatives after the smashup.

Very timely, quite forceful, and effective.

We endorse this recommendation.

REPUBICANS OPEN AUSPICIOUS DRIVE AT WASHINGTON

Embattled Republicans, tenting in a colorful "cornfield conference" on the farm grounds of an Indiana-born manufacturer, rallied Saturday to what John Hamilton, the party's national chairman, called "the beginning of a mighty fight to save the United States.

It was the formal opening of the party's drive to gain congressional strength in the November elections and reinforce its lines for the 1940 presidential campaign. Republicans came from many states for the event and party officials estimated the attendance between 25,000 and 30,000.

Copious quantities of Hoosier fried chicken, baked clams, roast 'n'ears and the music of bands, combined with an afternoon of oratory, made the occasion a festive one. The setting—in a blue and white striped tent city covering 40 acres—resembled an enormous county fair more than a political meeting.

The man on whose farm the big rally was held and who paid the bill, Homer E. Capehart, Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturer, told the gathering he did it because "I am sick and tired of hearing business men condemn the New Deal and then do absolutely nothing about it." Friends estimated the affair cost Capehart $25,000.

"Maybe what we are doing here," Capehart added, "will be an inspiration to millions of others to take an active part in a program to defeat that which would destroy them."

J. W. WADSWORTH

Delivers Keynote Speech

Rep. James W. Wadsworth, of New York, himself a farmer, asserted in the keynote speech that the Roosevelt administration "is gambling" and "the fate of the nation is at stake."

"The gambler lost on his first throw of the dice," Wadsworth said, "and the nation will lose on the second throw—if we do not return to sanity, and that mighty soon."

Wadsworth blamed President Roosevelt "more than any other person or group of persons" for what he called the "second or Roosevelt depression," asserting the "shock" upon the country of the Roosevelt court reorganization proposal stopped recovery.

"From that very moment", he said, "prices began to fall."

Hamilton, in his speech charged President Roosevelt with "adopting the Russian technique of the purge to divert our attention from the failures of the New Deal."

"This country," said the dynamic, red-haired national chairman, "wants and needs a return to sanity and statesmanship."

Hamilton said the huge attedance at the rally "is evidence that the people of the middle-Western states realize that the Republican campaign this year is the beginning of a mighty fight to save the United States as we have known it for 150 years."

From Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant chairman of the national committee in charge of women's activities, came the appeal:

"To save the American system, the Republican party must become the majority party in 1940. Not in 1944—not in 1948—but in 1940. The starting point is 1938."

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, told the rally:

"What we do this year will in a great measure determine what is to be our fate and the fate of the generations to come after us."

Introduces Capehart

Arch N. Bobbitt, the party's Indiana chairman, said in introducing Capehart:

"This encampment here was erected by an army created for the defense of he republic. When Homer Capehart strikes his tents, the caravan of the Republican party will be on the march."

Capehart, 41-year-old vice president of the Wurlitzer company, was all miles when the last echo of oratory had died away and the multitude of party workers from many states began the homeward journey.

"It was entirely up to expectations," he said. "Everything went off without a hitch."

Capehart saw to it that no one went hungry. He fed nearly 9,000 Republican workers, from precinct officials to state and national committeemen, all the fried chicken and baked clams they could eat.

Then he treated them to an array of oratorical talent eclipsing anything Indiana ever saw.

The weather man did his part. The day was fair and mild, "just right," to use Capehart's own description.

A gay carnival atmosphere pervaded. White-clad city folk mingled with farmers in blue denim. Badges and banners boosting party candidates were plentiful.

All kinds of entertainment was to be had—from singing sister acts and fife and drum corps to music from 35 different bands. All were willing to sing or play anytime. At dinner hour the crowd joined in singing old favorites.

Thirty-eight tents in all were erected, one of which was 500 feet long and 85 feet wide, and another 250 feet by 60 feet. Surrounding the main tents, were individual tents each capable of seating 100 people for every Congressional district in th state.

Three railroads, the Big Four, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio, each ran special excursion trains, and unloaded their passengers within 500 feet of the big tents.

BOARDING PIKES AND PIRATES

Seeking to rid the seas of Barbary pirates, the valiant U. S. Marines were engaged in a desperate hand-to-hand conflict with Tripolitan mercenaries in August, 1804. Lieutenant John Trippe, of the warship Vixen, and nine of his men had boarded an enemy vessel and before others could follow the ships drifted apart.

Then ensued one of the most sanguinary engagements of the Tripolitan War. Confronted by five times their number, instant offense by the marines was their only safety. Without a moment's hesitation the Americans dashed at their antagonists and the deck was a maelstrom of struggling men.

Lieutenant Trippe singled out the pirate leader, a gigantic man, accustomed to this method of fighting. Eleven times he was wounded by the pirate, but he fought gamely until he was beaten to his knees.

While in this position and before he could be cut down by the Tripolitan, the gallant American, who was a small, slender man, seized a hand-pike from the deck and by a desperate thrust upward impaled his antagonist.

Meanwhile, Sergeant Jonathan Meredith, of the Marines, recognized the peril of his leader and rushed to his defense. He reached the side of the officer just in time. Another pirate was about to cut down the wounded man when Meredith thrust his bayonet through the Tripolitan and saved Lieutenant Trippe's life.

More than a century later an American destroyer was named in honor of the gallant Meredith, whose own life ended in tragedy. Only three days after his heroic rescue of his commanding officer, Meredith was killed by an explosion on a gunboat.

WLS Barn Dance Again Opening Night Feature At Indiana State Fair

Lulu Belle and Original Cast to Perform Before Grandstand Saturday, Sept. 3.

LULU BELLE

The famous WLS National Barn Dance original cast that played to an overflow house at the Indiana State Fair last year, despite inclement weather, again will provide the grand opening special entertainment spectacle for the 1938 exposition on Saturday night, Sept. 3.

This great cast of radio performers will present its regular Saturday night nationwide coast-to-coast radiocast from 6:30 to 11 P. M. Because of the varying of time in the different sections of the country, the show will run continuous.

The Fair will open with 4-H Club day Saturday, Sept. 3, and continue seven big days and nights through Sept. 9. Manager Harry G. Templeton is confident a new record crowd will attend the Fair on opening day and several thousand new seats have been added for the WLS National Barn Dance show, always a favorite with Hoosier Fair fans.

Joe Kelly, popular master of ceremonies, keeps the show moving and his familiar greeting, "Hello-hello-hello — everybody, everywhere" has become a signal to everyone that a program crammed full of song, fun, hilly-billy melody and opera is underway, with peppy old hayloft tunes a feature.

Lulu Belle and Skyland Scotty, one of radio's most famous teams, Otto and his Novelodians, "Arkie" the Arkansas Woodchopper, Boys from Virginia, the Prairie Ramblers, Patsy Montana, the popular Hoosier Sod Busters, Evelyn Overtake, Grace Wilson, Tom Cownie, Christine, Olaf the Swede, John Brown, Pokey Martin, the famous Henry Hornsbuckle, with others make up the great cast.

Undoubtedly everyone who has listened to the weekly barn dance program holds a desire to see and hear the stars in action during a coast-to-coast network program. Popular prices will prevail and reserved seats can be obtained at the Fairgrounds office.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

CAMERA IN THE CAR

When driving, keep your camera on the seat beside you, loaded and ready. You never know when a picture chance (such as this) will pop up.

DO YOU keep your camera in your automobile when you're driving—all loaded on the seat beside you, lens and shutter set, ready to shoot at a moment's notice?

Try it sometime, and you'll be surprised how it helps you spot picture opportunities.

Hundreds of pictures can be shot without leaving the car. This is especially true in warm weather, when car windows are down, and the top, in some cases, is folded back.

If you are not doing the driving, your hands are free and there are many more picture opportunities for you—as well as a better snapshot position. The car halts at a street intersection, and there may be a popcorn peddler on the corner, a window washer at the office window above, people busily hurrying to and from work. A small boy is struggling with a big bundle; an old lady passes by with her head wrapped in a shawl—chance for a swell "character" shot. Indeed, all these can be good pictures—natural, "off-guard," full of life.

Never take a drive in the country without your camera. You see more, enjoy yourself more, notice more interesting things if the camera is along. Try making a connected picture story of a Sunday afternoon drive—and you'll be surprised how entertaining it can be. And here's an idea: picture landscapes and interesting stretches of road through the windshield of your car, from the back seat, using the outline of the windshield as a "frame" for the scene. Such pictures show not only what you saw, but how you saw it—hence, they are twice as effective. Needless to say, the windshield glass must be clear.

Use the Quick Service of THE NEWS in the developing of your next roll of films.

Fire clinic

Hundreds of fires occur every day. Neighbors gather, wondering how the fire started . . . how it spread so rapidly. What an advantage to everybody, if the same people could study all the fires!

In effect, that is exactly what's being done . . . by 200 capital stock* fire insurance companies, through their public-service organization, The National Board of Fire Underwriters.

A central staff of some one hundred and fifty people receives daily reports of the nation's fires. From constant study of the causes of fires come recommendations for better building laws, improved regulations and more efficient fire-fighting facilities. This constant crusade has safeguarded your life and property, reduced fire losses . . . and brought lower insurance costs. VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1938 NUMBER 36

MARTIN ENGLE PASSES AWAY TUESDAY EVENING

After a serious illness of only a short time, Martin D. Engle passed away Tuesday evening at about 7 o'clock. Mr. Engle had been almost blind for several weeks but could get about the house with the aid of the family. He had not been bed fast but a short time.

He was the son of John P. and Cynthia Engle, and spent the most of his life in Concord Township. After leaving his farm home, he made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Roy Wade, who then lived on the homestead, just outside the corporation of St. Joe, later moving to St. Joe.

Surviving Mr. Engle are two daughters, Mrs. Roy Wade, at whose home he passed away, and Mrs. T. R. Kosht, living north of St. Joe, one son, John Engle, also of St. Joe and several grandchildren and a host of friends.

The funeral arrangements are announced for Thursday afternoon at the Lutheran Church at 2 o'clock, with burial in Riverside Cemetery.

OLD AGE ASSISTANCE ROLLS INCREASING

Since July 1, when the age limit for public assistance to the aged dropped from 70 to 65 years, approximately 19,000, applications have been filed with the countw departments of public welfare of Indiana, the State Department of Public Welfare has announced.

While many of these applicants will fail to obtain pubilc assistance awards in their counties for one reason or another, such as lack of residence requirements, etc., it is estimated by the state welfare department that at least 26,000 men and women between the ages of 65 and 70 will be added to the public assistance rolls within the next year. This will mean that 60,000 needy old persons soon will be receiving monthly checks. Counties meet about 20% of the cost, the federal and state governments appropriating the remainder.

The estimate of 26,000 old persons being added to the public assistance rolls has been made by the state welfare department on the basis of the rate at which applications have been received since July 1 when the lowering of the age limit became effective.

Picnics, Week-End Camping Are State Park Attractions

State Parks have facilities for twenty thousand picnickers. Trailer-travelers find the Parks ideal for week end outing trips.

Late Summer and Autumn months center attention on the picnic and camping facilities of Indiana's State Parks as thousands of Hoosiers plan week end outings for their families. The varied attractions of the parks, their scenic beauty, and the attention which has been given the needs of the visitors, make them ideal outing places at all seasons of the year.

September and October have a special appeal for the outdoors lover in Indiana, with warm, sunlit days and cool nights providing a welcome change from the Summer's heat. Autum also finds Indiana in its most attractive setting as the green leaves turn red, orange and gold; the wild grape and the persimmon ripen, and the tang of wood smoke brings visions of lazy hours around a campfire.

Easy accessibility of the State Parks from any part of the state, increase their attraction for the family with children in school and outings limited to weekends. In the parks the visitors will find every provision for their enjoyment of a picnic outing—shelter houses, tables and benches, outdoor fireplaces with stacks of wood, drinking fountains, comfort stations, and playgrounds for the children. The shelter houses have huge fireplaces which are ideally suited for a weiner roast and a story-telling session.

These same facilities are available for the weekend camper, whether he travels by trailer or with a tent, and park attendants will aid in the location of a suitable campsite or parking place. This is one of the finest ways to enjoy the State Parks at all seasons of the year, but particularly during the coming weks.

The State Parks provide Indiana residents with exceptional opportunities for enjoyment of healthful outdoor recreation and are serving an ever-increasing number of Hoosiers.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

BRAVED JUNGLE PERILS

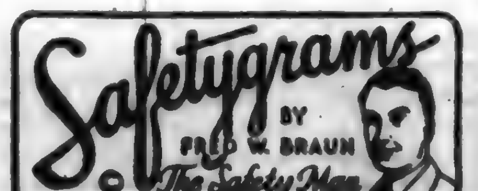
Two Marine Corps aviators were dead and three had been lost in the tropical jungle of Nicaragua, where amid the tangled undergrowth the grass is often fifteen feet high and sunshine is blotted out by trees which grow to a height of 100 feet. Promptly their comrades set about the task of rescuing the living and recovering the bodies of the dead.

The three living marines had been forced to bale out of their plane when buffeted by a tropical gale which struck with sudden fury in August, 1932. Two other flyers lost their lives while attempting to drop supplies to Sergeant Theodore M. Stephenson, who headed a small native patrol along the Rama River. All were victims of perilous flying conditions above the wooded wilderness of Central America.

The marine sergeant and his men immediately recovered the bodies of the dead flyers and brought them back to Rama, some forty miles away. Stephenson then set out with a few native soldiers to rescue the flyers lost in the tropical forest. After five days of peril and privation, he found the bewildered aviators and helped to guide them back to safety.

During their jungle trek the searchers were forced to brave the danger of ambushed foes, and suffered many hardships. While ascending the treacherous river or threading their way through the almost impenetrable jungle, from far overhead Marine Corps aviators furnished supplies or directed the patrol by dropping food and written instructions from their planes.

Only brief accounts of his courageous feat were ever published, yet this thrilling drama of bravery and fortitude in the tropical jungle won for Stephenson the Nicaraguan cross of valor.



It isn't the reputation you gained for safe driving last year or last week that counts, it's your driving today—right now— that makes safety records.

Safety precautions must be observed every minute; they must be eternal. They cannot be exercised at a few intersections or on certain hills; they must be kept up all the time you are behind the wheel.

The fact that you know the curves in a road or are familiar with its various hazards is a very poor excuse for violating all safety precautions.

Be safe all the time. The one time you neglect to be safe may be the time you will have a very serious accident.

Recent guests from here, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Mason at Lake Wawasee, were Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rosenberry, George Walter, and Dale Walter and their families, John Draggoo and family, of Ft. Wayne, Dr. Morr and wife, their son, Justin and family, of Albion, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Johnson, accompanied by John Geisinger, Mrs. Ines Brown and daughter, of Garrett. Mrs. Mason is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Morr.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

(by James Preston)

Rapidly developing testimony before the Congressional Committee investigating subversive activities in the U. S. has uncovered the new method of Communists and radicals in cloaking their actual names and activities behind "fronts." In addition it was adduced that the "front" names were so effective that they resulted in many patriotic Americans becoming members.

Among the Communist-controlled, or outright Communist organizations named by witnesses were the American League for Peace and Democracy, the Workers' Alliance and the American Students' Union.

Even the most seasoned Washington observers, however, have now had their eyes opened to the extent to which communists and other radical groups have perverted such words as "Peace" and "Democracy 'to mask their activities designed to overthrow Democrary and American Institutions.

Farmers and housewives who have been too busy to go in for stamp collecting had better begin getting some pointers because—

"Stamp collecting" promises to become an enforced part of the daily or weekly routine on every farm and in every home.

The newest Washington brain child is to extend the Social Security Act to farm help and domestic servants, both now specifically exempted. To reduce government bookkeeping, they propose to let farmers and housewives do most of it.

The plan is to supply each domestic servant or farm worker with a card or book. The employer (housewife or farmer) must buy stamps equal in value to the social security taxes and stick them on the cards. When filled, the cards or books will be sent to Washington.

Imagine the farmer stopping his Saturday night milking, or the housewife quieting her children, while they figure: "one and a half per cent for this, one per cent for that, and two per cent for the other."

Thus is the farmer approaching the state of regimentation already imposed on industry.

The five Texas Congressmen who were committee chairmen, who were blacklisted by the C. I. O., and who were renominated just the same, doubtless will develop ear trouble when C. I. O. lobbyists ask them for favors next session. He who laughs last....

Speaking of taxes, it seems that the government "MAY" have to raise them. Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee says that unless business is able to pick up more than is now indicated it "MAY" be necessary to tax even lower incomes—the single men who make $800 to $1,000 a year; the married men who make $2,000 to $2,500.

Every year for five years now, Congressional tax handlers during the summer recess have said: "We HOPE a tax increase this year won't be needed: in fact we may even be able to cut them." And each year a new tax bill with stiffer taxes has followed a few months later.

The tax gatherers have been rather cagey. They have hoped tax increases would not be necessary, but they were. Now they admit that tax increases MAY be necessary, so it is fairly safe to assume that they WILL be.

Apparently the time is arriving to begin paying up for eight consecutive years of unbalanced budgets. And even after the budget is balanced, new taxes will have to be levied to pay off the twenty-three billion dollars that has been added to the public debt.

Jewelry is jewelry, but no girl would as soon have gold fillings for her teeth as a diamond ring to denote her engagement.

Why is it that a congregation always expects so much more from a new pastor than it did from the old one?

Next to talking his business worries over at home, the biggest nuisance is the man who talks his family affairs over down town.

Many males feel that the cream used in creamed carrots might be put to better advantage.

In the old days when a man bought a horse it didn't fall off 20% in value and become a "used horse" after he had driven it a couple of miles.

Most folks wonder what has become of the old-fashioned girl who saw her boy friend only on Wednesady and Sunday nights.

BACK TO SCHOOL

The summer vacation comes to a close with many mothers busy in getting school clothes and school books in order. Days of play have given way to hours of instruction and preparation for the years to come when summer wont merely stand for vacation. There are always extra duties to perform when school opens, shoes that need attention, clothes repaired, supplies for study on hand so there will be no excuse when the bell tolls "Come." Your teacher is busy as well, brushing up on books, plans and schedules to pass on to the child during this new school session. The youngsters who depart for colleges are especially active. All St. Joe seems to have some part in the bustle and ado.

We are proud of the schools in our district and we feel hopeful that every taxpayer is also. No community can endure without two things churches and schools. Let us not neglect either, for the better we make them the more widespread is their interest and influence felt, and the better is the community in which they exist. We can rise no higher than these two, our schools and our churches. The community of the future can be no better than the educational advantages offered by these two groups of teaching. Speak a good word for our schools and our teachers at every opportunity. Your co-operation will pay big dividends.

EXTRACTING PAYMENT

There may be many a St. Joe business man who would like to proceed along the lines of a dentist who took pains to get an account marked "paid in full." His reason might have been sensible but a court didn't think so, for they fined him on a charge of assault. It seems a lady patient had been given an estimate of $47 for dental work and paid $25. When she did not settle for the remainder the dentist forced her into the chair and removed what he considered was $22 of his work. Most of us have to put up a good fight to go to a dentist in the first place, and then to have the good work removed by force would just about call for a return bout, as far as we are concerned.

Before you censor the dentist for being a heartless and unsympathetic fellow, consider whether any local merchants might light upon this idea of settling accounts. Many of us might lose some salt, shoes, coal—and even the newspaper—in the clean-up!

LET'S CHUCKLE

Someone said, "I always like to hear him chuckle," and it made us think a bit. Could we name a man who chuckles that folks didn't like? There is something about a chuckle that wins you and it usually comes from a person at ease with his neighbor—and his conscience. He is unselfish, is not a hypocrite, is friendly, sociable and without guile. A chap who is a lover of humanity and is in accord with it, who like us and we like him. To review in my mind the folks who chuckled and the folks who didn't gave me the thought that the first ones you could trust, and love. It behooves us all to do a bit of chuckling now and then just to keep in paretice and to hear how we sound to the other fellow.

HAY-FEVER SEASON

There is something to be said for the man who was arrested for going thru a red light and gave as his excuse—a sneeze. The judge released him, and it is our opinion that His Honor might have been a hay-fever victim and could appreciate anything dealing with a sneeze. This time of year is the worst for hay-fever sufferers, and if you don't think they suffer ask anyone around St. Joe who has awaited this period with dread—and nose tissues. One might imagine the early and heavy rains had eased the situation and lessened the spreading of fatal pollen. Maybe they did, but they also helped a lot more weeds to thrive to harrass the sniffers. One mid-western paper carries a "hay-fever count" to indicate the amount of pollen in the air, measured every 24 hours according to the contents per cubic yard. There are articles on the market which are aids, and verious serums which have proved effective in some cases. There are folks who seek more favorable climates and others who have rooms where the air is filtered. But there still remains the fellow who continues to wheeze and blow. Our sympathy to the hay-fever victim and we wish it was possible to rid the country of ragweed or whatever it is that causes this condition.

Fleawort

The common name for the seeds of the Plantago Psyllium is fleawort, and they belong to the herb family. The name originated in England. This species of plantago grows in the south of Europe and in northern Africa. The seeds are about 3 mm in length, 1 to 1.5 mm in width, convex on one side and concave on the other. They are dark reddish brown in color and closely resemble flaxseed in medicinal properties.

To Keep Out Cold

If you have any draughty doors you can quite easily remedy this in the following way: Take any old felt hats you may have and, beginning at edge of brim, cut them round and round into strips about an inch wide. You will find it quite easy to stretch the strips flat. Just go carefully and then tack them where the draughts come through.

Firewood Classified

Boys who augment the family income in the poorer sections of New York city by selling and delivering small quantities of wood for use in fireplaces use a special nomenclature in their trade. To them wood is not pine, oak, ash—but "log wood," designating pieces chopped from waste construction material or old boxes, or else "tree wood," meaning untrimmed pieces as they come from trees.

WILLIS MAKES FIVE PROMISES AS CANDIDATE

Out of the Republican Cornfield Conference at Capehart Farms near Washington, Indiana, came five promises from Ray Willis, Republican nominee for the United States Senate.

1. Adequate program of relief for the unemployed until private business can take up the slack in the unemployment situation.

2. Adequate assistance for the aged.

3. Elimination of hampering restrictions on business which have prevented the resumption of normal industrial activities.

4. Protection against monopoly.

5. A demand that Senator VanNuys fulfill his promise that he made when he said: "In September I will tell the people of Indiana how some of their public servants have profited to the tune of thousands of dollars through political manipulation." The same demands upon Senator VanNuys were repeated in an address Wednesday night, August 31, in an address at a reception in Noblesville, Indiana.

When Mr. Willis made his demand that Senator VanNuys reveal the name of the administration leader who had received $140,000 in 1937 and had paid income tax on that amount, he was referring to the following statement which was made by Senator VanNuys on March 24: "I will take full responsibility for the publishing of this income tax report. I've got facts and figures and will talk in dollars and cents. I'm going to tell Governor Townsend what's going on in Indiana."

RAY E. WILLIS

With reference to relief, Mr. Willis expressed sympathy for the WPA worker who, he said, is working for a pittance when he should be given an opportunity to resume his place in the normal industrial and commercial life of the country.

"Just what is a WPA worker, any how? Is he any different from you or me? Does he have any more arms and legs? Does his heart beat any differently? Does he not have the same human impulse to provide protection for his family?

"As I see it, A WPA worker is a man just like you and me only not quite so lucky. For some reason, perhaps you and I have retained our work. The WPA worker has lost his place in the commercial and industrial life of the country - through no real fault of his own.

"What would you and I do if we were to lose our jobs or our businesses? Would we permit our families to starve? Or would we accept the only employment open to us that would keep bread on the table and roofs over the heads of our families?

"But, our national administration has made an error. Because people accepted the WPA as an emergency relief from joblessness, the administration has assumed that they actually like to work for $40 to $50 per month. That isn't true. The WPA worker accepted his job as an emergency measure and I know that because I have talked to them. The feeling of relief that they experienced when they obtained such employment has been succeeded by a feeling of resentment because the opportunity to obtain real jobs at real wages has been denied to them, and their hope for opportunity to their children is waning."

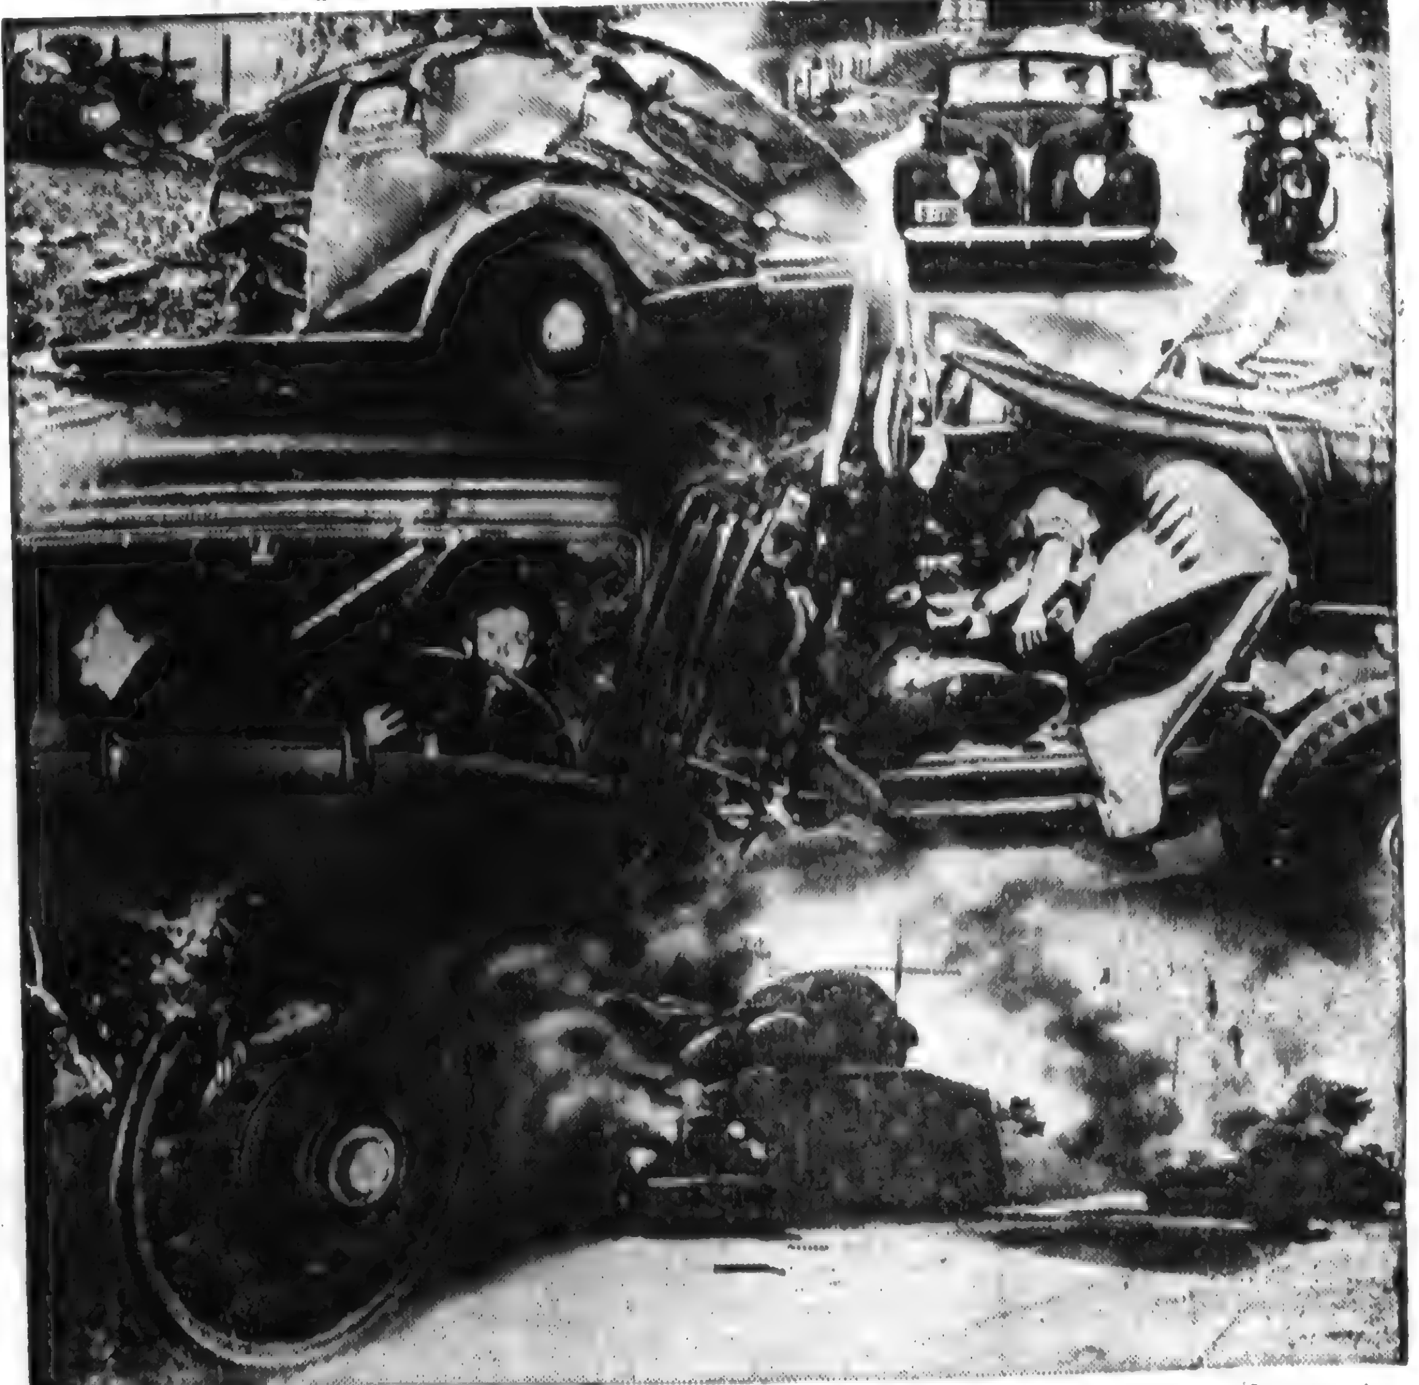
Speed Wastes Money and Lives



Pictured above are some of the thousands of deaths which are a part of the annual price the American motorist pays for speed. Another item is accident costs which total $1,700,000,000 yearly.

AUTOMOTIVE engineers' figures show that speed wastes uel and materials; police impose ines; and now a group of large inurance companies is offering a safe-driver reward of 15 per cent of the liability premium for an accident-ree year:—all in the interests of afe driving.

Responsible for one-third of the ation's fatal accidents—speed played a leading role in all of the six ituations above.

TOP LEFT: This car couldn't old the curve at 65 and was cut in two by the impact with the tree. Six passengers met instant death. TOP RIGHT: Frequently omitted from the driving budget, a speeding fine adds $25 to the debit side of the ledger of motoring costs. MIDDLE LEFT: Hours of agony and weeks in the hospital were the aftermath of this collision with a telegraph pole. MIDDLE RIGHT: Forty thousand people meet similar deaths on the country's highways each year. LOWER LEFT: Under normal conditions a tire has a life expectancy of 20,000 miles; this tire lasted two on Sir Malcolm Campbell's racer, "Bluebird." Another item to be added to the high cost of speed. LOWER RIGHT: The driver of the coupe on the right was in a hurry and was passing the car ahead when he met the automobile on the left. The truck driver managed to escape the flames, the man at the coupe wheel was not so fortunate.

Sane driving is easy on your nerves, enables a substantial saving in fuel, repair and insurance costs . . . not to say a longer life and a happier one.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SUMMER SUNSETS

Silhouettes against the sunset make striking snapshots.

SUMMER'S gorgeous sunsets are splendid snapshot material, and sunset pictures are easy to take, whether you have a simple box camera or a high-grade folding camera with ultra-fast lens.

Charming silhouettes of persons can be made with the sunset as a background, and sunset shots across a lake or stream, with reflections, are remarkably beautiful. The effect of a sunset is heightened by a good foreground, such as a "frame" of trees or overhanging leafy branches. In the country, try shooting the sunset with a piece of farm machinery silhouetted against it. A plowing scene, with straining horses silhouetted against the sunset sky, makes a successful snapshot.

One of the most important points, in picturing sunsets, is to obtain a strong, vigorous cloud effect. Good clouds are often better than a riot of brilliant color, at least for black-and-white picture purposes. In many cases, a more striking result will be obtained if you place a color filter over the camera lens. The filter brightens its own colors, and darkens its opposite or complementary colors. When in doubt, shoot one picture with the filter and one without. A good sunset is worth an extra shot or two.

Either chrome type or panchromatic film is excellent for sunset pictures. Short exposures are desirable, in order to subdue detail in the foreground. If yours is a box camera which has a choice of lens openings, use the smaller opening. With rapid-lens cameras, try an exposure of f.16 at 1/50 or 1/100 second. If the sunset is quite bright, and you are shooting across water, you may use an opening as small as f.22.

Watch the sunsets—keep your camera loaded—ready for action—and you will add many a charming snapshot to your collection.

Back to School on a Bus

Throughout America this week youngsters will retrace their steps to the school room to begin another year's study. Some walk, others ride, but none of the riders have a more unique system than the students of North Carolina where a state-operated bus system is handled largely by the students themselves. About 50 per cent of the bus drivers are of school age, and woe to the motorist who considers them lightly. Drivers appoint monitors, fellow bus riders who stop traffic while youngsters cross the street. Upper picture shows a North Carolina monitor, while below are some of the busses ready to take students home after a day in school. Each afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock hundreds of these conveyances carry the children to the waiting parents.

State Fair President Explains Program of Courtesy Committee

E. Curtis White

Senator E. Curtis White, president of the Indiana Board of Agriculture, is certain that the Indiana State Fair, to be held Sept. 3 to 9, inclusive, will be the biggest and best exposition in history, and that the visit of hundreds of thousands of out-of-town visitors to Indianapolis this year is going to be a more pleasant one than ever before.

For months the Fair Board has been planning an agricultural and entertainment exposition that will exceed any in past years. For several weeks the Courtesy Committee of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, has been organizing to extend hospitality on a 100-per cent basis during the full week of the event.

The committee, which consists of police and fire department heads, executives of oil, milk and bakery companies, and other leading Indianapolis concerns that cover the state by motor routes, has been co-operating with the Fair Board in determining all the needs of State Fair visitors.

The slogans of the Courtesy Committee are, "All roads lead to the Indiana State Fair," and "Service with a smile. Ask Me."

It is hoped that every filling station attendant, drug store employee and others in Marion County can be mobilized into a great army of information dispensers. Each will be identified by a lapel badge. Large posters displayed on business establishments will indicate that directions and other information is available there for the asking.

Insofar as the committee is concerned, a visitor is a person who is driving an automobile bearing an out-of-state license plate, or Indiana plates numbered above 130,000 since up to that total was issued to Indianapolis and Marion county motorists. Also persons who identify themselves as visitors.

Directional arrows pointing to the Fair will be placed on all leading highways by drivers for a bakery concern who with the oil and milk company drivers will distribute the lapel badges and posters.

The Courtesy Committee members will have thousands of maps of Marion county for free distribution. The maps will show all main highways leading into Indianapolis and all the main city thoroughfares leading to the State Fair grounds. Those who give information will be instructed to use the maps.

The Courtesy Committee also suggests that you ask for a copy of one of these maps and use it as your guide during your stay in Indianapolis. Likewise the committee desires to serve in any other manner possible. This service is free, and you are asked to seek it from a member of the Courtesy Committee.

In effect, that is exactly what's being done . . . by 200 capital stock* fire insurance companies, through their public-service organization, The National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Don't put off until tomorrow repairs that should be made today.

Keep your car in good condition. You cannot exercise the care essential to safe driving on a highway when your car will not respond to the strain put on it. Sudden changes of lights, and unusual hazards on the road require quick action. Your car must be in the best possible mechanical shape to meet such situations.

FALL FISHING'S GOOD IN INDIANA

below: three proud anglers: right-fisherman along a Hoosier stream.

Autumn days with their cooler weather, bring better fishing to Hoosier anglers although many records for limit catches and big fish have been established during the summer months. Reports from all parts of the state indicate that the fishing his year has been unusually good.

Indiana's thousand lakes and miles of streams afford some of the best black bass fishing to be found anywhere, while bluegills, crappies, perch and other game species provide real thrills for the angler. Cooler weather makes fishing more comfortable and in the opinion of many anglers, makes the fish more lively—a combination that draws thousands of men and women to the lake and streams for week end outings during September and October.

Success of the conservation program for improved fishing in Indiana is evidenced by the expressions of Hoosier anglers and the constantly increasing number of licenses sold to fishermen from other states. This program has included: increased propagation of game fish by the state hatcheries; operation of hatchery ponds by conservation clubs; control of gar, dogfish and other undesirable species; elimination of stream pollution, and increased observance of fishing regulations.

In 1937 mor ethan fifty million game fish were planted by the Division of Fish and Game; over three million were propagated and planted by clubs; and 348,000 trout, secured from federal hatcheries, were planted in suitable streams. Both the state hatcheries and those operated by the clubs produced large numbers of fish again this year. These fish will be planted during the coming weeks, assuring a continuance of good fishing in Indiana waters.

Anglers planning Autumn fishing trips should contact the game warden in the area where they expect to fish, for last minute information on the best place to fish and bait to use.

ENJOY WEINER BAKE AND LAWN PARTY

Members of office and sales force of J. W. Butler Paper Co., Ft. Wayne, were entertained Tuesday evening at a weiner bake and lawn party by F. B. Leighty and wife.

The party consisted of Roscoe Taylor, manager; Mary C. Ehrmann, treasurer; Margaret Haan and Ruth Shiek, stenographers; Arthur Spiess, Fred Wolter and Arthur Tobey, salesmen, accompanied by their wives.

The guests enjoyed the party to the full extent of their capacities, because everything really tastes good, when eating out of doors.

The guests spent some time in singing old time songs to the satisfaction of all, and in leaving they expressed their complete satisfaction of the evening spent in St. Joe, and a standing invitation was given them to return at any time.

A stock of corn 15 feet and 3 inches is on display at the Meek barber shop. It was raised by W. L. Hamilton and contains three large ears. This seems to be the record.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Auxiliary Unit Number 283 meets on every second and fourth Tuesday night of each month at 7:30 o'clock in the Legion rooms of the K. of P. Hall in St. Joe.

Veterans' Birthday Party Held

On Thursday of last week the 4th District was in charge of the Sept. Birthday party at the Marion Hospital.

These parties are held once each month for the Veterans having a birthday in that particular month.

100 men were served and entertained last week. Each unit in the district had a member on the program. Ice cream, cake and cookies were served following the program held in the hospital auditorium. Packages of cigarettes were given each man later.

The band, made up of patients, gave a concert before the party.

These Marion boys are so grateful for what we do for them. One only needs to visit the hospital to get a first hand idea of what a war can do for our men and yet this same trip tells us we have a lot of work yet to do.

The work shops and service sales rooms were visited by Auxiliary members through out the day.

The St. Joe unit was able to visit with their two adopted veterans and take them part of the birthday party and gifts were sent them also by the unit.

85 Auxiliary members in the District were present. Those attending from the St. Joe unit were Mrs. Lehr Wilder, Mrs. R. H. Reidenbach, Mrs. Frank Williams, Mrs. Anna Bachtel, Mrs. C. F. Scholes.

Installation of Officers Held

The new officers of the coming year for the unit were installed at Auburn last night. This was in the form of a joint installation with Auburn, Garrett and Waterloo. Mrs. Walter Stump was the presiding officer. Past President and attendance awards were made at this time. Refreshments were served in the dining room of the Legion Home.

Those attending from the St. Joe unit were: Mrs. Leon Kees, Mrs. R. H. Reidenbach, Mrs. Anna Bachtel, Mrs. Elmer Dean, Mrs. C. F. Scholes, Mrs. Vernie Monroe, Mrs. Mack Hatch and Mrs. Lehr Wilder.

Sept. 27 will be the last meeting night in September also the last meeting night for the old officers. So we are planning a social meeting at this time. Will every Auxiliary member please bring a pie or a plate of sandwiches. The Post will be invited for this meeting so every Post man bring your wife and every Auxiliary member bring your husband, whether they are a member or not.

1939 Dues are to be paid now, don't make us ask you for them.

MAKES DEMAND FOR $12,000 JUDGMENT

A demand for a judgment of $12,000 is made in a complaint filed in the DeKalb circuit court Tuesday by the People's Savings and Loan Association against Vern C. Clark, Karl Kutzner, Walter J. Mondhank L. E. Schlotterback, Henry Shaffer, Iris Stage, Emory A. Hartman, J. A. Sebert and Lester G. Casebere.

It is set out in the complaint that the capital of the plaintiff corporation became impaired and in March, 1935, the state department of financial institutions threatened to take possession of it. The defendants were directors of the association and it is claimed they agreed to pay $9,000 into the corporation in consideration of being permitted to continue to operate and control it.

The plaintiff asserts that the offer was accepted, but that payment of the money was never made. The amount of the demand includes interest.

Of the defendants, only Mr. Stage and Mr. Casebere are now members of the board of directors.

Representing the plaintiff are Attorneys H. C. Springer and Paul J. DeVault.

"THE PRIDE OF THE LEGION"
(8 reels)

Running Time: 80 Minutes
Author: Peter B. Kyne
Director: Ford Beebe
Cast: Barbara Kent, J. Farrell McDonald, Lucien Littlefield, Sally Blane, Glenn Tryon, Matt Moore, Ralph Ince, Victor Jory, Rin-Tin-Tin, Jr.

THE PRIDE OF THE LEGION is a powerful and dramatic adaptation of Peter B. Kyne's Cosmopolitan Magazine story.

The hero of the story is Jerry Brewster, the bravest man on the force, who recovers from injuries sustained in a horrible explosion to find his nerve entirely gone. His brave fight to regain his stability and his final spectacular success make a thrill-packed and absorbing screen drama.

The countless fans who mourn the late and well-beloved Rin-Tin-Tin will be interested to learn that advance reports hail the younger Rinty, as possessing all the canine beauty, intelligence and daring of his world-famous sire.

THE PRIDE OF THE LEGION brings you a great story expertly brought to the screen, with all its thrills and romance intact—splendidly acted and brilliantly directed.

Harry Randall, of Chicago, spent from Friday until Monday with his mother, Mrs. Wm. Randall.

Elmer Volkert and son, Earl, of Quincy- Mich., spent over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Merle Guilford.

Rev. Richard Trojan, of Ft. Wayne, was a dinner guest in the D. B. Ridgway home, Thursday evening.

The lost gun as advertised last week by Mark Morr, was found, as the result of spending only a few cents. The classified column of The News can serve your needs and do it very reasonable.

HORSE SENSE

It is easy to over-crowd pullets when beginning to house. Allow about three and one-half to four square feet of floor space per bird.

Apples with relatively poor keeping qualities such as Grimes and Golden Delicious can be sealed in an airtight container, such as a lard can with the cover sealed on, and kept in a cool cellar or storage until April or May.

Most of the reasons why "It's no fun to wash dishes" may be traced to sinks, drainboards, tables, stools, chairs, and cupboards that are either to high or too low for the people who use them.

A dinner of green apples usually results in a stomach ache for boys. So, start your hogs on new corn gradually, and avoid the digestive troubles that make them more likely to take cholera.

Save feed and labor by disposing of old diseased, broken down, non-breeding cows, poor producing cows, and poor prospects among the heifer crop.

September is a good time to count the number of dead trees in plantations and arrange to obtain replacements for planting next spring.

WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING ELECTRIC LIGHT BULBS

(Lee J. Hartzell)
Ft. Wayne, Indiana

The shepherds near Bethlehem who were tending their flocks of sheep beheld a brilliant star in the sky over Bethlehem. This star was the light of hope to the down-trodden people of that day and has been to all the world since that date to the present time.

The principal source of income to the people of the Holy Land for the past several thousand years has been sheep-raising and wool-producing. For thousands of years it has been one of the pricipal sources of income and food to mankind.

Probably the first man that set foot on that part of the United States as we know it today was clothed in wool from a sheep's back. Today it is one of the chief sources of income for the farmers and wage earners of the laboring people of the world. It clothes alike the rich man, the Prince, the laboring man, and the humblest people of the earth.

Sheep are the most stupid of domestic animals, yet if it had not been for this kindly and gentle animal civilization today would not be in existence for without sheep's wool and food civilized mankind, as we know it today, would have been driven out of the temperate zone into the torrid and the status of white men would be the same as that of the white men of Northern Africa. No other substitute for clothing and food in sufficient quantities has ever been found.

The men and women employed in the woolen industry receive some of the very largest of wages. Strange as it may seem, 500,000 farmers in the United States are engaged in the raising of sheep and the production of wool and stranger still, is the fact that 96,000 people in the United States engages exclusively in sheep-raising and wool-producing.

The value of wool at its present low price even today in the United States is worth approximately 100 million dollars a year. At this season of the year in 1932 top wool was selling for 24½ cents per pound, now it is selling at 18 cents a pound, the lowest it has been for many years. The woolen mills are harder hit now than they have been for a long time. Two-thirds of last year's clipping is in storage, none of this year's crop is sold nor is there a market for it in sight. Both the farmers and the laboring men and women in the factories have no one to blame but themselves. Practically every one of them voted for Free Trade and they have just what they asked for. Secretary of State Hull and President Roosevelt with their Free Trade Treaties have turned the sheep-raising and manufacturing business over to the foreign nations, largely to the British Empire where the wages in the mills are on an average of less than twenty-five cents per hour. The labor in the American woolen mills is around seventy cents an hour. Taking the Government's own figures we have this astounding situation:

Importation of wool and woolen products of all descriptions into the United States:

Under Roosevelt	1937	$152,530,308
Under Hoover	1932	36,293,009
Loss to Farmers-Laborers		$116,237,209

In other words the difference between 1932 and 1937 is over 116 millions of dollars that we have practically given to the foreigners, as we might say, the foreigners have raised and shipped into this country almost as much wool and woolen products as the American farmers and sheep-raisers have produced in America.

The woolen industry in the United States is paralyzed today and almost faces total ruin and to cap the climax the sapheads in Washington are loaning fifty million dollars of the taxpayer's money to the wool growers to carry over their stock until a market can be found for it while, with their permission, the market in the United States is being flooded with foreign wool and woolen products. One large wool buying concern in Ft. Wayne has two hundred thousand pounds of wool on hand and no market. Secretary Wallace is out pegging the wool market to help the wool producers, sheep-raisers, and manufacturers, while Roosevelt and Hull are opening the doors of America to the wool-raising and wool-manufacturing industries of the foreign nations. Will someone please explain this? They are wolves in sheeps clothing.

A story is going around that Dr. George W. Gillie, Republican candidate for Congress, while recently campaigning in Noble County, met a farmer by the name of Will Brown who lives near Cromwell. Farmer Brown was standing by his fence holding a sheep by the tail and shearing it. Dr. Gillie, who at the time was passing by, stopped and told the farmer that that wasn't the way to shear a sheep but to start at the other end. Old farmer Brown was quite indignant and told Dr. Gillie to go on down the road and tend his own business that in 1932 and 1936 he had voted for Free Wool and since that time hadn't the nerve to look a sheep in the face.

Here is something for the boys and girls of the General Electric Company of Ft. Wayne to think about. Take notice of the following number of light bulbs imported into the United States in 1937.

Imported from Foreign Countries	1937	122,996,615
Imported from Foreign Countries	1932	14,032,097
Electric Light Bulbs Imported		108,964,518

Over 108 million bulbs we could have manufactured ourselves, but instead we had to import them to aid the other countries. In 1937 the foreign nations shipped into the United States enough light bulbs to give one to every man, woman and child in the United States. Wasn't that nice picking for the foreigners? And, the funny thing about it is that some of the Asiatic nations are now engaged in the production and manufacturing of electrical appliances which will within two years gradually paralyze the electrical appliance industry of the United States. The foreign countries sell millions of dollars worth of their cheap merchandise to the buyers of this country, they take our money and build and improve their own factories and give work to their own people.

Here is another one—last year there were imported from Japan fifteen hundred thousand tennis balls and over 7 million 278 thousand 265 straw hats. Enough straw hats to provide every man and boy in Indiana and Illinois with one. We certainly are big-hearted where the foreigners are concerned.

Practically every banker, manufacturer, railroad official, financier, and business man is a Republican and vote for a High Protective Tariff to keep the foreign goods out of this country and for a sound money standard. They vote to encourage and aid business and to protect the laboring men and women's jobs, and in their gratitude to the foreigners, four out of five laboring men and women vote the Democratic ticket for Free Trade and vote to give their jobs away. The same men and women who voted for Free Trade and who voted to give their jobs away will do so once again this Fall.

A vote for Raymond E. Willis, of Agola, Republican candidate for the United States Senate and a vote for Dr. George W. Gillie, Republican candidate for Congress in the United States, will be a vote to stop this importation of cheap foreign goods into this country. It will be a vote for the return of jobs. It will be a vote for the return of prosperity.

WORLD WAR INTERLUDE

Weary from the pursuit of a group of bandits in Santo Domingo, ten U. S. Marines reached a clearing in the forest and paused before advancing farther into the thicket. It was in August, 1918, when an attempt to restore some stability of government to the republic had become a mere interlude, overshadowed by events of the World War.

Most of the marines had hoped to serve in France, and they found that hunting Dominica outlaws was comparatively dull. Besides, the day's search had proved fruitless and it was nearly sundown. A native woman approached the group and invited them to rest for a while in her house, while she proffered the use of her stove to prepare their evening meal. The tired marines gratefully accepted.

Hardly had they seated themselves to eat before a warning shot crashed through a window. It was followed instantly by a desperate encounter, both bandits and sea soldiers clashing in a hand-to-hand conflict.

The surprise attack had been planned by the bandits who had arranged the hospitable overtures of the woman as a ruse to lead the marines into an ambush, and then had stealthily surrounded the house before the occupants were aware of their presence.

Hopes for a bandit victory vanished quickly when they found they had stirred up a hornet's nest. In the ensuing struggle only two marines were wounded, while the enemy's casualties amounted to approximately thirty-seven killed and wounded, including the capture of several horses and weapons. The owner of the house, responsible for the attack, was taken prisoner.

Many similar contacts with outlaws were made by the marines in the West Indies during the World War. Far removed from more spectacular happenings in France the stories of these encounters became merely routine entries in official files.

(Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the attitude of the publisher or editor of this newspaper. —Editor's Note.)

In a speech at Peru, Indiana, September 7, United States Senator Frederick VanNuys said two things that should interest everyone.

No. 1 thing was this:

"I said it at French Lick and I say it now at Peru—bad practices have cropped out in the Democratic national and state administrations, but nothing like the Teapot Dome—Where abuses appear, I know that the Democrat party is big enough and brave enough to clean its own house and we don't need help from the Republicans."

No. 2 thing was this:

"There is something wrong with this country...."

Well, the public probably knows that "bad practices" have cropped out in the Democratic national and state administrations.

The public also knows that "there is something wrong with the country."

The point is this: The New Deal, with the extremely able assistance of Senator VanNuys, has had six years in which to correct these conditions—and even Senator VanNuys admits that they still are with us.

And he does'nt tell definitely how they are to be corrected.

So, if the Democratic party is big enough and brave enough to clean its own house, it had better begin pretty soon.

For instance, Ray Willis, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, gave his policy with reference to the WPA very clearly in a speech at Indianapolis the other night. He gave it in a half dozen crisp sentences:

"The WPA worker shall have opportunity again!

"The WPA shall be continued as long as it is necessary!

"The money that is spent through the WPA shall go into the pockets of the workers—not to the politicians!

"The WPA is an emergency program. It never can be anything but an emergency program....But the Republican party will continue the WPA as long as it is necessary."

CONFERENCE SONG

Out in the high-ways and by-ways of life,
Many are weary and sad;
Carry the sunshine where darkness is rife,
Making the sorrowing glad.
Chorus:—Make me a blessing, Make me a blessing,
Out of my life may Jesus shine.
Make me a blessing O, Saviour, I pray.
Make me a blessing to someone to-day.
Tell the sweet story of Christ and His love,
Tell of His pow'r to forgive;
Others will trust Him if only you prove
True, every moment you live.
Chorus:—
Give as 'twas given to you in your need,
Love as the Master loved you;
Be to the helpless a helper indeed,
Unto your mission be true.
Chorus:—

Declaration of Purpose

Gifts of the Spirit

These are the gifts I ask of Thee, O God, divine;
Strength for the daily task, Courage to face the road,
Good cheer to help me bear the traveler's load,
And, for the hours of rest that come between,
An inward joy in all things heard and seen.

These are the sins I fain Would have Thee take away,
Malice and cold disdain;
Hot anger, sullen hate, Scorn of the lowly, envy of the great,
And discontent that casts a shadow gray
On all the brightness of the common day.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PROPER EXPOSURE

Brilliantly lighted beach subjects, with no harsh shadows, take less exposure. For this, 1/25 at f.16 (or the large lens opening on a box camera). If subject faces sun, or for a "long-shot" beach view, use f.22 or the small lens opening on a box camera).

MANY writers make a great to-do about exposure, so that it seems complicated. As a matter of fact, for most ordinary subjects out of doors, it is simple.

Light in very early morning or late afternoon is quite weak, but from an hour or so after sunrise to about an hour before sunset, it is fairly constant in its intensity. During the middle daylight hours, cameras loaded with chrome type or "pan" type film, set your lens and shutter as follows:

BRILLIANT DAY

Average subject, 1/25 second and f.11 lens opening.
Open landscape, 1/25, f.16.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.22.

CLOUDY BRIGHT DAY

Average subject, 1/25, f.8.
Open landscape, 1/25, f.11.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.16.

DULL DAY

Average subject, 1/25, f.6.3.
Open landscape, 1/25, f.8.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.8.

When you must use a high shutter speed, use a larger lens opening. Remember that 1/25 second at f.11 is the same as 1/50 at f.8, and about the same as 1/100 at f.6.3 or 1/200 at f.4.5.

Follow these exposures this spring and summer, and you won't go wrong. If you use a box camera, take snapshots on bright days only. On a dull day, place the box camera on a firm support and give a very short time exposure (one-half to one second, or about as fast as you can work the shutter when on "Time") using the small lens opening.

With any camera, when you are taking pictures shortly after sunrise or before sunset, you must use a larger lens opening, or a slower shutter speed. At such times, light tends to be yellow and the "pan" type film will be best as it is definitely faster in such light.

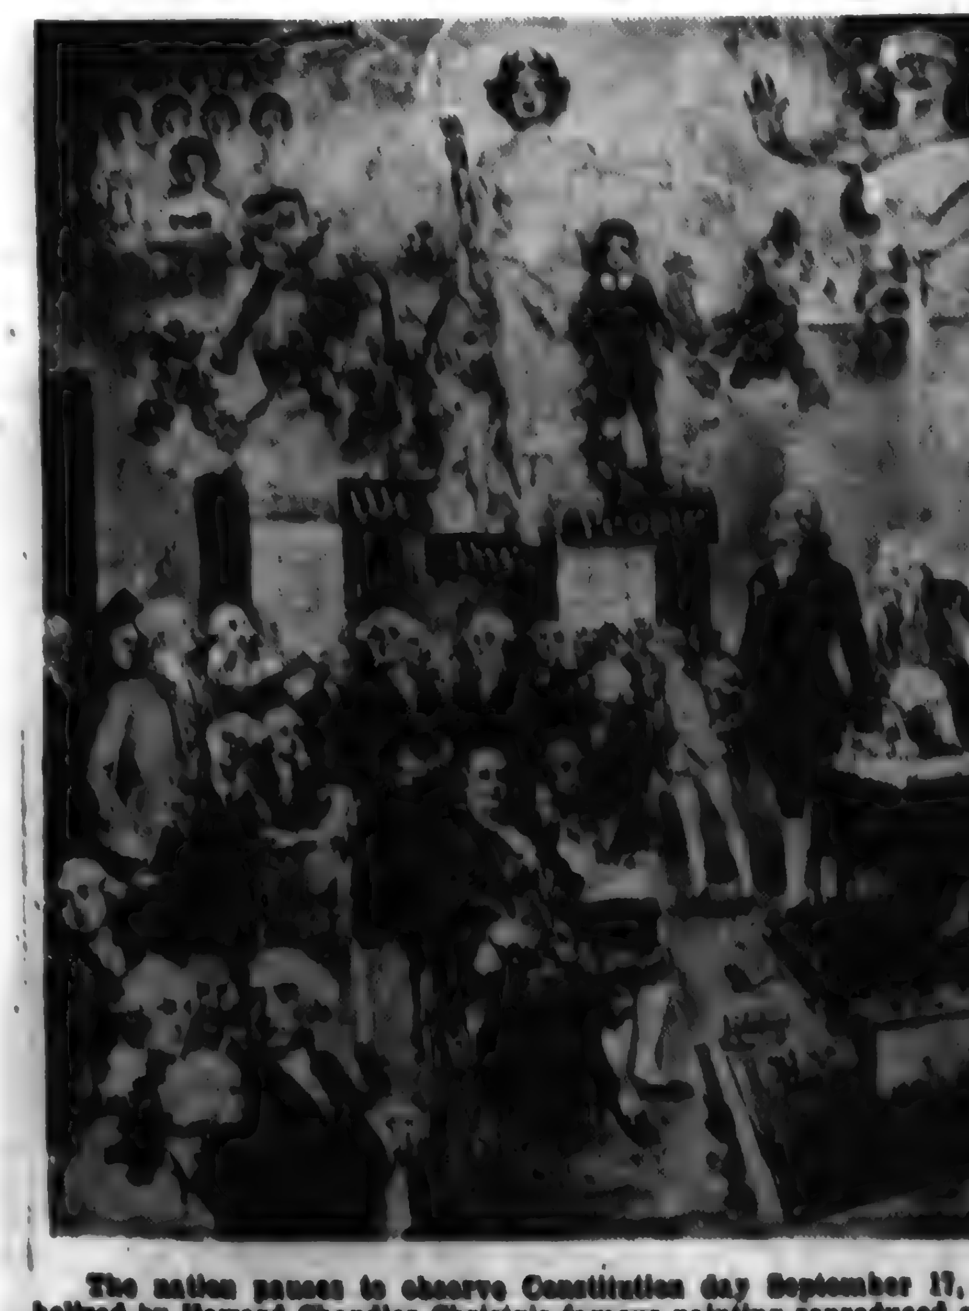
Constitution Day Message



The nation pauses to observe Constitution day September 17, symbolized by Howard Chandler Christy's famous painting reproduced above. The painting shows George Washington addressing the Constitutional convention in Philadelphia, while at the top are figures symbolizing phrases of the preamble to the Constitution and elements in the 151 years of progress under that document.

People and Spots in the Late News

DON'T MUFF THIS ONE . . . For fashion critics heartily approved this scarab blue wool suit, trimmed with sheared beaver. Self bows tie at collar and belt, and two wide shirred bands of matching crepe are set into top part of dress underneath.

"ROCKING CHAIR" PILOT . . . Leroy Latimer affectionately pats tire which helped land him safely in New York after first flight, although he is credited with 18,000 "perfect landings". He pilots unique airplane tire-testing machine in B. F. Goodrich laboratories at Akron, O., but he'd never been up before.

ANOTHER DIRECT HIT! . . . Umpire "Beans" Reardon assumed peace-maker's role just in time to catch in "bread basket" a punch aimed by Atwood (left) of Phils at Bartell (right) of Giants, as fists instead of baseballs flew in N. Y. Polo Grounds baseball game.

SEES IMPROVED CARS . . . Better visibility is in store for motorists, according to Michael A. Connor, Connecticut motor vehicle commissioner, who announced automotive centers informed him new 1939 models will provide 5 to 25 per cent more windshield and window area. He said press and car manufacturers cooperated in pointing way.

LOG of the U. S. MARINES

DARED FLOOD WATERS

Speeding toward almost certain disaster, a west-bound Southern Pacific train was racing mile after mile thru the black night of September 10, 1921. No one aboard was aware of the imminent danger which lay just ahead. The throttle of the engine was wide. Death rode the pilot.

Torrential rains had drenched the country near San Antonio and many of the lowlands were flooded, menacing lives and property. Few persons knew that flood waters in that vicinity had made travel by rail extremely dangerous.

On the railroad right of way lay a tangled and twisted train, the result of a wash-out on the track. A swollen river barred access to the farther shore and shut off all means of warning another east-bound train rushing to its doom.

Faced by this dilemma and the knowledge that the oncoming train was drawing nearer every moment, a call was made for volunteers to swim the river. William A. Redd, Jr., a former U. S. Marine, who was one of the passengers on the wrecked train, immediately responded.

No precious seconds were lost while Redd swam the stream, signalled the train and swam back. Later he made a second trip to bring aid to the injured fireman of the wrecked train, twice risking his life to perform a service for his fellow man.

Honors were heaped upon Redd for his feat, and the late President Harding wrote him that his deed "was deserving of the highest commendation." Denying any claim to personal bravery, Redd said he remembered his training as a marine, and that he could not have behaved otherwise when the call came.

KEEP YOUR EYES YOUNG with Better Light

YOUR child will never have but one pair of eyes. It is a sacred duty to guard them in every possible way. Adequate light is one of the easiest of important ways to prevent eyestrain. There is an I.E.S. lamp, in both table and floor models, to meet every demand for the best in lighting. This lamp, approved by the Illuminating Engineering Society, gives exactly the right amount of glarefree illumination for all particular work such as sewing, studying, reading and other close tasks.

Remember—by school age, 2 out of 5 children have defective vision.... Eyestrain picks its victims young.

THE MIGHTY DO FALL

A young nation like a young man is inclined to concentrate upon the future rather than the past. The nation has no experience on which to base its decisions and, again like a young man, is not anxious to receive advice from its elders.

History—a record of the experience of nations—does have some very valuable advice it can give us if we will just take it. China, for instance, tried the NRA generations ago, and it flopped. So did we.

More recent than China's experience, however, is what preceded the fall of the Holy Roman Empire. Rome practically legislated its farmers out of existence. Then it started making the businessmen in various communities pay all the taxes of the communities. Then it passed laws fixing wages and prices; next it forced businessmen to stay in business or face lions in the arena. And then— Rome collapsed.

In this country, farmers are getting less for wheat, cotton, and potatoes than they did five years ago. We have passed one "share-the-wealth" tax bill after another, increasing the burden upon the businessmen who furnish payrolls. We are fixing wages; we are about to fix prices.

It isn't pleasant to be pessimistic. Maybe we'll be smart enough to stop short of the precipice. We still have time.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Parking at an angle to the curb has caused many difficulties from an accident prevention standpoint.

Whenever you park a car at an angle, be sure you park so that the cars on either side of you can get in and out of the parking location.

Whenever you back out, be sure you drive slowly. I have seen automobile drivers come out of an angle parking position next to the curb as though they were answering a fire call. No warning is received by the automobile driver who is traveling on the street, although he may be using every precaution.

The usual results of careless backing out of the angle parking lot are minor collisions, but serious accidents have resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hunsicker have sold their five and ten cent store at Butler, which they have operated for over 12 years, to Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bambury, of Ann Arbor, Mich., who will take possession of the store on September 26th.

MAKING A POPULAR SPORT WITH INDIANA STATE PARK VISITORS

Typical Hiking Trails in the Indiana State Parks.

The almost forgotten art of walking is coming back into popularity with thousands of Hoosiers and other visitors tramping the trails in the Indiana State Parks. Hiking, as an outdoor sport, is attracting an increasing number of participants, both as groups and as individuals.

There are 157 miles of trails in the State Parks, each marked for the guidance of the hiker and routed to one or more of the points of interest in that particular park. To enable the visitor to enjoy the trails, the Division of State Parks furnishes a trail map for each park. This map shows the routing of each trail, the park drives, location of shelter houses, picnic and camping areas, and other points of special interest. These maps are presented by the attendant on duty at the park gate house. An additional feature of the maps, is a brief description of each of the trails including a list of the points of interest to be visited and the approximate length of the trail.

Autumn months, with their cooler temperatures and the gradual coloring of the foliage, add a new interest to the hiking trails. Falling leaves open new vistas through the forests, over the hills and along the lakes and streams—giving the impression that the hiker has ventured into an entirely different area from that visited during the summer months.

Many of the hiking groups visiting the Indiana State Parks during recent weeks have combined their trips over the trails with a picnic outing, pausing beside the trail for their lunch and a rest. This type of hike will be increasingly popular during the coming weeks as weather conditions become more favorable for outdoor activity. In several of the parks, shelters have been erected along the most popular trails, providing a place where the hikers may stop to cook and rest.

The trails also afford an unusual opportunity to study birds, plants and wildlife species found in the parks in great numbers; and have also been the subject for many attractive photographs and paintings.

BEAN GAME

Fill partly with dried navy beans, individual custard cups. Give each person a drinking straw. The object of the game is to remove beans, by means of suction, from the bowls through the drinking straws. Everyone starts at the same time and the object is to see who can remove the most beans within a designated period. Adults better play this—children may get excited and choke on the beans.

He resided on the family homestead his entire life, with the exception of a few years when he resided on the Samuel Bair homestead.

He was united in marriage to Daisy Belle Hemrick, March 22, 1899, who preceded him in death, July 25, 1934.

He leaves to mourn his departure, one brother, Merritt A. Butler, Auburn, Ind., and a sister, Mrs. Audrey E. Wade, Spencerville, four nephews and three neices, relatives and friends.

He was a member of the Spencerville M. E. Church; Concord Lodge No. 556 F. & A. M., and the Order of the Eastern Star No. 386 Spencerville.

The funeral was held from the home Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Earl Clayton, with burial in White City Cemetery.

W. S. Wadsworth, of Peebles, Ohio, has been visiting in the Curt Hursey home the past week. Sunday, J. J. Hart, wife, son, Jesse, daughters, Lucille and Mary, Woodrow Boggess and Mr. Wadsworth were dinner guests. Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Mann were supper guests.

CHANGE OF ONE PER CENT IN VOTES TO ELECT GILLIE

By Charles A. Baird

A shift of only one per cent of the vote in the Fourth District, based on 1934 "off-year" election returns, would result in victory for Dr. George W. Gillie, Republican Congressional candidate, over Rep. J. I. Farley, his opponent in the November election, a survey of past election returns revealed today.

In 1934 Representative Farley had a plurality of only 4,151 votes over Former Congressman David Hogg, winning by a vote of 58,625 to 54,515. Most of this plurality was accounted for in Allen County, where Farley had the edge by 3,037 votes.

The contest was fairly even in other counties in the district. Hogg defeated Farely in his home territory, DeKalb County, by 120 votes, and also in Lagrange, Noble and Steuben counties. Farley won by 10 votes in Whitley county and led in Wells and Adams counties.

DR. GEORGE W. GILLIE

Republican Candidate for Representative in the U. S. Congress

Supporters of Dr. Gillie are basing their hopes on the belief that the Republican candidate, a renowned vote-getter, can hold his own in Allen County, where he has had many successes at the polls, and carry the rest of the district.

A comparison of the respective votes of Mr. Hogg and Dr. Gillie in 1934, when Dr. Gillie was the only victorious Republican on the county ticket, winning election as sheriff for the fourth time, is encouraging to his supporters.

In that year Dr. Gillie polled 26,672 votes in Allen County as compared to 23,962 for Mr. Hogg. If he fares as well against Mr. Farley in November his elecion is assured, his friends believe.

The big question mark in the Congressional election seems to be: How will Gillie run in the counties outside of Allen? Will they support him as they did Mr. Hogg?

Realizing that a great deal depends on support in these counties, Dr. Gillie is concentrating his campaign efforts almost entirely outside of Fort Wayne. His plan is to spend at least a week in each county, visiting all the key cities and talking to voters in every walk of life.

He is making very few speeches, believing that voters would rather talk to him than hear him talk.

"I can get their slant on things much better on the street, in their homes, on their farms than I can from a public platform," he explains. And he's anxious to get their slant, for he thinks the most important attribute of a representative is to know what his constituents want—and to act accordingly.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Auxiliary Unit Number 283 meets on every second and fourth Tuesday night of each month at 7:30 o'clock in the Legion rooms of the K. of P. Hall in St. Joe.

Special Auxiliary meeting Tuesday night, Sept. 27 in Legion Hall at 8:00 o'clock, C. S. T.

Awards will be made and new officers will take charge.

Legion Post invited for social time and lunch.

Ladies please bring a plate of sandwiches or a pie.

Fall is usually bull-buying season. Make your selections carefully. A poor sire can break a dairyman while a good sire will make a dairyman.

HORSE SENSE

The pines have proved to be the best trees to plant for windbreaks to protect farm buildings.

Farm account keepers say, "Farm accounts have more value the longer they are kept!"

One nest for every five pullets or hens will prevent much of the trouble or grief from cracked and dirty eggs.

By ruling of the State Seed Commissioner with headquarters at Purdue University five weeds were added to the Indiana noxious weed list, effective September 15, 1938. They were: field bindweed, perennial sow thistle, johnson grass, field pepper grass, and bitter wintercress.

How safe is your home? Approximately 31,500 persons are accidentally killed each year in American homes as compared with 16,500 accidentally killed in American industry.

Wheat is cheap. The Purdue Pig Starter ration—70 pounds corn, 20 pounds wheat, and 10 pounds of high grade supplement of 45 per cent protein or more—will be hard to beat for getting Fall pigs started.

The overhead costs on cuttings, logging, and milling a thousand board feet of lumber from 12-inch trees are three times higher than the same costs on 24-inch trees.

ST. JOE, SATURDAY Night

THE DAWN RIDER

(6 reels)

Running Time: 60 Minutes
Story by: Lloyd Nosler
Director: R. N. Bradbury
Cast: John Wayne, Marion Burns, Yakima Canutt, Reed Howes, Denny Meadows, Bert Dillard, Jack Jones.

Probably there is no type of motion picture with more general appeal than the so-called Western. Everybody loves excitement and thrills and, as a rule, these outdoor pictures generally supply them in abundance. This is especially true of THE DAWN RIDER featuring John Wayne.

The lawless days of the old West when a man's best friends were his horse and gun, are vividly depicted in THE DAWN RIDER, that plunges John Wayne and his famous horse, "Duke" into a series of dangerous crises. The thrilling climax has seldom been equalled in Western pictures.

One of the hardest things to make a woman believe is that her husband will love her more for keeping his stomach contented than he will for keeping his morals straight.

The closed car is an improvement in some ways, but the fellow who feels devilish can't drape his leg over the front door.

Every woman knows if she could spend as much on clothes as some other woman does she could show them off to better advantage.

What ever became of the girl who used to think it cute to wear her hair in the Sis Hopkins style?

Every town has a few people who think that sin isn't sinning if they do it.

Every time someone mentions about the man who swallowed a fork, it brings to mind what a consolation it must have been to his family that he didn't eat with his knife.

Who can remember when Hood's Sarsaparilla or St. Jacob's Oil would paint a farmer's barn just to get to put their sign on it?

It's a pretty good idea for parents to teach their youngsters that the Primrose Path doesn't connect with Easy Street.

TASTY MEDICINE

Did you ever get into a group of more than six people that someone in the gathering didn't turn out to be a complainer? Never saw it fail that some person didn't have to bring on an ailment or two to discuss in public and when they cover one disease they usually have another to take its place. Seems to most St. Joe observers that the folks who have the most wrong with them are the quietest about their ailments. And if medicine was pleasanter to take something tells us there would be more people enjoying illnesses. Doctors and hospitals will benefit if they can find a way of improving the taste of the stuff they serve in spoons and pills. Being sick might become more of a rest-cure and less of a pain if some chemist would find a way to make medicine smell and taste better. And the more valuable the medicine the worse it is. Consider digitalis, quinine and castor oil. If you've never tried them—just wait! Figure how much quicker you'd recover if the medicine had a lilac and carnation scent and tasted like steak and shoe-string-potatoes. Most of us find it bad enough to be sick but some medicines make it harder to get well. How about somebody getting busy and making being sick a pleasure and giving us all something entertaining to talk about.

CONSIDER THE "COP"

We read, the other day of a midwestern motorcycle officer who said he was going to spend his vacation in a large city close to his home-town. He says that when he gets there he is going to ignore all stop signs and traffic lights, all parking rules and will pay no attention to rights of other motorists. He figures on pulling out on a main highway and parking in the middle to talk to friends. He declares he will laugh at speed laws and maybe go so far as to call a motorcycle policeman a "hick."

This sounds like this officer has suffered mightily at the hands of many motorists and no doubt there are lots of other officers who feel the same way. Perhaps there have been drivers who have helped to contribute to the cause by displaying poor manners and poorer judgment.

ONE OF US

Have you ever noticed that big city papers have long ago ceased to poke fun at the small town because of its easy-going way of living and the very naturalness of its rural resident? The best explanation is that a large number of the men editing dailies in big cities originally came from small towns like St. Joe. They know the conditions that exist and when they reach the large city they miss this human touch. Of course we are apt to know more about our neighbors finances and our children's love-affairs, but let anyone in the family get sick and the whole neighborhood is on hand to help. In many a crowded city folks don't know their next door neighbor's name! Folks aren't allowed to suffer from pain, hunger or loneliness if most of our small town friends know about it. Lacking all the kindliness of a small town is no doubt what makes city editors a lot more generous in their "kidding" of the small town, for he sees the difference between the two, for he used to be one of us.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

When we read of the children who were "striking" in the schools and picketing the school-houses, we recalled how we used to think of walking out too—and didn't, beause in our day they didn't call an act like this "striking," it was deemed plain cussedness. Today with the fever of striking and picketing dying down somwhat, to everyone's satisfaction, we learn there are still some folks who figure it is a good way to get what they want. For instance, the item about the two baseballs that found their way into a man's garden. He refused to return them to the boys who lost them and they picketed his house with this sign, "This man is unfair to the kids of this neighborhood." The situation was unpleasant and the matter was taken up with the juvenile officer. The angered man lost the two balls, and the irate youths lost their sign, and so far the matter has been a draw for both sides. It just goes to show, you can figure a craze has died down, like cross-word puzzles, and up it pops again.

SOMETHING ACCOMPLISHED

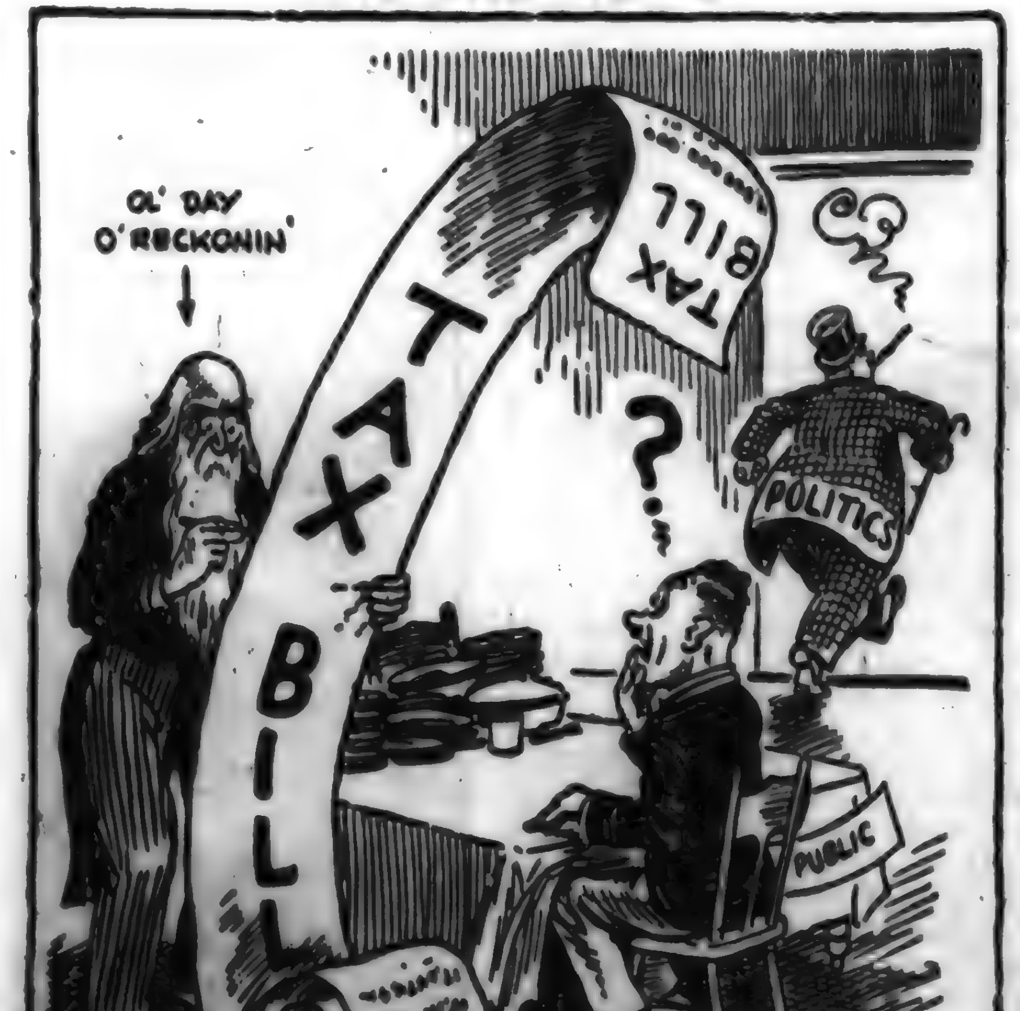
Few of us work as hard as we feel we do and it is rare indeed to find a man or woman who does not waste time at work. It isn't the number of hours a man spends at his employment, it is what he accomplishes while there. Under stress of labor trouble and worker's unrest this is a severe statement when there is much more emphasis laid on "hours." We waste time trying to reach decisions and in wondering which task to undertake first. Too, there aren't many of us who work at high pressure unless forced to do so, yet we all figure we are doing more than the other fellow. System is necessary in order for us to really get through our business efficiently. System is as important to the housewife as to the office worker. The housewife who lacks system usually lacks a neat and orderly home.

IT'S YOUR TOWN

Do you ever get tired of St. Joe? Have you ever longed for brighter lights and more people, more noise and bustle? Why not get away for a couple of weeks and satisfy the longing? Don't make the mistake of selling out and packing up the household goods before you go. Just hop in the family bus and look around where you figure you can "do better." Study living conditions, cost of keeping your family, schools and check up on tax rates. See how about securing credit at the stores if you are sick and off of a pay-roll for a few weeks. Fill up on real information, but find out for yourself, not believing everything that is told you. Come on back home and figure those costs and the living expenses and conditions in this town. We know the answer. You will become a more enthusiastic booster of the home town than you were before you went away.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hamilton recently spent a few days at Harvey, Ill., in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stephens. They also visited many interesting places in Chicago.

THE BAD NEWS



HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met Friday evening, Sept. 16, at the home of Arline Koch with 18 members answering to roll call with common grammatical errors. The meeting was called to order by the president, Gertrude Borthwick and the following program given:

Singing led by Mary Krise, first song was "Smile" second "A Short Life." Reading of secretary's report; the County President, Mrs. Alma Diehl, gave a reading, "Our DeKalb County." Song, "School Days;" Reading by Millie Shull. Debate: Resolved that needles are more beneficial than pins. A nut contest was conducted by Minnie Ulm, followed by the project work by Mrs. Sible.

One new member was added. The hostess, assisted by her committee, Anna Ricket and Myrtle Pugsley served a delicious lunch consisting of sandwiches, cantaloupe and coffee. There were two visitors.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

Mrs. Loretta Hull accompanied Fred Quance and family to South Bend and Benton Harbor, Mich., Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Vina Quance returned home with them after spending two weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Arza Parrish, and family.

Central Standard Time will become effective in DeKalb County next Saturday at midnight. The clocks will be turned back one hour. Towns and cities in DeKalb County have been operating under Daylight Saving Time since the last Saturday in April.

Thirteen producing oil and gas wells were drilled during August with indications that some new fields will be developed in the south-western part of the state. Eight of the new wells are producing oil and five are producing gas. Wells located in Vigo county are reported as yeilding between 200 and 300 barrels a day. Other good producers brought in during August are located in Posey and Sullivan counties.

Awaiting the approval of a $400,000 PWA grant, the state board of agriculture will then start work on constructing a million dollar coliseum at the state fair grounds. A feature of the new coliseum will be a heating system which will allow it to be used all year, whereas activities at the present coliseum are confined to the summer because there is no heating system. The new building will have a seating capacity of 8,000 permanently with space for an additional 4,000 seats in the arena.

Along with the completion of many construction projects, highway workers are engaged in preparing the ten thousand miles of state highways for the winter months. Maintenance staffs in each of the thirty-six state highway sub-districts are now engaged in patching, cleaning roadsides, mowing right-of-ways, inspecting signs, cleaning side ditches and seeing that culverts and other structures are open. These and other operations form an important part of the maintenance program for keeping the state highway system in the best posible condition for traffic at all seasons of the year. Within a few weeks quantities of cinders, sand and other abrasive materials will be stocked along the highway system in readiness for use during the winter months when snow and sleet make curves and grades hazardous for motorists.

CONFERENCE SONG

Out in the high-ways and by-ways of life,
Many are weary and sad;
Carry the sunshine where darkness is rife,
Making the sorrowing glad.

Chorus:—Make me a blessing, Make me a blessing,
Out of my life may Jesus shine.
Make me a blessing O, Saviour, I pray.
Make me a blessing to someone to-day.

Tell the sweet story of Christ and His love,
Tell of His pow'r to forgive;
Others will trust Him if only you prove
True, every moment you live.

Chorus:—

Give as 'twas given to you in your need,
Love as the Master loved you;
Be to the helpless a helper indeed,
Unto your mission be true.

Chorus:—

Declaration of Purpose

Gifts of the Spirit

These are the gifts I ask of Thee, O God, divine;
Strength for the daily task, Courage to face the road,
Good cheer to help me bear the traveler's load,
And, for the hours of rest that come between,
An inward joy in all things heard and seen.

These are the sins I fain Would have Thee take away,
Malice and cold disdain;
Hot anger, sullen hate, Scorn of the lowly, envy of the great,
And discontent that casts a shadow gray
On all the brightness of the common day.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PETS INDOORS

Above — Tag! Sunlight pouring into the kitchen makes this as easy as an outdoor picture. Note the interesting rhythm of the faucet shadows. 1/25 second at f.6.3 lens opening. By the addition of flood lights a snapshot could be made of this subject at f.11 or with a box type camera with lens at largest opening. At right— What'll I write —a book, a poem or a telegram? Here a 100-watt ordinary electric bulb or a couple of fifties, is sufficient for the backlighting, with two No. 1 flood bulbs for the front light. Exposure 1/25 second at f.6.3 lens opening.

HOW many Snapshot Guild members have really good pictures of the family pets?—not just "pop shots" snatched hurriedly without much attention to idea or background, but pictures with expression and action that give a genuine key to the pet's character?

Pictures like this are well worth all the planning and patience they require and indoors is a good place to take them because it is so much easier to associate the pet with a "home" background that identifies it as a member of the family.

Frequently humor can be obtained in these indoor pictures—a frolicsome kitten tangled up in a skein of yarn and looking baffled, or snatching at the dribble of water from a faucet; a puppy barking excitedly at a rubber mouse or—as here—thoughtfully planning a bit of letter-writing.

Pictures that present the animal in a definite mood or illuminate its character abound for the watchful photographer—the Scotty, like a little old man, his head cocked to one side and inquiry in his shaggy-browed eyes; the majestic Persian cat, dignified in repose, paws extended and chin sunk deep in the soft fur of his chest; the mournful-eyed bloodhound, the silken-coated collie with brown eyes sympathetic and thoughtful, the paddle-footed cocker spaniel pup almost lost between his enormous ears.

There is a delightful field here, too, for the photographer who likes to experiment with lighting effects. Consider, for example, the long-furred white cat posed on a window-sill in silhouette, so that the outdoor light, diffused through the window curtains, surrounds him with a bright silken glow.

Indoor animal pictures can be made either with daylight or amateur flood bulbs. Supersensitive film should be used, because of its extra speed. Where direct sunlight streams into a room and illuminates the subject, exposures can be almost as brief as outdoors. Where sunlight is diffused through curtains, it should be aided with amateur flood-lights.

At night, two big No. 2 amateur flood bulbs in reflectors four feet from the subject give enough light for snapshots with box cameras; the lens should be at its widest opening. With lenses marked in "f" numbers, f.11 at 1/25 second or f.6.3 at 1/50 second is about right. Dark-coated pets demand more light, or lights closer up. Portrait attachments can be used over the lens, for close-ups of small pets, without changing the exposure time.

It's all simple—so fire away.

John van Guilder.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

TREACHERY IN KOREA

Soon after our Civil War an American merchant vessel visited Korea, where both the vessel and crew disappeared. Our Government sent a small fleet to investigate the affair and to make a treaty with Korea, guaranteeing the future safety of our seamen. While engaged in this peaceful mission, without cause the Koreans treacherously opened fire on our naval vessels.

As a result of this unprovoked assault, U. S. Marines and bluejackets landed from their ships in the Salee River and went into action against the savage horde. Fort after fort was captured by the hard-driving naval men, and there remained but one obstacle to the final defeat of the enemy and complete success.

But this last barrier was defended by more than a thousand fearless men—men who were famed for their prowess as tiger hunters and who laughed in the face of death. Crowning a conical hill, one hundred and fifty feet from the bottom of a ravine, towered the walls of a citidel. It was here the Koreans made their last stand.

The naval force scaled the steep slope and as they approached the parapet, the enemy abandoned its ancient firearms for clubs and knives. With a desperation born of futility, they rained rocks down on the attacking Americans or picked up dirt to fling in their eyes.

Once inside the fortress, cutlasses, spears, matchlocks and every conceivable weapon of the time were swung into action in the last series of hand-to-hand encounters. There were scores of individual acts of heroism. The Koreans fought to the death. Only twenty natives survived.

Determined to capture the Korean flag, two marines made their way to the yellow banner, decorated with Chinese characters, and tore the emblem from its staff. Thereafter, American vessels in those waters were unmolested.

REMOVING SOOT

You can remove soot from any heating unit with salt. Heat two pounds of medium grade salt (barrel salt preferred) to remove all moisture. Scatter it on bed of red-hot coals in fire bowl of stove or furnace. Open all drafts and allow it to burn. Fumes from salt will destroy carbon in soot, leaving a fine white ash which will be carried away by the natural draft in the chimney.

AN OPEN LETTER

To Senator VanNuys:

On June 14 you said: "In September I will tell the people of Indiana how some of their public servants have profited to the tune of thousands of dollars through political manipulations."

You have had repeated opportunities to give your information to the people of Indiana.

You have had the opportunity to tell your story to a Federal grand jury.

YOU HAVE NOT TOLD.

There is just one day left in September. People want to know. Will you keep your promise?

A. N. BOBBITT, Chairman,
Republican State Committee

STATE PARK BRIDAL PATHS
MOST ATTRACTIVE IN FALL

Scenes Along Bridle Paths in the Indiana State Parks

Horseback riding, one of Indiana's most popular outdoor sports, takes on a new attraction during the Autumn months at the State Parks as early frosts and brilliant foliage add to the enjoyment of the out-of-doors.

Riding stables are maintained at six of Indiana's State Parks—Pokagon, Mounds, Turkey Run, Brown County McCormick's Creek, and Clifty Falls—while there are more than 150 miles of bridle paths over which the equestrian is free to roam. The bridle paths lead to many of the scenic and historic points in the parks, making horseback riding an ideal way to see and enjoy these areas.

At most of the parks the equestrian finds a friendly group interested in early morning rides with breakfast served along the trail or at one of the shelter houses, while moonlight rides and all-day excursions on horseback are organized whenever interest in these activities is demonsrated by the visitors.

Each Autumn finds members of riding clubs staging their annual pilgrimage to the State Parks, some of them transporting their own horses to the park for week end trips over the bridle paths. Reservations at the park inns or cottages with some of the meals served on the trail, make it a novel and unforgettable outing.

Already this year, horseback riders have traveled more than five thousand miles—a distance more than equal to a round-trip between Indianapolis and Los Angeles.

Riding stables at the six parks remain in operation as long as weather conditions are suitable for outdoor activities, closing only during the winter months when the bridle paths are covered with snow and temperatures are too low for riding to be a pleasure. Popularity of horseback riding as an activity for State Park visitors, has grown rapidly in recent years through designation of additional miles of bridle paths and provision of suitable quarters for the equestrians.

ATTENDED HOME-COMING IN WABASH COUNTY

Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker attended the home-coming of the Dora Christian Church, Wabash County, Sunday, Sept. 18th. This was Mrs. Baker's childhood church, located by the Salamonie river, in the community of the old Richwine homestead.

The Holly Quartet, all former teachers of Wabash County, and still in good singing trim, was present at the services, and gave three numbers for the program.

This quartet and the "Mistletoe" a Ladies' Quartet, were both organized by Prof. Earl Ramsey, during Christmas holidays. Mrs. Baker, then Estelle Richwine, was given the honor of naming both quartets.

Minister Glen Earl Wagner, himself a musician of note, has been pastor of Dora Church for several years.

ONE DAY LEFT

On June 14, 1938, United States Senator Frederick VanNuys said this:

"In September I will tell the people of Indiana how some of their public servants have profited to the tune of thousands of dollars through political manipulation."

There is just on day left in September.

This is his last opportunity.

Tomorrow will decide whether he is a statesman or a politician.

SETTLEMENT MADE IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

By agreement of the parties, judgment in the sum of $300 was entered in the DeKalb Circuit Court Monday for Wm. Richards, by his next friend, Nicholas Funk against Carl K. Bercaw and Richard Bercaw. Another judgment of $850 against the same defendants is in favor of Esther Richards.

The complaints stated that the plaintiffs, who are man and wife, were riding last Feb. 12 in the rear seat of a car driven by Richard Bercaw and owned by Carl and Edith Bercaw. Lois Buttermore also was in the machine.

As the car proceeded west from Butler, the complaints stated that there was a heavy fog and that the car was driven forty-five miles an hour; that it came to the end of the road and because of the speed of the machine it could not be turned and ran into a ditch, resultig in injuries to Mrs. Richards. She was cut and bruised and one leg was crushed, making amputation between the ankle and knee necessary.

One way any married man can find out who is boss at his house, is to start out to prove that he is.

A boy's idea of a silver lining to the clouds is the fact that when he is sick he doesn't have to go to school.

A good idea for the German dictator not to get married—that is if he doesn't want to give up dictating.

Another thing, a lot of people would not be in debt if their friends didn't buy such expensive things.

A reformer is a man who uses your money to put over his own ideas.

You can get a lot of kick from holding a political office if you can first learn not to take yourself too seriously.

CONSIDER CHILDREN

Everything seems to be boiled down to the easiest way and we are more confirmed in our belief when we hear that they have discovered a way to take the curse off of spinach by making sherbet out of it. It may be of interest to many a local St. Joe youngster who has eaten it with forebearance and distaste—and sometimes not at all. Once in a while you come across a child who likes spinach but we'll bet even he would prefer to get it in the form of ice cream.

Then they follow up this innovation with the practical suggestion that instead of feeding children cod liver oil direct, it can be fed to the cows who give the milk to the children to drink.

There will be many on oldstef who will hoot at the idea of making "babies" out of their children by making things too easy for them. But consider the many sugar-coated items made easy for adults. Why not give the children a break?

HORN HONKERS

One thing living in a small town does, it eliminates the need of an ordinance against horn-honkers. It has been necessary to make laws governing this situation and though they aren't always enforced they are still on the "books." This is true in many of the large cities. It is a nuisance to have a driver back of you persist in honking a horn for you to be on your way, and this often happens when you are stopped for a red light. It is mighty annoying for a sleeper to be awakened at night by someone in his neighborhood tooting an automobile horn. There is more chance for this to occur in larger communities, but every community has someone who will be inconsiderate of the other fellow. We might ask for a ticket for the horn honker as well as for any other automobile infraction.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker attended church services at Newville, Sunday evening. The men were drafted to assist Harry Hendershot and Clarence Killian in a male quartet, furishing special music for the services.

SURPRISE PARTY

While Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Johnson were attending church in St. Joe, Sunday, fifty-five relatives and friends took possession of their beautiful country home, and when the absentees retured, they found an elaborate Lawn Fete, arranged in their honor.

One of the most attractive features was the long table filled with choicest foods prepared by the ladies and which proved so appetizing that quite an interval elapsed before the guests could do full justice to the two kinds of ice cream and cake served.

The children of the group had a portion of the spacious lawn to themselves, where they enjoyed football and other games.

This surprise was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Johnson because of their friendliness and generosity which is much appreciated by those present:

Ray Willis's EDITORIAL

Down near Spencer, Ind., they're draining a big pond. They used ditches to drain the surface water. Now they're going to use strip-mine pumps to reach the bottom.

Why? Well, there's a big catfish in that pond. A man caught the fish in White river when it weighed forty pounds, and released it in the pond. Now they say it weighs 100 pounds or thereabouts. The people who are draining that pond want to catch that fish.

There are folks who will say that it is a lot of trouble to catch one fish. They will say that the time could be better spent. Maybe they're right. In fact, I am sure that they are right.

But if they catch that fish while I am in their neck of the woods, I'm going to drive over and take a look at it. I fish once-in-a-while myself.

There's an excellent salesmanship lesson in that story. Almost anything can be accomplished by arousing people's curiosity.

SIMMONS AND CLELAND ARE CONCERNED ABOUT GILLIE

By Charles A. Baird

The Congressional campaign in the Fourth Indiana District rolled into high gear this week with supporters of Dr. George W. Gillie and Cong. J. I. Farley engaging in a give-and-take verbal battle over the merits of their respective candidates.

The opening volley was fired by Virgil M. Simmons, of Bluffton, District Democratic chairman, who expressed concern over what he termed a widespread "whispering" campaign about the strength of the Republican candidate. Simons declared that everywhere in the district he heard reports that "they have Jim Farley on the run." He deplored this.

"Sure they've got him on the run," he said, "but he's going to run right around Dr. George W. Gillie."

Republicans were quick to reply:

"Whispering campaign! They're shouting it to the skies!" Fourth District voters, Democrats and Republicans alike, are going to assert their independence and repudiate this yes-man from Auburn. They're going to elect a representative they can be proud of — one who will truly represent the people.

The next volley was fired by Samuel Cleland, former Democratic chairman of Allen County, who attempted to dispose of the Republican candidate by remarking:

"They say Dr. Gillie is a fine gentleman. I'll concede you that. He's a friend of mine. But it's one thing to be Sheriff of Allen County and another thing to be a Congressman."

Gillie followers also had an answer for that.

"Just to keep the record straight," one of them replied, "let me add that it's one thing to be a yes-man, a rubber stamp, and a Charlie McCarthy—and quite another thing to be a Congressman of the type that Fourth District voters will support."

DR. GEORGE W. GILLIE

Republican Candidate for Representative in the U. S. Congress

An effort by the opposition to discredit Dr. Gillie's record of public service by referring to him as a "horse doctor" was adroitly parried by the candidate himself.

Addressing a gathering of Whitley County Republicans, Dr. Gillie said that he did not favor a return to the "horse and buggy days," but suggested that the use of some old-fashioned "horse sense" might be very helpful in solving the problems of farmers and laborers.

There were no more cries of "horse doctor."

Issues in the campaign are beginning to take shape, with Dr. Gillie on record as favoring a protective tariff, strict neutrality in the event of a European war, jobs for the unemployed, social security on a pay-as-you-go plan, and a living wage for WPA workers, made possible through the elimination of politics and waste in relief.

The case against Farley was partially summed up by an editorial writer, who recently declared:

"A great many Northeastern Indiana unemployed—men and women who have looked long and vainly for something better than a WPA job—do not relish the fact that Farley, in addition to receiving $10,000 a year, plus lavish traveling expenses, has taken very good care of his relatives.

"There is also the little matter of Farley's contempt for petitions signed by thousands of his Fourth District constituents urging him to vote against the Reorganization Bill. Once more Farley was a Charley McCarthy, speaking the voice of the White House 'whip,' and serving badly the interests of the workers, farmers and business men who have been paying his Cogressional salary and expenses."

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

SOUTH SEA ADVENTURE

Stranger than fiction is the story of Lieutenant John M. Gamble of the U. S. Maries, who in a few brief months experienced more excitement and adventure than most men find in a lifetime.

This gallant officer fought under Commodore David Porter aboard the Essex in the Pacific during the War of 1812. Several British ships were taken, and with a few men Gamble was left to guard three of the captured vessels in the Marquesas Islands. Porter then sailed aboard the Essex for Valparaiso with one of his prizes, renamed the Essex Jr., while another vessel left for the United States with some of the spoils of war.

No sooner had Porter departed than trouble broke out among the natives. Gamble quickly subdued the disorder and lived in comparative peace for a few months while he waited for Porter to return. Meanwhile, the commodore had reached Valparaiso, and the Essex was subsequently defeated by the British ships Phoebe and Cherub in an unequal sea fight.

Unaware of Porters's mishap, Gamble finally decided to abandon the Pacific base. His plans were upset when a mutiny broke out among some of his men, and he was badly wounded in the foot. Again the natives rebelled, and at the conclusion of a desperate encounter he found himself with eight men, only two of whom were able-bodied.

Mutineers had seized one of his three vessels; he burned a second ship, and with the sole remaining privateer taken from the British he sailed for the Sandwich Islands with his tiny crew, two-thirds of which were invalids, and with only one man who knew anything about navigation.

After fifteen days he arrived at what are now called the Hawaiian Islands, where he gathered a native crew and again set sail. Fate again intervened when two days later he was captured by the Brittish aboard the Cherub, who eventually put him ashore at Valparaiso. Months later he reached New York, leaving behind him adventures even more exciting than those which followed the famous mutiny on the Bounty.

HORSE SENSE

September is the time to select gilts for the breeding herd. Broody gilts that have a good growth and come from large litters, usually make prolific sows.

A hot oven may get a roast to the family dinner table in a shorter time, but keeping the oven at a low, constant temperature over a longer period of time will insure a tastier meat prepared at a lower cost.

Now that schools are again in session, a few words of warning to parents are timely.

Teach your children to be extremely careful on their way to school, teach them to cross streets only at intersections, and then only after they have looked to left and right. If it is necessary for your children to walk on the highways, instruct them to walk on the left hand side and to step off the road if necessary. Remind them daily!

Urge your children to use good judgment on their trips to and from school.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, OCTOBER, 6, 1938 NUMBER 40

WELFARE EXHIBIT AT DEKALB COUNTY FAIR

A sixteen-foot panel exhibit showing important activities of the State and County Departments of Public Welfare in promoting better social conditions among needy, handicapped and otherwise unfortunate citizens of Indiana, under the Welfare Act of 1936, is to be shown at the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair, October 4 to 8.

The display consists of four panels, each painted royal blue and trimmed with chromium. Chromium frames the large photographs which center each panel. Explanatory legends, painted a light canary color, tell the story of the four pictures: "Every rehabilitated crippled child is a potential wage-earner;" "public assistance preserves the home at a level compatible with decency and health;" "economic stress is lifted from shoulders of the blind," and "child welfare gives the dependent child a good home and guidance."

An attractive feature of the exhibit is the indirect lighting, which gives a third-dimensional effect to the photographs of the crippled child, aged couple, sightless girl and little child who exemplify the type of needy unfortunates aided by Indiana's public welfare program.

Pamphlets describing welfare services and giving questions and answers on public assistance for the aged, blind and for dependent children will be available at the exhibit booth. Welfare department representatives will be on hand to answer other questions. This is a part of the public informational service of the State Department of Public Welfare, given without cost to the county.

"THE THUNDER OF THE SEA" SHOWN SUNDAY EVENING

"The Thunder of the Sea," the first full-length sound motion picture to be produced by any religious body, was shown at the St. Joe Lutheran Church Sunday to only a fair sized crowd. The pastor, Rev. Frank Stevenson, had full charge of the program.

The picture is the most elaborate production of its kind ever completed by a church organization. It was produced by the staff of the board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America and is presented through that organzation as part of the "20th anniversary appeal" for evangelism and church extension in the United States and Canada.

Ministers and members of their congregations played the leading roles in a story of the struggle of the christian church up through history. The place of religion in the modern chaotic world is given special mention.

Filmed in the "March of Time" fashion it presents the full panorama of modern life. The picture opened with scenes of subway crowds, smoking factories, riot, homes disrupted by unemployment, munitions factories busy at preparations for war, farms devasted by drought and business men plunged to ruin by the stock market.

The role the modern church must play in the adequate solution of these evils is the climax of the picture. It demonstrates the fact that the christian church holds the only real solution to the problems of our present separation.

A million people will see the picture this year and approximately 4,000 separate showings are planned.

A battery of 5 machines are in operation daily showing the pictures. While the picture at St. Joe was showing, the Lutheran congregations at Butler, Spencerville, Harlan and a rural church were seeing the same picture. The machines were installed by a crew and all set for operation, and the local pastor or one selected to start and stop the machine. The crew then collects the machines and moves on for the next day's appointments.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

SHORES OF TRIPOLI

Right under the guns of the Tripolitan pirates lay the American frigate Philadelphia. She had gone on the rocks in the Mediterranean, and her guns and equipment had been tossed overboard by her crew before they were forced to yield to an overwhelming foe. The vessel was a part of the infant American Navy, attempting to suppress the Barbary pirates in 1803.

After the helpless Philadelphia had been seized by the pirates and her crew imprisoned, the ship was towed close to the enemy's shore batteries, where menacing guns defied the recapture of the prize.

But the Americans were made of sterner stuff than the Tripolitans reckoned. They were determined that the vessel should not be held by the enemy, and were willing to risk everything in an attempt to destroy the ship rather than let it remain in the hands of a barbarous foe.

Volunteers were called for by the gallant Stephen Decatur. Both marines and bluejackets responded. It was one of the many similar enterprises in which the U. S. Marines have shared honors with their comrades of the Navy.

Slowly their small vessel, aptly named Intrepid, crept up beside the Philadelphia. Swiftly the volunteers swarmed aboard, subdued the pirates in a hand-to-hand fight, set the ship afire, and scrambeld back to comparative safety aboard their tiny craft.

Flames mounted high on the wooden frigate when she blew up in one final explosive roar, scattering fiery bits of debris over the harbor. The Americans reurned to their fleet. Along with the gallant bluejackets, seven marines shared in the glory of this enterprise, called by the British Admiral, Lord Nelson: "The most bold and daring act of the age."

I. & M. EMPLOYEES HAD WEINER BAKE

A group of thirty-eight persons, including the office force and field employees of the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., working out of Butler office, were guests of F. B. Leighty and wife, Monday evening, and enjoyed an outdoor weiner bake in their back yard. While it was cool, everyone enjoyed the large supper, the men folk enjoying stunts while the ladies huddled about the fire place and chatted. A number from Hamilton were present, who came into the company by the purchase of the lines in that territory recently.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

There are two things that you should give your children—a good example and a good education. A good example is also a safe example.

Recently I had a very strange experience. I saw a young child, whom I had just overheard tell his mother that he had been instructed not to cross in the middle of the block, suddenly and literally yanked off the sidewalk in the middle of the block by his parent and marched across the street.

That kind of example belittles the safety effort and the safety idea in the mind of the child.

Set the right and the safe example.

GILLIE COMES OUT WITH TEN POINT PLATFORM

"Stamp out rubber-stamp rule!"

This is the number-one plank in a 10-point platform announced by Dr. George W. Gillie, Republican candidate for Cogress from the Fourth Indiana District.

Dr. Gillie comes out strongly in favor of neutrality in the event of war, a fair deal for farmers and laborers, a decent wage for WPA workers, adequate social security and old age assistance, collective bargaining, Government co-operation with industry, and reduced taxes.

The platform, many parts of which are aimed directly at Congressman J. I. Farley, Democratic Candidate, was published in pamphlet form. It will be given wide distribution throughout the district.

Intended to clarify issues in the campaign the platform declares that Dr. Gillie believes in:

(1) Stamping out rubber-stamp rule. Give the Fourth District a real voice in Congress—not the voice of a White House Charlie McCarthy.

(2) Strict neutrality in the event of war. Stand clear of foreign entanglements. Let Europe solve its own problems—America has problems of her own.

(3) A fair deal for farmers and laborers. Protect American agriculture and industry against imports of foreign products and competition from abroad.

(4) A DECENT WAGE FOR WPA WORKERS.

Give WPA employes a fair share of the relief dollar by eliminating politics and waste. Base wages on living costs.

(5) ADEQUATE SOCIAL SECURITY AND OLD AGE ASSISTANCE.

Adopt a sound pay-as-you-go plan to provide generously for the needy, the aged, the blind and the crippled.

(6) ORGANIZED LABOR.

Defend the God-given right of Labor to form unions and bargain collectively. End strife between Labor and Capital.

(7) GOVERNMENT CO-OPERATION WITH INDUSTRY.

Encourage industrial expansion and promote business. Start factories humming again. Send laborers back to work.

(8) RETURN TO SANITY IN GOVERNMENT.

Preserve the constitutional principals which have guided this Nation for 150 years.

(9) REDUCED TAXES.

Promote governmental economy. Free American business and industry from excessive tax burdens.

(10) EQUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL.

End evil conditions under which so many Americans are uable to give their children educational advantages and raise them in proper surroundings.

Republican Candidate for Representative in the U. S. Congress

We hear a great deal of talk about "cheap politics," when the fact of the business is all kinds of politics are costly.

People used to get a divorce as quietly as possible, but now they want it to take up more space in the paper than their wedding did.

Why is it that it is easier to get most men to make the third payment on a car than it is to get them to make the first payment on a home?

Temper is about the only thing we know of that can be kept indefinitely without spoiling.

Any man who wants to tackle something hard might try settling an argument between two neighbors, and leaving them both satisfied.

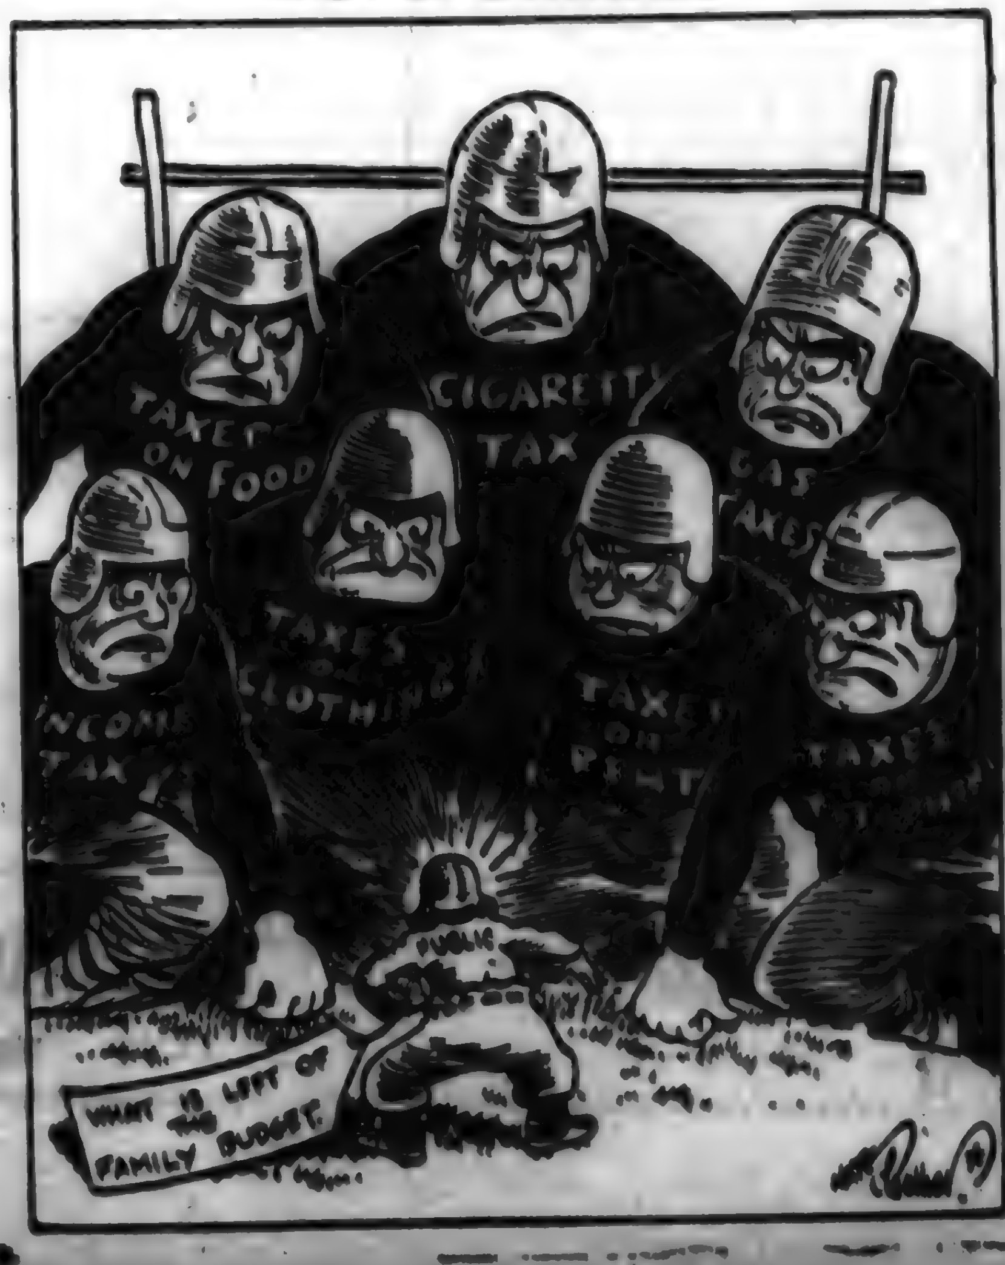
Times change, but you can still learn more about a girl by being married to her ten minutes than you can by courting her ten years.

The general trend of news can change with a rapidity that is startling. No longer than a fortnight ago, the welfare of the country appeared to turn on the outcome of so called purges, the success or failure of the New Deal and the settling of the question as to whether or not the rule forbidding a Presidential tenure longer than eight years should survive. The headlines and front pages of the papers, and indeed the major portion of their contents, have altered completely. It is hard to tell which is cause and which is effect. Have the public prints turned the attention of the reading public to the condition of affairs across the sea, or has the general interest shifted, the papers simply recognizing the necessity for giving people the news they like to read? Either way, it seems as though many of the things that a short time ago appeared to be of vital consequence, were not of so much importance after all.

In any event, the war scare is here. The word "scare" is more than a handy term. One of Shakespeare's characters said that he feared that something or other was going to happen, to which his companion replied, in substance: "If you fear it, then you would not have it so." To call rumors of wars a "scare" amounts to the honest and wholesome confession that armed conflict is a condition that practically all sound minded persons would avoid if possible. They "would not have it so."

After all, everything depends on whose ox is being gored, or is likely to be. The Czecho-Slovakian attitude probably is best represented by the radio talk of a prominent Czech who, speaking unofficially, quoted Patrick Henry's stirring choice between liberty and death. The American point of view is reflected in several ways. It is believed that a special session of Congress may be necessary, for the purpose of reversing existing neutrality laws or exacting new ones. The President's notes to the German Chancellor embodied a call for peace, a polite and guarded imitation that if a change from bad to worse occurred, the world would know who was to blame, and the suggestion that, in its last analysis, the mess was one with which the United States was not called upon to meddle, beyond the point of giving timely warning of approaching danger, to the end that those likely to suffer most might be able to ward off calamity.

NOT A CHANCE



Mr. Hitler's address did not carry conviction to his non-German hearers, and it is safe to say that many in the Fatherland did not share his views completely, although regard for the safety of their own necks kept them either quiet or cheering. His arguments were built about the framework: "We want it, we can get it, and we are going to have it." Nevertheless, beneath the bombast and appeal to nationalism, there were indications that Adolph felt that, slowly and surely, he was being put on the spot by a none too sympathetic world.

The broadcast of Mr. Chamberlain was in strong contrast to that of Mr. Hitler, both as to length, subject matter and meethod of delivery. It was short and quietly spoken. The salient points of it were that peace was desirable, that Britain could be relied upon for aid if aggression became intolerable, and that the Fuehrer had proposed one plan in the quiet of the council room and then sprung another when the chat was over.

Senator Borah thinks that German-occupied territory beyond the Czech border should be incorporated in the Reich, but does not approve Hitler's way of going about it.

YOU SPELL IT

There is many a St. Joe man who shies at spelling the most ordinary words and who believes it is better to say it than write it, for maybe you couldn't read it if he wrote it! We have learned there are many distinguished statesmen and famous writers who were poor spellers. So most of us can appreciate the partial contents of a 500-word letter from a man seeking a job as relief inspector in a Canadian province. One of the clearest paragraphs reads: "Gentlemen alderman I leve to you if you will give to me some position for me as inspector lelief then you can see who save the money for the city I know lots of cases is nobody do anything."

Even with a good English course the writer might not have made himself and clearer, for despite the construction we are sort of able to figure out the meaning and it causes us to wonder if maybe the writer isn't smarter than he spells. Some of us are always going to have to stop and think—does the e follow the i or the i the e.

HITCH-HIKERS

There are a large number of motorists who still pick up thumbers as they go along the public highways. This, in spite of all warnings to the contrary. One would think the various instances of this with dire results to the motorist, which can be read in most any large daily paper, would be a lesson in caution. The youth picked up who proved to be an escaped inmate of a home for feeble-minded, later broke into a house and seized a young woman with a threat to kill her, could have proven less merciful with the man who gave him the lift. The young fellow who, picked up by a driver, shot him in the chest to get the keys to the car and to rob his benefactor. You may say these cases are exceptions and perhaps they are. Yet there are many others like them happening all the time. Many a deserving chap will be passed by due to these cases of assault. It may look unfiendly to pass by a hitch-hiker when you have room in your car for him—but stop at your own risk and remember "it might happen to you."

SEE BETTER

We can remember when a youngster with glasses was a rather unusual sight. It was not for these young to be encumbered with spectacles but for the old who had seen too much for too many years! Boys and girls hated to wear them and thought they looked "sissy." A girl couldn't picture a beauty in glasses. Grown-ups were apt to say glasses were a "graft" and "why didn't they have to wear them in my day." But today St. Joe parents are more enlightened regarding the care of the eyes and due to glasses many a dull child in school has been able to get good marks. The headaches and squinting are relieved when the eyes are taken care of properly. Often it is only during early years that a child must wear glasses that they can be discarded when the nerves are strengthened and ready for service. You see many children in glasses today and think only that parents are careful. Some youngsters have been known to want glasses because their best friend wears them! School-time means more strain on eyes, and eyes are valuable members.

Vernie Monroe, wife and two children were dinner guests Sunday in the W. J. Staman home. One of the most perfect shaped puff balls we ever saw, was brought to The News office Saturday evening by Lester Coburn. The dimensions were 11x12 inches and 42½ inches in circumference and weighing 6¼ pounds. It was admired by every passer by and it was given to Mrs. Ray Draggoo, of Concord on Monday. It was regarded by many as a rare delicacy.

Rehoboth Church entertained the Kendallville District Meeting of the M. P. Church, Wednesday in an all day session, Rev. Otis Jones, New Haven; Rev. A. L. Wooten, Garrett; Rev. W. L. Heitz, Winona Lake; Mrs. C. H. Simons and Mrs. Cecil Likens, of Kendallville; Rev. E. L. Ferris and Rev. Fred Clark, of Elwood, were the speakers on the program.

Wayne Van Auken, of Auburn, was in town Saturday morning to settle a dispute as to the width of the alley between the M. C. Blue and Myrtha J. Soule properties in the west end. When the deeds to the properties were submitted to Mr. Van Auken, he at once made the decision of a fifteen foot alley. This will entail the moving of some of the buildings on this alley, as it maintains 15 feet in width from Second Street west to Hart Street.

Large Colonial Plantations

There were many plantations in Virginia in the early days of 5,000 or more acres. Nicholas Hayward had a unit of 30,000 acres, and William Fitzhugh at one time owned a total of 45,000 acres.

Bittersweet

The orange-colored fruits known as bittersweet are properly called false bittersweet, since the name really belongs to a purple flowering plant of the nightshade family.

Ray Willis's EDITORIAL

What this country apparently needs today is a specification writer—one who knows exactly what should be done to correct our condition.

You probably will be inclined to say: "Oh, we know what should be done," but I think you are wrong. Everyone knows what they want done insofar as the nation is concerned but the exact measurements, the exact ideas and the methods haven't been properly worked out.

For instance, a man wants a house. He knows where he can get men who will build it. But before the house can be built, there must be someone to plan the details and write the measurements and materials and quantities down on paper. These last are the specification writers.

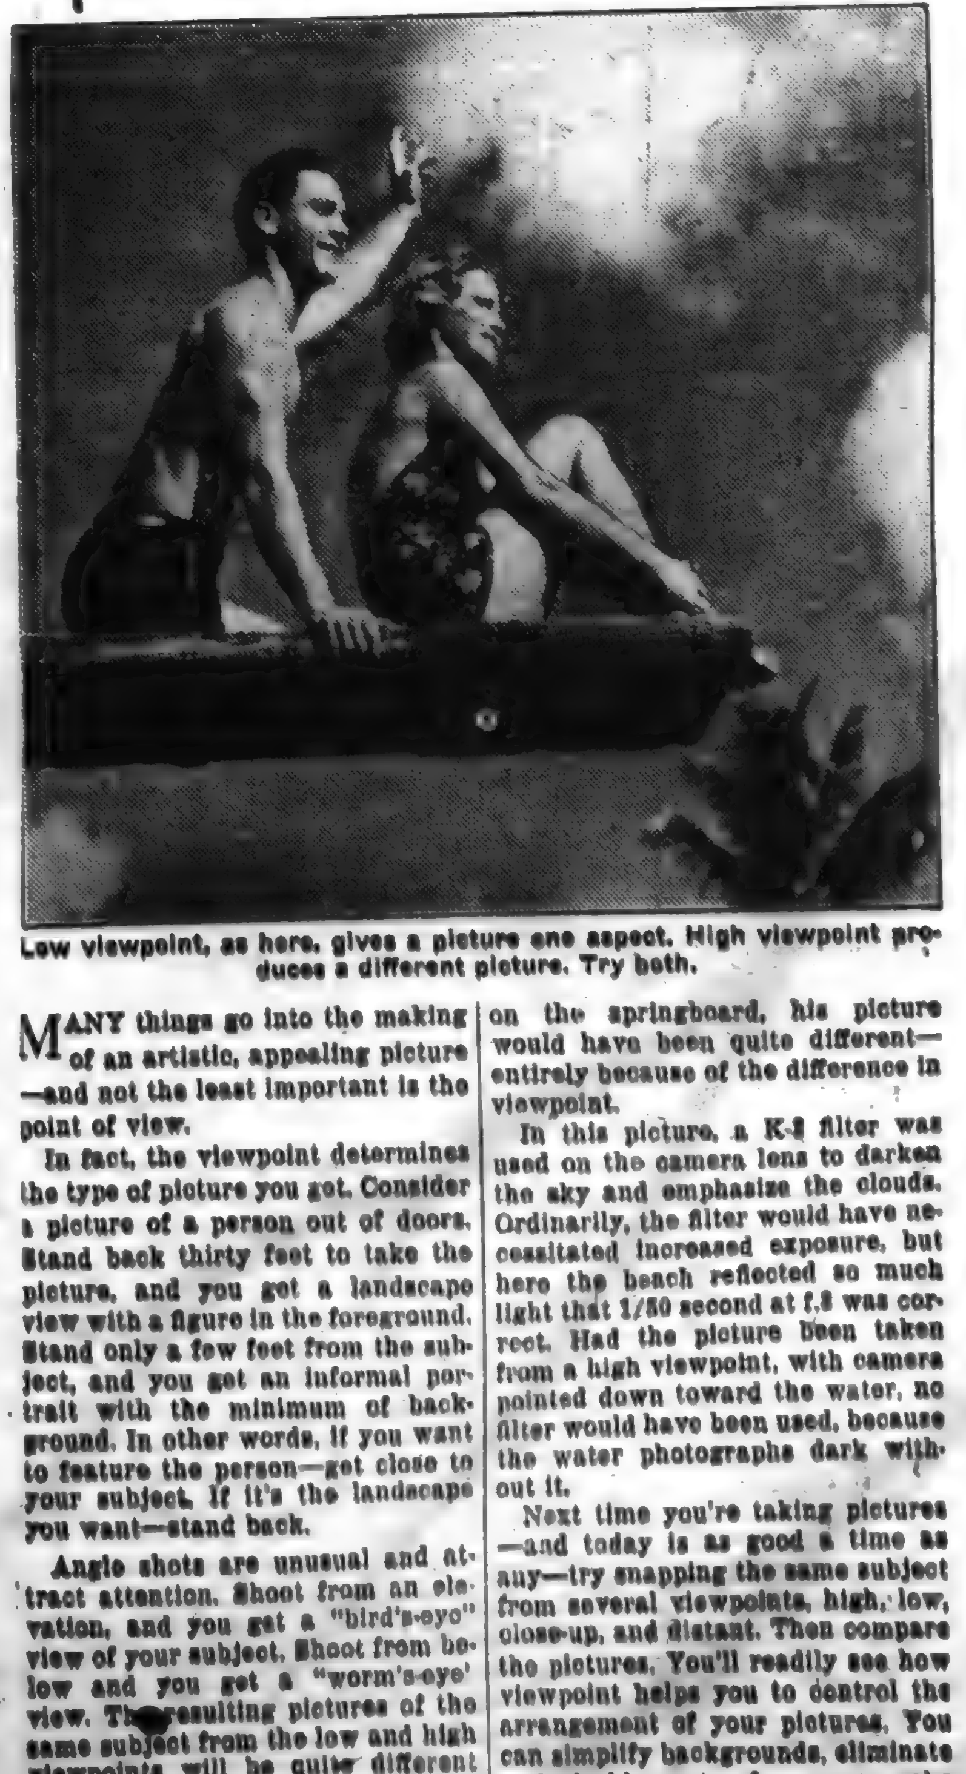
We know what we want in this country. There are people who will do the work. All that is needed is someone to say exactly what shall be done. We have had a lot of persons TRYING to write specifications during the last six years—but the specifications were bad so the job has not been satisfactory.

Fire . . . A Needless Disaster

Local fire officials join safety forces throughout the nation in observing National Fire Prevention week, aimed to educate the public for greater care in preventing needless destruction of property by fire. Most fires, like the disastrous one above, could be prevented by constant vigilance against fire hazards. Inspect your home for hazards today, before it's too late

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

POINT OF VIEW



Low viewpoint, as here, gives a picture one aspect. High viewpoint produces a different picture. Try both.

MANY things go into the making of an artistic, appealing picture—and not the least important is the point of view.

In fact, the viewpoint determines the type of picture you get. Consider a picture of a person out of doors. Stand back thirty feet to take the picture, and you get a landscape view with a figure in the foreground. Stand only a few feet from the subject, and you get an informal portrait with the minimum of background. In other words, if you want to feature the person—get close to your subject. If it's the landscape you want—stand back.

Angle shots are unusual and attract attention. Shoot from an elevation, and you get a "bird's-eye" view of your subject. Shoot from below and you get a "worm's-eye" view. The resulting pictures of the same subject from the low and high viewpoints will be quite different and they will lend variety to your snapshot collection.

For example, the picture above was snapped from the beach below the diving board. If the snapshooter had been perched aloft in the diving tower, with his camera pointed downward toward the pair on the springboard, his picture would have been quite different—entirely because of the difference in viewpoint.

In this picture, a K-2 filter was used on the camera lens to darken the sky and emphasize the clouds. Ordinarily, the filter would have necessitated increased exposure, but here the beach reflected so much light that 1/50 second at f.8 was correct. Had the picture been taken from a high viewpoint, with camera pointed down toward the water, no filter would have been used, because the water photographs dark without it.

Next time you're taking pictures—and today is as good a time as any—try snapping the same subject from several viewpoints, high, low, close-up, and distant. Then compare the pictures. You'll readily see how viewpoint helps you to control the arrangement of your pictures. You can simplify backgrounds, eliminate undesirable parts of a scene, make all sorts of changes—all by moving left or right, forward or backward.

This is one sure road to better pictures—study different viewpoints; choose the best one to tell your story—then shoot.

This is the best attendance we have had for some time, and of course, made the meeting more interesting. One guest, Mrs. Lay, of Washington, D. C., and three children were present. The president, Ines Hadsell, had charge of the meeting. Troas Carpenter read a very comic report on "The Tortures of a Week End Visit." Another by the entire club, "The Assassin of Youth." A paper on Marijuana, a very poisonous weed which is destroying our young people, as well as older folk. The hostess served dainty refreshments. Club meets Oct. 12 with Mrs. Eleanor Crothers.

FARM CHORES MADE EASY with Plenty of Light

MEMORIES of the dimly lit barn and of chores done by the uncertain light of an unsafe, flickering lantern may be romantic, but the modern farmer adequately wires his farm with ELECtric lights and works speedily and easily.

ELECtricity lights the farmhouse and flood-lights the grounds at the touch of a button. ELECtric lights give new ambition to laying hens with longer working hours, abolish the fear of fire from a kicked over lantern in the cow-barn, and generally speed up production on the modern farm.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1938 NUMBER 41

DUCK SEASON FOR HOOSIERS BEGINS SATURDAY, OCT. 15

Politics and football will be forgotten by thousands of Hoosier sportsmen on Saturday as they celebrate the opening of the duck hunting season, Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, predicted today.

Saturday, (Oct. 15,) marks the first day of the open season on which Indiana hunters can take ducks, geese, coot and jacksnipe. Hunting ducks, geese and coot is restricted to between the hours of 7 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., Central Standard Time, while snipe may be taken from 7 o'clock A. M. until sunset, Central Standard Time. All hunters must have an Indiana hunting license while those over sixteen years of age who hunt ducks, geese and brant must also carry a federal "Duck Stamp."

Bag limits on the ducks, geese, coot and jacksnipe, are: Ducks—Open season on all species except wood ducks, daily bag limit of ten in aggregate of all kinds not including more than three in aggregate of canvasback, redhead, bufflehead or ruddy species. Possession limit of twenty or two days' bag limit, not including more than six canvasback, redhead, bufflehead or ruddy ducks.

Geese and brant—Open season on all species except Ross's Goose; daily bag limit, five in the aggregate; Possession limit, ten in the aggregate.

Coot—Daily bag limit of twenty-five; possession limit of twenty-five. Jacksnipe or Wilson's snipe—Daily bag limit of 15; possession limit of fifteen.

The open season for taking these birds will end Monday, November 28, and the hunters must be governed by special federal regulations. These limit the hunters to the use of shotguns, not larger than 10-guage and with a capacity of not more than three shells; while baiting and use of live decoys is prohibited, regardless of the distance between the bait or decoys and the hunter.

Game wardens and sportsmen have reported an increasing number of ducks and other waterfowl on the lakes and larger streams, particularly in the northern part of the state.

NOT ALL POSTOFFICES ISSUE "DUCK STAMPS"

Hoosier sportsmen, planning to hunt ducks, geese and brant in Indiana during the open season which begins Saturday (Oct. 15) were advised today by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, that federal "duck stamps" must be held by all persons over sixteen years of age when hunting these birds.

These stamps are issued at all first and second-class postoffices, at third and fourth class offices which have been designated by the postmaster-general as issuing agencies, and at postoffices located in county seat towns. It was erroneously announced previously, that "duck stamps" could be obtained at all postoffices.

Hunters who have not obtained these special stamps, required in addition to the state hunting license, should secure their stamp at once. If the stamps are not issued at their local postoffice, the postmaster can advise the sportsman of the nearest postoffice where stamps can be obtained.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT ST. JOE TUESDAY NIGHT

Considerable interest in the political situation was manifest Tuesday night when a good sized crowd attended the Republican Rally at the gym.

The high school band played on the down town street and at the gym.

Dr. Geo. Gillie made the opening remarks as to his candidacy, presenting his platform as drawn from the ideas and suggestions of the people of the district, as published in The News last week.

Mrs. Kathryn Cooper Graham, of Indianapolis, was the lady speaker, stating that the people of Indiana, regardless of party, were clamoring for a return to sanity and prosperity, and that in the New Deal set up, only one man has been doing the dealing, and that in 1932 he promised to right all evils and today they know that he has failed in practically all his attempts. Today we have more unemployed, besides a great added debt, loss of liberty, political interference, American homes invaded, lowering of moral standards, one-sixth of people receiving government checks in various ways, and that we are now facing an ordered trend toward communism.

David Hogg, the ever popular campaigner of the district, was heartily greeted by Republicans and Democrats alike.

He stated that Congressman Farley had forfeited all rights to represent the fourth district in voting for several measures against the wishes of his people.

The re-organization bill, to make the President and his brain trust, guardians over the U. S.

The court-packing measure, to make all members of the supreme court submissive to the President.

He voted against the Ludlow Bill, making it necessary for an attack on our own shores, before our boys could be compelled to fight foreign wars.

He favors free trade, no tariff, buy where cheapest, a direct slap in the face of American labor and industry.

Mr. Hogg stated that every trade-treaty ever made, led to war.

Every foreign agitator in the U. S. should be driven out of our country, and there are only 540,000 of them.

Chairman Springer gave some startling figures as to the share DeKalb County had in paying the national debt as only 7½ million dollars. St. Joe would share in this to the amount of $135,000 with a possible $6,000 legal bonded indebtedness. For every person in Concord township the present federal indebtedness amounts to $268.

CANADIAN PICTURES TO BE SHOWN THURSDAY

The Conservation Club will renew its activities this week, by having a free picture show at the gym on Thursday night.

Mr. Johnson of Auburn, a professional camera fisherman, will show his pictures taken in Ontario, Canada, recently, which will be of real interest to all who love fishing. Mr. Johnson also uses barbless hooks on his fishing expeditions and goes without a gun.

Dr. J. E. Graham will accompany Mr. Johnson and the officers are anxious to have a large crowd.

CHANGES IN 1938 BASKETBALL RULES

1. Substitutions are not to be permitted in the interval following a goal and after the ball is put in play from out of bounds, unless a charged time-out or time-out for injury has been declared. It is still legal, however, for either team to take a charged time-out after a goal.

2. The "sudden death" method of deciding tie games is to be applied to the first overtime period. The intermission prior to this period is to be two minutes, during which teams may not leave the court. The first team to score two points in the first overtime period, wins the game. If neither team scores two points, but if one team has scored one point by the end of the three-minute overtime period that team wins the game. If neither team scores in the first over time period, additional periods may be played under the same conditions. Having had two high schools that played seven overtime periods in state elimination contests, The IHSAA has adopted the rule of shooting free throws after two overtime periods have failed to decide the game. Each boy is given one free throw and the team making the most out of five wins.

3. All jump balls must take place at least six feet from nearest boundary lines. This applies to the end lines as well as the side lines.

4. The rule which forbids a player from being in his free-throw lane for more than three seconds is not to apply to a player who is in the half of his free-throw circle nearer the center, provided he does not have possession of the ball. In other words, a player without the ball may stand in the outer half of his free-throw circle indefinitely, but as soon as he gets the ball, he is subject to the three-second rule. If he is touching the free-throw line he is not in the outer half of the circle.

5. Teams will be allowed five charged time-out periods.

6. If the ball is in the air on a try for goal when the signal sounds to end a period, subsequent touching of the ball by a team mate of the thrower nullifies the goal, but if such touching is done by a defensive player, the goal counts if made.

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

What is the "Right-of-way?" Who has the "Right-of-way?" I will not attempt to answer these questions because conditions and circumstances are involved that make one answer inapplicable to all cases. However, the safest bet and the wisest course is to give the other fellow the right-of-way rather than argue or have an accident.

What does a delay of a few minutes mean compared to a safe journey? Why gamble on the possibility of a serious accident just for the satisfaction of having the right-of-way?

If you arrive at an intersection at about the same time another motorist does and he signifies his intention of crossing, let him, even though you know you have the right-of-way.

It is much better to follow the safe course, and it leaves you in a better frame of mind.

BLACK BEAUTY
(7 reels)

Running Time: 70 Minutes
Author: Anna Sewell
Director: Phil Rosen
Cast: Esther Ralston, Alexander Kirkland, Hale Hamilton, Gavin Gordon, Don Alvarado, George Walsh, Theodore Lorch, John Larkin, Ed Fetherstone, Al Bridge, Bruce Covington.

Romance, pathos and strong human interest are the high points in BLACK BEAUTY. Built around one of the most appealing subjects in the world, the love between man and horse, this picturization of the famous novel by Anna Sewell is the kind of an offering that tugs at the heartstrings. Picturesque southern settings lend atmospheric color, while thrills and comedy interspersed here and there supply pleasing variety.

The plot centers around Henry Cameron, an aristocratic but impoverished southerner, who loves Mrs. Lambert, a wealthy young widow. When Henry's favorite mare, the "Duchess," gives birth to "Black Beauty," Cameron sees in the colt a means of replenishing his fortunes and winning the woman he loves. When a yearling, the colt is booked for a race, but due to the machinations of a jealous rival, is badly injured and never entered. How Cameron and the horse are separated and suffer vicissitudes, only to be happily reunited in the end, supplies action for the rest of the story.

Our personal idea of a hero is the man who would rather get soaked to the skin than to walk down town carrying his wife's green silk umbrella.

Don't worry about the next generation being soft. Just look at the bond issues it will have to pay off.

The only advantage a detour can lay any claim to is that it makes a driver appreciate a good road when he gets back on one.

There is supposed to be a use for everything. But there's one thing no married man can understand—the embroidery on a towel that is saved for company to use.

The man who is wise won't tell his wife his favorite dish. If he does chances are he will wind up having it three times a day.

Consider this. The agent can demonstrate with it for six months, but three days after you drive it it becomes a used car.

Recent events makes is look as though about one-half of the world is going around with hammers to use the other half of the world for anvils.

Generally stated, the European war situation is so much water over the dam and may be forgotten until our friends across the sea think of some new deviltry with which to worry an anxious world. The subject may be dropped, with the remark that the concensus of opinion seems to be that England let the Czechs down, though possibly with good reason for doing so, and that the United States helped the cause of peace by a word in season.

During the World War, it was commonly reported that the Germans bundled up corpses in parcels of a half dozen or so, bound them together with a wire and shipped them to a central plant to be tried out for the production of useful chemicals. A similar wild yarn comes from the Orient, according to which the Chinese are arming apes. With possible exception of a political campaign, nothing exceeds a war as a means for firing vivid imaginations of the Baron Munchausen type.

President Roosevelt urges the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. to patch up their difficulties and suggests that we have as much need for a domestic labor peace as existed in connection with the recent strife along a different line abroad. The labor leaders now have an opportunity to show that they have as much sense as Mr. Hitler, or viewed from a different angle, they have a chance to prove that there is involved a matter of principle, which cannot be laid aside in the interest of mere quiet and tranquility. The problem differs from that of Europe, in that here, there is a possibility that both sides will gain by peace, whereas the benefit of the peace obtained in Europe appears to be all on one side, so far as the immediate issues involved are concerned.

The tax paying public knows the source from which money comes, but now and then wonders where it goes. An answer to that question involves the dismal subject of figures, but there seems to be no other way out. Minnesota gets three hundred thousand dollars for a canal, fifty-four million is set aside for housing, the War Department dedicates eight hundred thousand for rivers and harbors, and four million will help to control floods. Yet the Treasury has thirteen billion in gold, to say nothing of loose change in the form of a few million dollars, rattling about, and the country as yet is not borrowing carfare. The matter of outstanding indebtedness will not be gone into.

Czechoslovakia establishes what is called a "concentrated power" under her prime minister, and the Chamber of Deputies in France votes the Premier the full powers of a dictator regarding financial affairs. The sun of the good, old, hard-handed boss seems to be rising, but even the sun can set. A lot of things can happen, however, before it reaches the zenith, and they may be none too pleasant.

TO OCTOBER

Pity the man who can't bear to be alone: tears for the woman who "must have her hands busy." The child in its innocence does not think of quiet and peace with so much playing to be done. But of all the year to make us realize that each life must have a certain period of quiet, it takes the month of October to bring us face to face with a desire for serenity and thought. This is the time when Nature glorifies herself with color in her preparation for a season of sleep.

This is the month when the wind is cool but considerate in permitting the leaves to drift slowly to a ground already turning brown. Brown for Fall and green for Spring. The man who doesn't sniffle the air with its crispness and its twang of bonfires, and who hears not the sound of children scuffling through the piles of raked leaves, he has no time for beauty of life or love of God in Nature.

October brings us more aware of the Infinite plan to produce and to harvest and in its beautiful plan for months of slumber the splendor of it all causes us to lift up our eyes and seek the hills. Many a St. Joe resident asks, "It's such a beautiful day, can't we get out?" The slight haziness in the air, the early twilight that is upon us much sooner than a month ago adds to this wish to meditate and relax, to get away from routine tasks of home and business, farm lot and sub-division.

The man who works with the soil is closer to this seasonal change than are we who must seek it, but all of us can share the insight with our neighbor. Let us loaf and lag along the coutryside and get for ourselves that restfulness of mind and body, of peace that October brings.

NO HUNTING ALLOWED

With the touch of cooler air, frost and football, we get out the hunter's gun with anticipation. The season finds its enthusiasts, the hunter and the sportsman ready for the game. There is a difference, as any owner of country acres can explain, between the hunter and the true sportsman. The former is the individual who seeks to slay, to kill in as large numbers as he can whether he needs the prey in such quantity. He destroys fences, leaves farm gates open and disregards the livestock which may be within his range. It is due to this type of hunter that each year you find more signs tacked to country land, reading "No Hunting Allowed."

As St. Joe people can attest, the sportsman is the hunter with a creed. He shoots for his needs and respects the rights and property of all people. This is the same man who, when fishing, catches what he can use and throws the others back for another day—it's the sporting thing to do he says. This type of hunter, the true sportsman would not be barred were it not for his brother-poor sport. Hunting has changed a lot from the old days and there aren't as many men awaiting the approach of the season as they used to do. Wonder if some of this is due to the destructive gunner who makes a clean sweep as he shoots his way through the hunting season?

KEYSER TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE WANTS TO RUN INDEPENDENT

A petition to have the name of Thos. J. Noel placed on an independent ballot as a candidate for trustee of Keyser township general election next month has been filed in the office of County Clerk Carl Walter. The petition contains 40 names and states that the signers represent more than one-half of one per cent of the vote cast by all parties for secretary of state in Keyser township at the last election. A request is made by the petitioners for the use of the name "Citizens Ticket" in connection with Mr. Noel's candidacy.

Mr. Noel is now trustee of the township, having been elected four years ago on the Democratic ticket. However, he was defeated for renomination in the Primary last May by D. E. Ocker.

Attention Voters!

Considerable stress has been placed upon the fact that the Democratic nominee for County Surveyor is the only man in the county who is eligible for that office. In the past, laws or parts of laws were quoted intending to leave the impression that no one, other than a Registered Engineer had a right to run for or hold that office.

The qualifications for that or any county office are that he or she be a legal resident of the county, and that is the only qualification required. You may rest assured that if I am elected, ample provision has been made to take care of anything that may come up in the operation of that office.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SCHOOL-TIME PICTURES

An easy, humorous school-time "story" snapshot, that could be made with any camera.

VACATION is over, and a new school year has begun. The hectic rush and bustle at breakfast, the patter of small feet down long school halls as class bells ring, and much poring over texts and notebooks under the living-room lamp at night. A new season—and a new field for the camera.

How many of us have good collections of school-day snapshots—pictures of our own school days, or our children's? Most albums reveal too few, and the chance to make others will not return. Look at Johnny as he tightens the strap about his books, and goes whistling down the walk to another day of classes. If he's in the fourth grade now, you'll never be able to take another picture of him at the third-grade stage. Time moves on, and the pictures we lose today are lost forever.

Do you have a good "off to school" snap of the children, showing them as they turn at the gate to wave goodbye? Probably not—yet it would be so easy to bring out the camera any sunny morning and catch a quick snapshot you would always treasure. Again, have you any snapshots around the school grounds—at the tennis court, the outdoor drinking fountain, the swings and seesaws, and other places where children gather? Picture your children there, and later on your snapshots will help them recall the good times they and their young friends had at school.

When the children are old enough, they should have cameras of their own. A good box type-camera will serve their needs admirably, and it is hard to imagine a better gift. The growing boy or girl will delight in picturing friends, school activities, school scenes — and inexpensive cameras are so simple now that any child can operate them.

At home at night, "study" pictures are worth while, and you can make them with any camera. All you need is a couple of inexpensive photo bulbs, and a roll of fast super sensitive panchromatic film. Why not try to keep the full story of the school year in pictures? Some day these school-time snapshots will be highly valued possessions.

John van Guilder.

Fine Old Saint

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SHE had been ill, quite ill. When she was getting a little better some of her friends, conscience smitten, said each unto herself:

"I must go and call on Sally and ask her what I can do for her. She's all by herself. I suppose it's the only decent thing to do and I don't believe she'll need anything much now."

So one by one they telephoned and this is what they said:

"Oh, my dear, I didn't know you had been so ill. I thought it had only been a slight cold, and not having heard from you I thought I'd call up to see what had happened! I'll come up and see you if I may. I wish I had known you were ill before. I might have been able to bring you something. But I'll come up today and see what I can do for you. Good-by, dear. I am so relieved you're a little better. Now don't do too much. I simply won't hear of it. Good-by."

So, every day for a week, one of them at least dropped in to see what could be done.

And this is what they did:

They let her get up and make them tea (when they called around teatime.)

They let her get them just the "simple lunch she would have had herself" (she wouldn't have had any herself, not feeling strong enough to get it!) when they came around lunch time.

They let her make coffee and sandwiches when they came in the evenings.

And as they left, at different times, each said approximately the same. It was this:

"Now don't do too much, dear. I couldn't bear it if you got really ill. You're looking so much better now. Oh—don't bother to thank me. It was a pleasure to do what I could."

Yes, she felt sadly disillusioned. Life seemed to her a very sordid proposition.

She remembered when she was passing a jewelry shop one day. She had seen a sign in the window:

"We furnish the license free to anyone buying a wedding ring from us."

Fancy their having such a sign! And there must have been people who had responded, or they wouldn't have such an advertisement.

She could fancy the mortification and embarrassment of having one's prospective husband suggest such an economy.

Alas, though, something had gone entirely wrong with her romance in life. Now, Valentine's day was approaching, and once more she knew she would have no flowers to wear, while all her other friends had them.

It had been hard. Illness, and nothing now to buck her up. She was lonely and young. It was worse, she felt sure, than being lonely and old.

Her mind went back to the days when she was sixteen. There was Geoffrey Pratt. They had talked of their future together—but they were both very young and Geoffrey had gone away that next year. She had never seen him since; it was over ten years. To think of being able to speak of something as having happened ten years before. It made her feel so old.

Suddenly her mind was aroused from these thoughts by a ring at the bell.

Was she dreaming? Could it be—

"Why—Geoffrey!" she stammered. "Is it you?"

"Such a question," he laughed.

And then—but why pry into those precious moments of hers?

He had come back! In real life, too, and clad in the armor of romance. And tomorrow—St. Valentine's day—they were to be married. He had had a dreadful time getting back for that special day!

AUTUMN MOTORISTS ENJOY SPRING MILL STATE PARK

Hoosier motorists will find a visit to Spring Mill State Park, located east of Mitchell on Road 60, a delightful outing that combines enjoyment of this scenic area with a tour through the brilliantly colored autumn foliage. Highways leading to Spring Mill wind through some of Indiana's most interesting and attractive scenery.

The park itself combines a number of attractions for the visitor, chief of which is the re-created pioneer village with its three-story grist mill that operates with water power. Surrounding the mill are the log houses and buildings of the once-thriving village, many of which have been re-furnished with the utensils and furniture of more than a century ago.

In the mill, the visitor can see corn ground into meal between ponderous stones, the stones turned by wooden machinery that is a replica of the gears and wheels used by the Bullitts who built the mill in 1815. Adjoining the mill, is a saw mill also operated by water power.

Other attractions of Spring Mill State Park are the underground caverns. Donaldson Cave which can be explored for short distacnes on foot, and Twin Caves which are penetrated by boat. These caves are a part of the limestone formation underlying the twelve hundred acres of park. A large tract of virgin timber, is a point of interest for many visitors while the entire area is rich in plant life, birds and other small forms of wildlife.

Extensive picnic areas with shelter houses, outdoor ovens, comfort stations, tables, benches and drinking fountains are provided for use by the visitors while there are many miles of drives and trails for those who wish to explore the park.

A 30-acre lake has been completed and will become a center of future recreational activity while construction of an inn to provide facilities for the park, is now in progress.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

ADVENTURE IN HAITI

Shadowy figures flitted through the black Haitian night in October, 1919. They looked like natives, and their dress, manner and deportment conformed to the Haitian type, but two of them were American Marines. They were seeking the capture of Charlemagne Peralte, a notorious bandit leader.

Heading this little band was Sergeant Herman H. Hanneken and Corporal William R. Rutton, both of whom held commissioned rank in the Gendarmerie d'Haiti. Each marine played the part of a Haitian to the manner born. Their faces were blackened and they spoke the native patois fluently. They followed a carefully laid plan.

Encamped in the hills with a strong outpost of sentries, the bandit leader believed himself safe. Hanneken, through a ruse, pretended that his errand to Charlemagne was a legitimate one and he passed sentry after sentry without opposition.

The dense Haitian forest closed in on them as they moved closer and closer to their objective. They had risked everything on their belief that they would pass for natives. Should the enemy become suspicious, there would be a swift ending to their adventure.

Several times the plan seemed balked when inquisitive native outlaws, loyal to their leader, threatened to stop the advance. The nearer they approached the bandit's headquarters, the more their means of escape was cut off. There could be no turning back.

Arriving at the outlaw camp, there was a brief struggle. The marines and their native followers disposed of the leader, scattered the bandits and made a safe return, after removing forever another menace to the peace of Haiti.

GENEROUS PENSION FOR AGED FAVORED BY GEORGE GILLIE

A sound pay-as-you-go plan to provide generously for the needy, the aged, the blind and the crippled as advocated by Dr. George W. Gillie, Republican candidate for Congress in the Fourth Indiana District.

"I've talked to hundreds of folks," Dr. Gillie says, "and there's no doubt about it—you just have to provide for them when they're turned out of jobs to make way for younger workers."

"My heart goes out to the old men—doomed to die on WPA projects or township relief—who used to hold good positions in industry. Their jobs have been taken away by younger men and the future holds no hope for them.

"I favor a generous pension to provide for these folks in their old age. It's our responsibility and I think we should face it squarely."

Three reasons why Indiana Republicans are looking with confidence to the Fourth Congressional Ditsrict may be found in the above picture, which shows Raymond E. Willis, Senatorial candidate, talking this over with two running-mates—Dan C. Flanagan, nominee for state appellate court, and Dr. George W. Gillie, candidate for Congress.

Mr. Willis and Dr. Gillie seem to be saying, "When we're in Washington ...."while Mr. Flanagan looks on approvingly. The picture was taken at a recent Republican political rally.

PICTURES OF NORTHWEST CAUSE MUCH COMMENT

The St. Joe Conservation Club and general public were given the rare opportunity of seeing moving pictures of a canoe trip into the far North by Mr. Ed. Johnson, of Auburn, during the summer of 1937, as shown at the gym last Thusday night. Mr. Johnson was accompanied by Dr. J. E. Graham, who introduced him to the club members. All who know Mr. Johnson know that he is a true blue conservationist, taking long trips into the Northern wilds armed with no firearms but a camera and fishing tackle. Even his fish hooks are barbless.

This trip he showed his pictures of, took him over 300 miles north of the Arctic Circle. The most of the pictures were of the character of the streams, lakes and of the trails over which he and his guide traveled.

Many miles of the trip were portages around roaring, treacherous rapids and water falls. They made their way down the rivers, occasionly shooting a rapid against their choice, when they would find out too late that the opposite bank of the river would afford a more favorable place to get ashore to portage around. Mr. Johnson's guide who was well over six feet tall was an expert at handling a canoe. He could shoot a rapid standing up in the canoe and maneuvering it with a push pole with as much ease as one of us would handle a row boat on the St. Joe River.

When they reached Hudson Bay, they boarded a trading steamer and went to Bafin Land and the Northern Straits. Up here he mailed himself a letter to his home address at Auburn, on September 1, 1937 and he received it just a couple weeks ago. This letter went on the first attempt of the Hudson Bay Co., to carry mail through the Northwest passage.

After helping establish a trading post above the Arctic Circle, he returned to Hudson Bay on a Hudson Bay Co. boat, then canoed again south thru the woods, fishing and picturing wild life. It seemed that Mr. Johnson's one greatest sport was to slip up onto a big moose and get a close-up of it as it frantically swam to shore to escape. Once he came down upon one too fast and ran his canoe upon its back. At this point the picture blurred as you can well imagine what happened. He reported that there were many Moose in this country but only a few deer.

The streams being cold and swift abound in the finest of fish. A speckled trout that didn't weigh 3 pounds was considered small and was returned to the water. Several views in the pictures showed him or his guide landing a nice trout.

Now you folks that claim to be interested in the local Conservation Club that did not see Mr. Johnson's pictures and hear him tell of his trips to the far North, missed out on the most interesting evening's entertainment the club has been able to put on yet.

The club is hoping to be able to get Mr. Johnson to return at a later date with another of his pictures. If this comes to pass please don't miss it.

Remember meetings first Thursday night in the month.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

THE THREE WHO DARED

High in the hills of Haiti stood a former French stronghold, named Fort Riviere. Within its walls Haitian desperadoes, who had been driven from one position to another, rallied for their last desperate stand against the U. S. Marines. Built of rock, with loop-holed masonry walls, it offered a formidable defensive position for the enemy.

Cautiously a force of marines surrounded the fort and laid their plans for an attack in November, 1915. They had no artillery. Obviously it would be extremly hazardous to attempt to scale the walls, but one of the groups found a narrow aperture in the fort where a possible entry could be made.

Upon the discovery of this breach this detachment of marines pressed forward with the ultimate objective of forcing their way through the gap and coming to grips with the enemy, whose numbers were unknown. A surprise attack through this breach seemed the most feasible plan. Yet, it was so narrow that only one man at a time could squeeze through.

In the van of this group were three marines. They decided to risk dashing through the aperture. Beyond that point there was bound to be instantaneous action, grim fighting, perhaps death.

The small opening prevented any concerted assault. The sergeant who first jumped through the breach and the two men who immediately followed him gambled with their lives—and won. The conquest of the outlaw garrison was speedily completed, partly through the disregard of danger exhibited by the first three marines, who later were awarded Congressional Medals of Honor.

FARMERS ORGANIZE TO PROTECT INDIANA HOMES

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 19.—The New Deal Agricultural program had serious repurcussions in Indiana last week as thousands of farmers held mass meetings in Greene County in protest against their policies.

Cause of the friction was the U. S. Agriculture Department's proposal to buy up approximately 218,000 acres of land in the eastern section of Greene County for reclamation at what the farmers termed "niggardly prices."

Speakers got on the stump and advovated a land-owners strike and the creation of a union of farmers. The Eastern Greene County Home Protection League was formed of inhabitants in the territory.

Such news as this took precedence over all other political campaign news, and Republicans had a word to say about it.

"There are families in this area who have lived on their land for generations," James M. Tucker, candidate for Secretary of State, told an audience at Worthington last Friday. "They make a living here. Their children and, in some cases, their grandchildren have been born here. It is home—and, despite what Secretary Wallace may think about it, home means something to the folks here in Indiana," he said. He reminded government officials that it was farmers with shotguns who sent a regiment of Brittish regulars running back from Lexington and Concord.

ED. SCHRADER CHOSEN FOR GRAND JURY

Jury Commissioners Herman Brown and Clyde E. Hart met Monday in County Clerk Walter's office and drew the name of Edward Schrader, of Concord Township, for Grand Jury duty Wednesday, when it convened to study a murder charge against Otto Himmel, now held at the DeKalb County Jail for the slaying of Miss Sarah Murphy at Corunna in January, 1934. The extra drawing was necessitated because one person previously drawn, Leah Hogue, had moved from the county.

CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN COMMENT FOR FOURTH DISTRICT

(By CHARLES A BAIRD)

Mothers of boys eligible for war service are among the increasing number of voters in the Fourth Indiana District who are joining in a protest vote to be cast against Congressman J. I. Farley on November 8.

Thousands of Farley's constituents, uneasy about the European crisis which recently threatened to flame into war and which may yet lead to such a calamity, were whole-heartedly interested in the Ludlow War Referendum, which the rubber-stamp representative helped to defeat in the last session of Congress.

Under the Ludlow proposal, the American people would be given a chance to vote on the question of United States entrance in a foreign war. The measure would not prevent the President from using the Army and Navy to repel invasion.

Congressman Farley, sensing that a majority of his constituents favored the referendum, was among the first to sign the petition to discharge the bill from a House committee, where it had long been buried. Farley advised peace organizations that he would support the bill to the last ditch.

Then a strange thing happened. Much to the disappointment of Ludlow Referendum supporters Farley, after signing his name in black and white on the discharge petition, completely reversed his stand and voted against the bill two weeks later. The referendum was defeated by a small majority.

Farley, it became known at the time, switched his position on the Ludlow bill after a telephone call in Washington from "Big Jim" Farley. New Deal leaders opposed the measure and "Little Jim," true to rubber-stamp tradition, took orders from them instead of the voters of his district.

Farley's switch on the question has added to his political difficulties in the Fourth District. His opposition to the referendum is being described by a large bloc of protesting votes as another "Farley folly."

Dr. George W. Gillie, his opponent in the Fall election, has repeatedly urged Farly to publicly explain why he voted both for and against the Ludlow bill. Farley has thus far made no reply.

Dr. Gillie, a strong advocate of neutrality in the edvent of war, has announced that he will vote to bring the measure to debate on the House floor in the next session of Congress. He has indicated that he believes in the theory of the referendum. In a recent campaign address he said:

"I give you my solemn pledge, before God, that I will fight with every ounce of energy in my body, as long as I can stand on my two feet, against any effort to send our boys across the sea."

Senator Arthur Capperx, of Kansas, strong opponent of peace, recently declared that a "demand for the right to vote on sending our boys into foreign slaughter pens is ringing through every state in North America.

"Those who will have to do the dying and the suffering and have to bear the unspeakable burdens and griefs of war should have something to say about it when the war lords of Europe undertake to drag our American boys into a foreign war."

Seal of Great State

The design of the seal of the state of Virginia was proposed by George Wythe. It consists of a female figure representing Virtue, her foot resting upon a figure representing Tyranny. The motto—"Sic Semper Tyrannis"—describes this allegorical representation.

Attention Voters!

Considerable stress has been placed upon the fact that the Democratic nominee for County Surveyor is the only man in the county who is eligible for that office. In the past, laws or parts of laws were quoted intending to leave the impression that no one, other than a Registered Engineer had a right to run for or hold that office.

The qualifications for that or any county office are that he or she be a legal resident of the county, and that is the only qualification required. You may rest assured that if I am elected, ample provision has been made to take care of anything that may come up in the operation of that office.

CLUB ENJOYS EXCITING HALLOWEEN PARTY

Ruth Baker entertained the No-Gossip Club Monday evening by having a masquerade party. Guests were greeted by the ghostly handshake, then received their fortune, and led to the cave of ghostly sights by the witch. They entered the cave by walking across bed springs, then to see a hanged man, the devil, skeleton, witch, ghosts, corpse and several other hideous things.

The party then called at the Rev. Clayton home, and then to Baker's store, where Walter was relieved of several articles from his stock, later being returned, of course. Then the surprise of the evening came, every one was led into the Roscoe Garman stock truck and taken to the home of Mrs. Mary Popejoy in Ft. Wayne, a former member. Mrs. Popejoy received the award for the funniest dressed person.

Guests of the club were: Mrs. Victoria Means, Mrs. Venus Mason, Mrs. Anna Myers, Misses Helen Stewart, Dorothy Burns, Virginia Cromwell and Evelyn Shook. Out of town guests were: Mrs. Carl Beams and Mrs. Mary Popejoy, of Ft. Wayne. Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Eugene Baker in two weeks.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP FARMER WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Vernon Stimman, of Jackson Township, nosed out Leal Woolever, of Grant Township by a scant one-hundredth of a bushel to win the 1938 DeKalb County corn husking championship Saturday. The contest was held at the Ira Williams farm just west of the Auburn city limits on U. S. Road 27. Stimman husked 22.84 bushels to claim the title, while Woolever was credited with 22.83 bushels.

Pat Hook, of Newville Township, 1936 and 1937 county champion, took third place with 22.37 bushels.

Judging was done by Wilmer Messman, of Fort Wayne, a state corn judge, and he was assisted by members of the DeKalb County Corn Growers Association.

Placings of the other entrants were as follows: George Fluke, Keyser Township, 20.96 bushels; Glenn Campbell, Keyser, 20.08; Clyde Monroe, Fairfield, 19.89; Harold Wise, Keyser, 15.88; Augustine Ellert, Franklin, 15.79; Delbert Larowe, Keyser, 15.10; Russell Kuckuck, Fairfield, 14.79; Victor Housel, Butler, 13.74; Roy Riggs, Union, 13.70; Walter Holsinger, Fairfield, 13.70, and Sam Grogg, Keyser, 12.20.

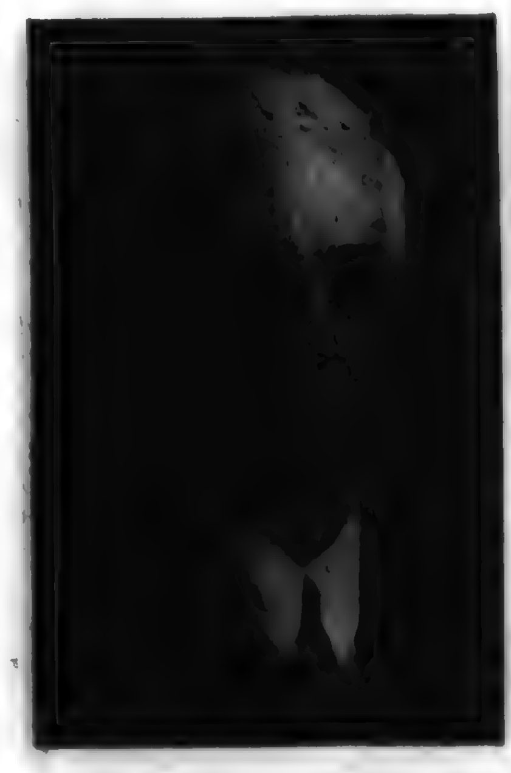
Riggs was given thirteenth place over Holsinger by exactly one pound of husked corn.

L. W. YEISER

Republican Nominee
—for—

Commissioner

(South-east District)



Having served on the Board of County Commissioners from 1921 to 1924, Mr. Yeiser made a splendid record as a public servant. Under his term of office the good roads program in DeKalb County was launched, and as a result our roads are in excellent condition the entire year.

For nine years he served as Inspector of Construction under the State Highway Department, and he became acquainted with many of the county governments in Indiana, which qualifies him more fully for the office of County Commissioner of DeKalb County.

Mr. Yeiser believes that the tax dollar should buy as much value, as though spent by yourself in a judicious manner. He is a man of good judgment and has been successful in his business undertakings. He can be recommended for this office of public trust as one who will faithfully perform the task as a guardian of the peoples money and that he will demand a full measure of return for the expenditures made by this board. In electing him, he will have no political debts to pay with the public money.

Local club women who will attend include Mrs. J. R. Leighty, DeKalb County president, Mrs. Glen Cole, president of L. L. C., Mrs. Frank Curie, and Mrs. F. B. Leighty.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE

Willard L. Hurni, known practically to every farmer in Concord Township, because of his business affiliations with the George Freese & Sons Co., which required his driving over the country for 20 miles radius, in gathering of cream, is the Republican candidate for Trustee of Concord Township.

He has lived in St. Joe for 12 years and has been connected with the public continually during these years. For three years he has been serving on the town board as councilman, has always been active in the social and civic affairs of the community.

He states that he is very much interested in the public school of the township, having three children in school, and if elected he will do all in his power to continue the good work of the school, and whenever possible, will endeavor to increase its efficiency, as far as he can consistently with the cooperation of his advisory board and without making a burden on the tax payers.

He would appreciate the support of the voters of Concord Township.

Story and Screen Play by: Paul Tuttle
Director: Harry Fraser
Cast: John Wayne, Sheila Terry, Jay Wilsey, Buffalo Bill, Jr., Shirley Ricketts, George Hayes, Yakima Canutt, Jack Rockwell, Phil Keefer, Frank Hall Crane.

For action packed full of thrills and surging with many tense moments of uneasiness, lovers of this type of motion picture fare will be amply rewarded with 'NEATH ARIZONA SKIES, featuring John Wayne.

The story deals with the adventures of Chris Morrell while searching for the father of a 10-year old girl whom he has reared from infancy. Complications ensue which endanger the life of our hero, but through a ruse he manages to elude a band of outlaws who learn of the wealth that is in the girl's name, and restore her rights to her fortune.

The Oct. 4 issue of "Summary of Car Load Shipments" of Fruits and Vegetables from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, shows that 14 cars of Apples and 320 cars of Cabbage were imported from Canada for Emergency relief last season. This may be "good neighbor" stuff but its a little hard for the home grower to understand when his things go begging for a market.

It might be Congressman Farley can explain why our own food is not good enough for our own people.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283
Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month.

Legionnaires of Post 283, with their families, were royally entertained on Tuesday evening at Comrade Ralph Sechler's home. The garage and packing plant being tastefully decorated with orange and black streamers, shocks of corn, and occasionally a ghost could be seen peering from the shadows.

The guests were obliged to enter the scene of activities through a long tunnel, at the end of which they were taken for a ride in an "Irish buggy' by Comrade Hatch, and dumped upon a mattress "soft as thistle down," where they were given a clammy handclasp of welcome by two ghosts, identity unknown.

After enjoying several party games, and an exhibition of the occult mysteries of phrenology by "professor" Crothers, the guests were invited up stairs to a ghostly seance in which the earthly remains of a certain "Sir Stephen" were exhibited, and examined by a curious and reflective audience. After the the seance, the Northern Vice Commander of the state, Carl Graham, of Ft. Wayne, showed a motion picture of the National Convention at Los Angeles, which was photographed by J. Ray Schomp, the editor of the Northern Indiana Legionnaire. Short talks were given by Comrade Lynch, Commander of the Fourth District, Ray Rhoderfer, of Auburn, County Membership Chairman, Carl Graham, and Lehr Wilder, Northern Vice Chairman for the Fourth District.

A delicious lunch was served cafeteria style by the Auxiliary, consisting of weiners and marshmallows, roasted over glowing coals, pumpkin pie, doughnuts and hot coffee and cider.

The members of the Post and Auxiliary are expected to take part in the Parade of the Fourth District in Fort Wayne on the evening of November 10th. Also the Annual Armistice Day Party, given by the Post on the evening of November eleventh.

Potluck and Birthday Party

The Loyal Hustlers Class of the Christian Sunday School was entertained Thursday evening at the Geo. Walter home, north of St. Joe. The event being in honor of Mrs. Walter's birthday. A pot luck supper was enjoyed by the group. Nineteen members, three visitors and five children were present.

SAVE U. S. MARKET! DISTRICT CONGRESS CANDIDATE PLEADS

An urgent plea to save the American market for American farmers and laborers by eliminating competition with cheap, foreign products has been made by Dr. George W. Gillie, Republican Congressional candidate.

Dr. Gillie declared that farmers and factory workers in the district wrote the third plank in his ten-point platform:

"Protect American agriculture and industry against imports of foreign products and competition from abroad."

He reported that all over the district he heard complaints, from Republicans and Democrats alike, that imports of foreign-produced goods were ruining American markets and lowering the standard of living for American workers.

"You know that farmers are the biggest buyers in America when they have money," Dr. Gillie declared. "But when farmers aren't buying and can't buy, things are too bad."

"Save the American market for American farmers and laborers. Give them a break. Let's get some of that farm money back in circulation. Factory workers will benefit by it. The whole Nation will benefit by it.

"You can't hope for prosperity when farmers are broke. I can tell you that from personal experience because I was reared on a farm and I know. Solve the farm problem, give farmers a fair price for their products, and recovery will become a reality."

Never has any poll of public opinion shown that the people of this District were in favor of packing the Supreme Court or of "reorganizing the Federal Government along the dictatorial lines proposed by President Roosevelt. Yet Congressman James I. Farley favored both these proposals. And that's one of the principal issues in the Fourth District this year.—Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

With the genereal elections only two weeks away political interest now centers on the outcome of the contents for 435 House seats and 33 senatorships. One survey, among newspaper correspondents and politicians, predicted Republicans will gain fifty seats in the House and four in the Senate. In regard to the general economic situation, many in government circles are keeping an eye on the price index—to see that prices don't soar too high and force a recession similar to the one just left behind. Insiders say, however, that no special legislation is in the wind to fix price levels.

PREFERRED PAYMENTS

Upon reading recently about an Italian laborer who is so grateful for a relief check that he has made himself a one-man project to keep the street clean in front of his house, we thought we would pass the word along. This laborer receives $3.00 a week and in his own words, keeping the street clean makes him "feel good inside. My bread it tastes sweet, because I work." Honor to a man like this, preferring to do something, anything, to earn his way. Too many cases of the opposite nature reach our ears, many untrue and too many true. It is good to know of people who appreciate a debt to society and who are so conscientious they must return payment to be happy. Readers of The St. Joe News will like the sentiment and will respect the usefulness of this Italian laborer. There are many like him. Seems to us that the folks trying to attract attention to their joblessness by stunting in the hopes of finding an employer, won't get as far as this laborer in winnin employment.

A DISPOSITION FOR DISASTER

During a speech in regard to the greatest single cause for automobile accidents a doctor named various causes, among them being old decrepit cars, old age, youth, drunken driving, infirmities, wet pavements and poor eyesight. All of these have met up with most drivers around St. Joe at one time or another. But there are not the greatest causes for accidents in the opinion of the speaker. He believes that bad judgment, selfishness and impatience are the greatest factors. And most drivers display an amount of these three characteristics during their driving about.

The Train Dispatcher, a railroad publication, states that more grade crossing accidents took place on Saturdays in 1937 than on any other day. Which proves that human nature enters the picture more strongly than old cars and wet pavements. Seems we will never learn that it is hardly a safe bet when it is placed on racing a train. So often it ends in a "tie."

POOR NERVES

We are so apt to speak of our nerves and the nervousness of our children. A London doctor interested in the reaction on the nervous system of children of the rich and of the poor, experimented with groups of families on these two classes. Nine per cent of the children in the poorer groups had been restless and irritable, subject to nerves and nightmares in their first year of life, compared to the 30 per cent in the rich group. This indicates that children of poor families show less worry, are less timid and more reliable. Fortunately this test was conducted only through the first year of life, otherwise we might be convinced that the poor are happier than the rich—a good subject for argument in any gathering! What we can't figure out in regard to the doctor's experiment is, how could a year old child know whether mother turns the collars on dad's shirts or if the family changed cars with every new model?

A YOUNG REPUBLICAN MEETS RAY WILLIS

"Will you make a few notes for me, please?"

These are the first words which Raymond E. Willis, Republican candidate for United States Senator, addressed to me soon after I met him.

The request, we found, was typical of the man. He was talking rapidly to several friends, planning various aspects of his campaign. He has a keen quick-moving mind which follows forcefully each line of thought to its conclusion. Once a situation has been investigated to its logical end, this short, stocky man does not like to do the same thinking over again. Hence I made notes of each point as it was worked out.

This orderliness of mind is an outstanding characteristic of Mr. Willis. He has "on tap" an endless amount of information on many subjects. On this wide general knowledge, he bases the logic by which his opinions and beliefs are formed.

That is Ray Willis at work.

Later I met him again at one of those all-too-rare times when he had a few minutes of leisure time. I listened and observed with undiverted interest as he sat before a large fireplace conversing informally with some editor friends. It was evident that he enjoyed this fellowship immeusely. Most of us would rather sit before an open fire, than race at break-neck pace up and down the state in a political campaign—but it was equally evident that he fully realizes Indiana Republicans have entrusted him with a duty—a duty which involves the welfare of every person in the United States—and Ray Willis is performing that duty, with all of his time and his boundless energy.

That, as I observed him, is Ray Willis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm had as Sunday dinner guests, T. S. McCutcheon and family, of Edgerton, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ulm and children.

I haven't heard a peep out of J. I. Farley about the Ludlow War Referendum or the Reorganization Bill. How would he vote on these measures if they came up again in the next session of Congress? Would he vote for them? Against them? Or would he take his usual firm stand on both sides of the question?

The realities of war appeared all too near to a group of grade school children at Huntington, Ind., when three planes swooped down over the school just as classes were being dismissed. The children instinctively ran for shelter, one little girl crying that she must "hurry home before war breaks out over me."

"Ray Willis is sound in thinking and sound in character—at a time when both are needed in the man to whom Indiana citizens can look as representative in the United States Senate." These are the words of an Indiana newspaper editor who has known Ray Willis for years.

Ray Willis has been the editor of the Angola Republican newspaper since 1898, and started "sticking type" in his father's country newspaper office at Waterloo when 11 year sold. He was nominated at the state convention by the overwhelming votes of the rank-and-file delegates from the rural and small-city counties of the state, because they had learned of his strong character and his sound American principles, because they believed in his ideals of fair play, common sense in government ond his confidece in the American Constitution.

Mr. Willis himself said: "I have learned that out in the fog of the strange bewilderment of the day, there still stand the same eternal rocks—Honesty, Duty, Justice before the Law, Freedom under real, personal, living democracy—and that he who is flying at a low ceiling, or hopes, through luck to avoid them and takes a short pass to safety and happiness is certain to crash."

Attention Voters!

Considerable stress has been placed upon the fact that the Democratic nominee for County Surveyor is the only man in the county who is eligible for that office. In the past, laws or parts of laws were quoted intending to leave the impression that no one, other than a Registered Engineer had a right to run for or hold that office.

The qualifications for that or any county office are that he or she be a legal resident of the county, and that is the only qualification required. You may rest assured that if I am elected, ample provision has been made to take care of anything that may come up in the operation of that office.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

MARINES PREVENT MASSACRE

Torn by political dissention, the little republic of Uruguay was in the throes of a revolution in November, 1855. American, French, Spanish and Brazilion vessels were standing by at Montevideo with a view to landing their naval forces, should it be deemed necessary to protect their nationals and consulates.

After a conference among officials of the four governments it was decided to land sailors and marines until the danger had abated. Among these forces was a group of U. S. Marines from the sloop Germantown. Guards were established around the consulates and the custom house.

Two days later, when the conflict continued with greater fury, additional naval forces were landed. This had such a quieting effect upon the warring factions that most of these reenforcements returned to their ships the same day.

Soon the insurgents laid down their arms. But the bitterness, born of the dispute, still rankled in the minds of their opponents. No sooner had the rebellious insurgents given up their weapons than the nationalists charged their helpless foes to wreck their vengeance.

At this juncture the U. S. Marines intervened, placing their small force between the victors and their erstwhile foes and saving them from a massacre. Thus the marines risked their lives and became peacemakers in what was a purely humanitarian venture.

American Marines have landed in Uruguay to protect our citizens at least three different times. This was the only occasion they opposed any armed movement there, and then it was done solely to demonstrate a good neighbor policy.

ADVENTUROUS KNIGHTS

(6 reels)

Running Time: 60 Minutes
Story by: D. H. Sharpe
Director: C. Edward Roberts
Cast: David Sharpe, Mickey Daniels, Mary Kornman, Gertrude Messinger.

ADVENTUROUS KNIGHTS is a story vibarting with exciting incident, alluring romance and laughter unlimited.

The setting is that of the mythical kingdom of Translavia, where adventures after adventures crowd upon the head of Dave Sharpe, American-bred boy and gridiron hero; and his bosom pal, Mickey Daniels, also a football star. For Dave has ventured abroad to claim the crown of the country, which is his by right of royal birth, and emerging from college life into that of a new and utterly strange world of plotting, conspiracy, military pomp, and the radiant smiles of lovely girls, they stick shoulder by shoulder in this fight for a throne, as determinedly as when they broke through the defense of opposing teams on the football field.

ADVENTUROUS KNIGHTS registers 100 per cent as sure-fire entertainment. Possessing all the elements of gripping drama, combined with brilliant comedy, it has received warm praise from the critics.

MORTUARY

MC CLINTOCK

The death of Mrs. Eva Alma McClintock, age 68, of two miles northeast of St. Joe, on the former Elias Reasoner farm, occurred Friday evening at 8:25 at the farm home. Death was attributed to a dropsical condition of the heart and other complications. The deceased was the mother of C. E. McClintock, Auburn city attorney.

Mrs. McClintock, a resident of Auburn for thirty years, was the wife of Elias A. McClintock, who was formerly deputy county clerk and justice of the peace in Auburn. She was born May 30, 1870, in Hamilton, moving when a small child to Edgerton O., where she resided until her marriage in December, 1889. The McClintocks moved from Auburn about eight years ago to the Bair farm in Allen County, later moving to Concord Township.

In addition to the husband, other survivors are two sons, Clarence E., of Auburn, and Ralph W., of LaJunta, Colo.; three sisters, Mrs. Hannah Slater, of Edgerton, O., Mrs. Frances Sweninger, of LaJunta, Colo., and Mrs. Viola Lyons, of Fort Smith, Ark., and five grandchildren.

The body was taken to the John R. Clark funeral home and remained there until after the funeral services which were held at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, with Rev. Claude Garrison, of the Auburn Methodist Church officiating. Burial was made in Roselawn.

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Furnished by
Ward Jackman, Sec.-Treas.

There was a liberal supply of sheep, hogs and calves in the pens for this week's auction but a very limited supply of cattle. Slaughter house buyers complain that veals are of unusually poor quality in all markets. Out of an offering of 114 head on sale there were no selects and not over 4 top calves. There is a good demand at advanced prices for quality veals.

Hogs weighing from 180 to 220, $7.45 down, some even thrifty vaccinated even lots of shoats up to $9.50. Fat sows $7.25 for the best with the bulk at $7.00. Veals top $12.20 paid by Marsh of Toledo, Ohio. Fat cows from $4.50 to $6.20. Bulls $6.40 down.

Every voter should vote November 8. Samuel A. Mumaw would appreciate your vote for Trustee, Concord Township. 43t2.

The local club has been very active in planting fingerlings and stocking the territory around St. Joe. On August 4th there were 62 pheasants released. August 26, a shipment of 500 rock bass were planted in Bear Creek and on Sept. 4, there were 240 small mouth bass, 2 inches long planted at the mouth of Bear Creek. To Close the Republican Campaign at Auburn, Saturday Night, Nov. 5
Two Headline Speakers

The Republican political campaign in DeKalb County will be closed with a torch light parade and mass meeting in the assembly room of the Court House at Auburn, at 8 P. M. on Saturday, November 5th.

Dr. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester College, will speak at this meeting on the issues of the campaign. Dr. Schutz ability as a public speaker is well known in DeKalb County and a large crowd is expected to be present to hear him speak. In addition Catherine Cooper Graham, of Kokomo, Indiana, will also speak at this meeting, on behalf of the Republican State Committee. Catherine Cooper Graham is well known to all radio listeners as the "Mrs. Sanders" in the radio program of "The Life of Mary Southern." She is an accomplished public speaker and her talk will be of great interest, particularly to the women of the county.

J. RAYMOND SCHUTZ

The closing meeting will be under the sponsorship of the Young Republican Club of DeKalb County and will be preceded by a torch light parade which will start promptly at 7:30 P. M.

All of the county candidates will be introduced at this meeting.

Music for the parade will be furnished by bands and drum corps.

An additional feature of the meeting will be a musical entertainment by the Stevens Troubadours, who will present a program of musical numbers.

"At Home" with Printer's Ink

Ray Willis, Republican candidate for United States senator, was brought up in a family of nine children, and was early taught by his father not to be afraid of work. When a lad he learned to "stick type" in his father's newspaper office at Waterloo. Although for the past twenty years his duties as editor of the Angola Republican have kept him busy in that line of duty and in community activity in Angola, yet he can help the boys in the "pinches" in the shop if occasion should arise.

Above is Ray Willis showing some of his friends that he can still put the type in the forms of the newspaper, just as he did week after week thirty or thirty-five years ago, when the force in the shop consisted only of two men and a "printer's devil." Today the Willis shop is one of the best in the state among weekly newspapers.

A good deal happens in the great big city. But most of it consists of the kind of happenings that make us glad we live in St. Joe.

Did you ever notice how quickly a knocker shuts up when the man he is knocking comes along?

Occasionally we have more joy added to our life by meeting a man who doesn't want us to roast somebody or something in the paper.

CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN COMMENT FOR FOURTH DISTRICT

(By CHARLES A BAIRD)

An increasing number of independent Democrats, WPA and factory workers, businessmen and Townsend Club members are joining with Republicans in the protest movement against Congressman J. I. Farley in the Fourth Indiana District.

Working men, those without a job or struggling to make ends meet, are voting anti-Farley because of the revelation that the former manufacturer, reputed to be well-to-do, has two sons and a daughter-in-law on the government pay roll at Washington while drawing $10,000 a year salary for himself.

Mothers of boys by the thousands are anti-Farley because, after signing, in black and white, th Ludlow war referendum discharge petition, he turned-turtle and voted on the roll call against even considering the peace measure that would have given mothers and fathers opportunity to vote on the question of supplying the "cannon fodder" for another foreign war.

An increasing number of WPA workers, barely eking out a miserable existence with no funds for education of their children, are planning to vote anti-Farley because he grabs so much money for his own family. Naturally it doesn't set well with the "under dog" that Farley, drawing a $10,000 a year salary, has rewarded two sons and the wife of one of these sons with salaries of $1,750 a year each. A WPA worker has every reason to join the anti-Farley movement, receiving as he does $576 a year compared to the $1,750 that goes to each of his sons and to a daughter-in-law. Any WPA worker could easily qualify as a doorkeeper, the kind of a job held by Farley's son, and receive one of these $1,750 a year positions.

Ft. Wayne Democratic business men, "cured" of the New Deal, are among aggressive anti-Farley voters. They oppose him because of Farley's rubber-stamp record. Thousands of Townsend Club members also are fighting against his re-election.

The anti-Farley vote, with a countless number of Democrats scratching their county tickets to cast a protest vote against Farley, has reached such proportions, observers say, that persons familiar with the tide in the district are predicting that the personally-popular George W. Gillip will be the next Congressman.

IN MEMORIAM

To commemorate yearly the eleventh of November is the patriotic duty of each American citizen. To refresh the mind of past wars and their toll, to pause in respect and honor for those sons of America who marched to battle that peace might be on earth among men and nations. Amid vast rearmament and protective war measures we again come to November 11th. Today, after just recently passing through an ordeal involving the peace of the world, we pay added reverence to the day, which it merits, and we say a prayer for a continued peace for our country. In 1914 nations were hurriedly involved in conflict while today nations parley and consider the deed before jumping into another war. 1914 taught us much which we have not forgotten. We think more of the horrors of war than the glory of victory. The World War was a devasting event but with these added 25 years in the way of scientific discoveries, with our modern inventions of destruction, another world conflict would be more fearful and terrifying. Any history student can tell you that in battles of old fighting was rather a glamorous way of displaying individual bravery, this "going off to the wars" was a hero's road to fame and often fortune. Today we are not reluctant to acknowledge that we fear war, and if this be cowardice, so be it! Fear is what called this recent meeting of Germany, Italy, France and England. Why not fear it when there were 13 million killed in the World War? It is figured the war cost $18,000 for each man killed, which goes to show that the cost of converting a living, breathing son into a corpse runs high. As we complain of the cost of government relief and jobs, think again of the $18,000 spent for a man's destruction. Let us continue to fear war for in this case fear is not inglorious or cowardly, it is rather noble and sane.

NIGHT AIR

There comes to us the statement made by the farm boy named health champion of his Western state at the yearly fair. He says in the winter he sleeps in a room with it's one window closed. No night air. To admit you don't have fresh air in your room is to be frowned upon by folks who are "fiends for it." There has always been much talk about the necessity in having all windows open and wide, to be healthy! Sleeping porches were added to houses to give the sleeper more air. Today they find it isn't necessary to have the cold night air blowing over you, in fact there are many doctors dealing in various disorders of nose, throat and lungs, who insist the patient is better to sleep in a closed room. Coughing is not helped by the night air we read. Health is hard to obtain and more to be valued than money.

A WALK A DAY

In England there lives a nine-year old boy, weighing 59 pounds, is 4 ft. 4 in. tall and medical authorities declare him the most nearly perfect in health of any one within their range of experience. Citizens around St. Joe can tell their own young that this English lad walks 10 miles before breakfast every day and lives on a diet which contains no meat, fish, eggs, or bread. We figure he must arise very early to get in a ten mile hike before he eats his breakfast, which consists of a slice of pineapple. We do recognize that exercise is necessary to good health and that most of us don't walk enough to really be healthy. The auto has made us walk-lazy. Rural people walk more than city dwellers perhaps, but even that is not enough. However, if we do take up this 10 mile a morning stunt we will insist on more than a slice of pineapple for lunch.

Gerald Martin and family moved last week from near Auburn, into the Grant Baltz appartment.

ANOTHER REASON

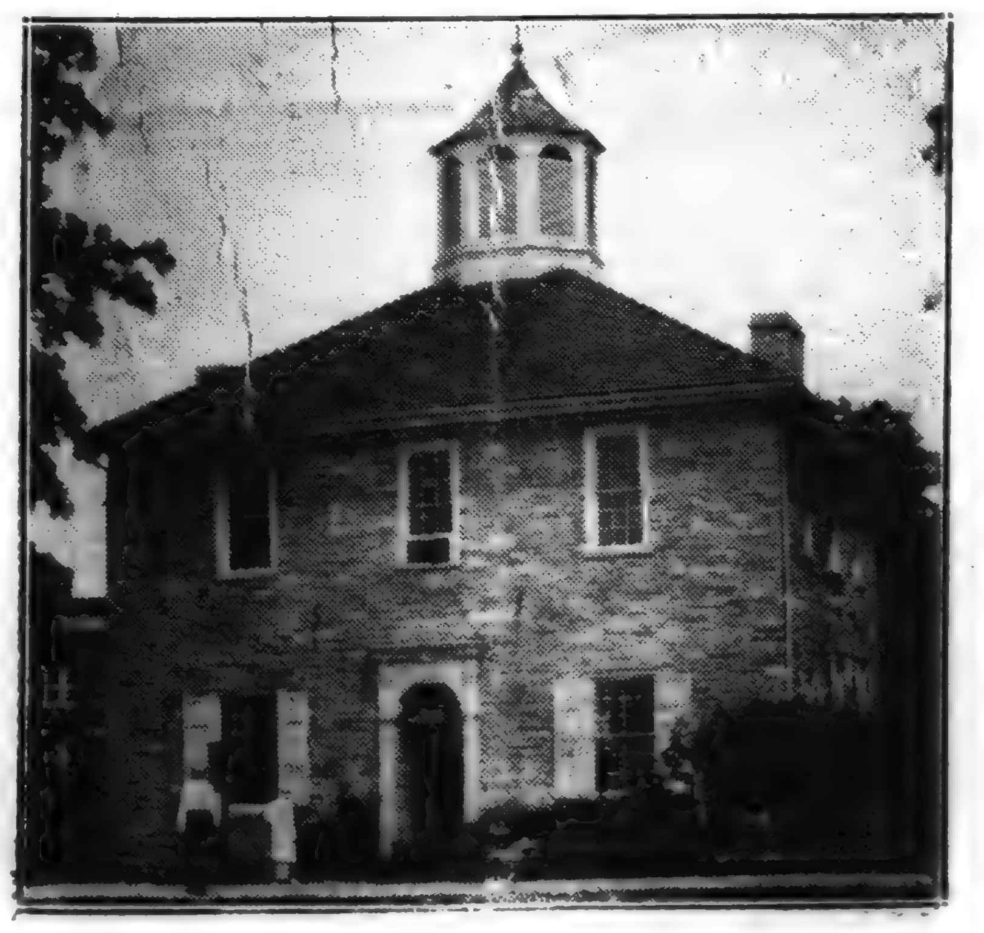
Here is another good excuse for failing to halt at a stop sign. It happened in England and it can happen here! Perhaps we have a victim of word blindness within the confines of St. Joe. This is a new type of illness which has come into the news through the failure of a boy in London to read a halt sign. The boy's father explained that although the boy was a clever mathematician and could copy writing well, he was unable to read. The father said he was just the same, could read figures but not words. An authority of the Institute of Child Psychology explained that such children are "word blind." They can spell out the letters of a word but the letters convey nothing to them. Some of us go all the way through school before any one ever discoveres it, and if they do, they don't call it blindness in our case —they say it is "dumbness."

Stock Exchange's Beginning

The present New York stock exchange traces its origin to a group of men who held daily meetings under a buttonwood tree which stood at what is now 68 Wall street, New York city. It was in 1792 that a formal organization was effected.

Ancient "Currency"

Ancient gold rings from the Viking days, weighing 350 grams (12 ounces) were found in a field at Havor, on the Swedish island of Gothland, in the Baltic sea. They are shaped like small spirals and were used at a time when no currency existed.



Indiana's First State Capitol Attracts Autumn Motorists

Indiana's first state capitol building, located at Corydon, attracts hundreds of motorists who combine a visit to this historic center with a trip through some of Indiana's finest Autumn scenery. At the Junction of Roads 135 and 62, Corydon is easily accessible from any part of Indiana, over improved state highways.

Designed in 1812 as a courthouse for Harrison county, the square, stone building became the seat of the Indiana Territory government and at was here in June, 1816 that the forty-four delegates to the constitutional convention held their deliberations. A marker has been erected to designate the site of the elm tree under whose branches some of the sessions were held.

Acquisition of the building by the state in 1917 as a state memorial, was followed by its restoration and today it presents the same appearance as in 1816 when Indiana was admittd to the Union and the officers of the new state assembled to take their oaths of office.

The building served as the Indiana capitol from 1816 until late in 1824 when the transfer to Indianapolis was made. After 1812 and until 1917, the building served its original purpose as the courthouse of Harrison county.

A few miles west of Corydon, the Harrison County state forest is rich in scenic beauty as it stretches along the Ohio River. The forest has an area of 6,614 acres with two shelter houses and picnic areas for the use of visitors. Outdoor ovens, tables and other facilities are also provided for picnickers, while a fire tower affords some exceptional views of the surrounding countryside and the Ohio River.

Corydon and the Harrison county state forest are located in a part of Indiana which was settled by some of the early pioneers who ventured down the Ohio River in flat boats and north through Kentucky—and which is noted as much for its scenic beauty as its historic interest.

Mrs. Ferd Leighty and Mrs. Harry Bollinger played a beautiful piano duet for us.

Our hostess, Mrs. Wm. Hough, served refreshments in keeping with the spirit of Halloween. After enjoying such a pleasant evening, the writer of this article went home with a feeling of Thanksgiving and gratitude, that she is living in these glorious United States instead of Soviet Russia.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

BIRTHDAY OF MARINES

Fifes and drums were calling men to arms in 1775, and the oppressed Colonies were sorely in need of war materials. In the breasts of patriots were smoldering fires which flamed into righteous anger during America's fight for freedom.

Ships and men to man them were also among the crying needs of the time, and soon a fleet of fighting craft was assembled in the Delaware River at Philadelphia. On November 10, the Continental Congress resolved: "That two batallions of Marines be raised," and that date has since been observed as Marines' birthday.

Bound for their first adventure, about 275 marines sailed aboard this little fleet of eight vessels early the following year for New Providence in the Bahamas. Here a large supply of guns, ammunition and war materials was captured from the British.

Scores of other expeditions have have been made by the sea soldiers in subsequent years, so today they truthfully sing in their hymn: "We have fought in every clime and place where we could take a gun."

Recruited in a humble waterfront hostelry, called Tun Tavern, these pioneers and other Continental Marines took part in many battles ashore and afloat during the Revolution. They furnish the present-day sea soldiers with their background of traditions, although no permanent Marine Corps was established until 1798.

On November 10 each year, it is the custom of commanding officers of Marine detachments on our battleships and cruisers, ashore in the tropics or in the homeland, to give a brief address to their men, pointing out the illustrious history of their forbears.

Their birthday not only serves as a reminder of deeds performed in the past, but also as a renewal of a marines pledge of unwavering loyalty to his flag and country.

REPUBLICAN DISTRICT RALLY AT FORT WAYNE, NOV. 4

Climaxing an intensive Republican campaign in the Fourth District of Indiana, a huge district-wide rally has been scheduled by party leaders for Friday evening, November 4, at the Shrine Auditorium in Fort Wayne. Coming on the eve of the important general election, the rally will honor the Fourth District candidates. Raymond E. Willis, candidate for the U. S. Senate, will return to his home district to deliver what may be the most important address of his campaign. Heading the honor guest list, in addition to Willis, will be Dr. George W. Gillie, Fourth District candidate for Congress, Dan C. Flanagan, candidate for State Appellate Judge from the Second Division, and Mayor Harry W. Baals, of Fort Wayne. Committees for the meeting, expected to attract a capacity audience, will be named by Frank Walker, Fort Wayne attorney, who supervised plans for the big Willis rally held in Fort Wayne early in September. Many state Republican candidates and party leaders, as well as city, county and district notables, will be in attendance at the rally.

CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN COMMENT FROM FOURTH DISTRICT...

(By CHAS. A. BAIRD)

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆

Political prognosticators glanced into their crystal balls this week, reviewed past election returns and unofficial surveys, placed their ears close to the ground, and came through with the prediction that Dr. George W. Gillie will win election as the next Congressman from the Fourth Indiana District by at least 4,000 votes.

Two factors were of major influence on their foSecast:

(1) The personal popularity of Dr. Gillie, who has a habit of winning elections even in Democratic landslide years.

(2) The unpopularity of Cong. J. I. Farley, whose rubber-stamp record at Washington has made him many enemies.

Throwing caution to the winds, but admitting that anything might happen, observers predicted that the six-foot, four-inch former Sheriff of Allen County would win handily over the former Methodist minister when Fourth District voters march to the polls next Tuesday.

Dr. Gillie will receive his strongest support from his home county, where he is expected to roll up a majority of between 3,000 and 5,000 votes over the ex-manufacturer from Auburn.

The Republican candidate also is expected to win in Steuben, LaGrange, and Noble Counties and break about even in Whitley and DeKalb Counties. Congressman Farley is conceded the edge in Wells and Adams Counties.

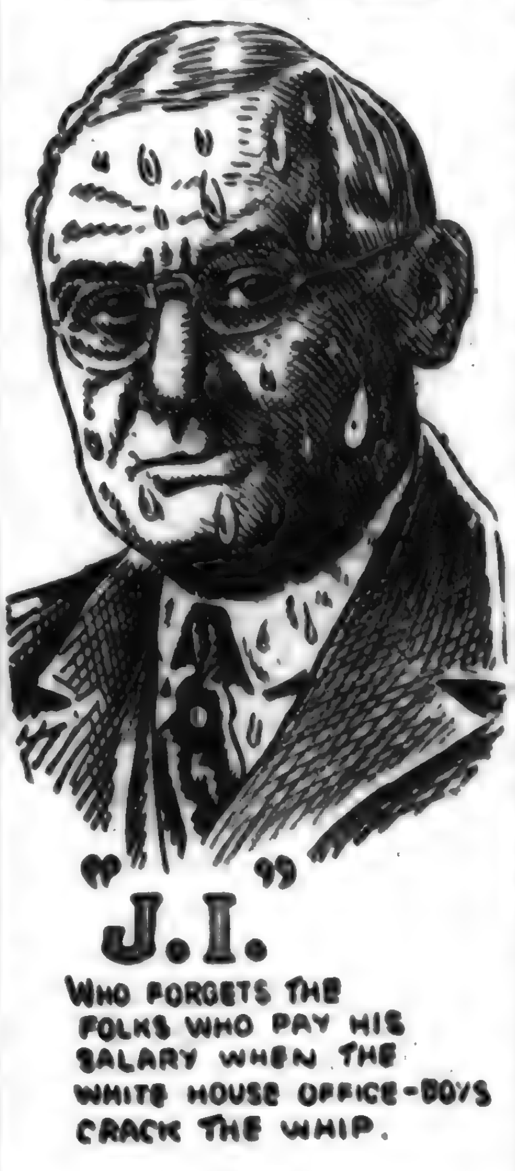
Dr. Gillie is expected to be especially strong in Steuben County where supporters of Raymond E. Willis, Senatorial candidate, are predicting a record Republican vote.

It is believed likely that he may also receive majorities in Whitley and DeKalb counties, where his campaign has been exceptionally successful. Splits which have been reported in Democratic ranks in Wells and Adams Counties may cut down the Farley majorities in those traditional Democratic strongholds.

A protest vote is expected to be cast against Congressman Farley by constituents who don't like the fact that he has three members of his family on the Federal pay roll. Mothers and peace advocates who send Club members who have pledged their support to Gillie, and a large bloc of voters who favor Roosevelt but don't want a rubber-stamp representative in Congress.

Supporters of Dr. Gillie, who number in the thousands, are convinced that he would make an ideal Congressman. Tall in stature and affable in personality, the popular ex-Sheriff has won many friends by his reputation for independence, honesty and integrity. He will make an imposing figure in the Halls of Congress when that body convenes in January.

VOTERS DON'T FORGET



"J.I."
WHO FORGETS THE FOLKS WHO PAY HIS SALARY WHEN THE WHITE HOUSE OFFICE-BOYS CRACK THE WHIP.

The folks who pay the salary of Congressman J. I. Farley are threatening to do a little whip-cracking themselves on November 8th, much to the distress of the rubber-stamp representative, as portrayed in the above cartoon.

Congressman Farley may find it easy to forget the welfare of his constituents, but Fourth District voters are not going to forget that Mr. Farley grabbed Government jobs for three members of his family and rubber-stamped every administration measure with no thought about what the folks back home wanted.

Dr. GILLIE AND CHAMPION HORSES

Dr. George W. Gillie, popular candidate for Congress, is shown here with a team of Clydesdale horses from the Gillie farm which won first prize in the horse and harness class at an early Allen County Fair.

Dr. Gillie, although he gave up active farming many years ago for a career in public service, still owns a farm in Allen County. He has made his campaign for Congress a crusade to improve conditions for farmers in the Fourth District by advocating a protective tariff on corn, wheat and other Indiana farm products. He believes that farmers can never hope for fair prices under the free-trade policy of the present administration.

Town-to-Town Campaign of Ray Willis Is Good-Humored Pilgrimage Over State

1—Ray Willis, Republican Candidate for the United States Senate.
2—Mrs. Willis, who has been an invalid for many years.
3—The Willis home in Angola, which also has been home to several nieces.

The town-to-town campaign that is taking Raymond E. Willis, Republican nominee for the United States Senate all over Indiana this month is a friendly, good-humored pilgrimage — the sort he would make among his neighbors in Angola where he has been a country editor and community leader.

At the close of a formal speech, he often steps up to the front of the platform and chats in an easy way with his audience about the family of nine children in which he grew up, about the principles of thrift, industry and neighborliness instilled during an Indiana boyhood and the manner in which he was drafted into the Senatorial race because the Republicans were looking for "new blood."

Much of the faith Ray Willis puts in individual initiative, free religious worship and neighborly co-operation as the way out of the nation's economic ills, he traces back to the big brick house in Waterloo, Ind., in which he and his eight brothers and sisters were born and raised.

Was Real Home

"Through 47 years," he says, "it was a real home. Just as the house was enlarged from year to year to meet growing demands of the increasing family, so the genial atmosphere of the home spread into an ever-widening circle. Ours was a typical Hoosier home. These homes have been the backbone of America and I want to see that they are protected against encroaching governmental restrictions that shackle the development of normal happy family and economic life in this country."

He pays tribute to his mother who with the help of only an occasional hired girl, prepared for her family, "some 295,650 meals, baked not less than 25,000 loaves of bread, 15,000 pies and 150,000 of 'those delicious sugar cookies.'"

From his father—also a country editor—Mr. Willis inherited his conviction that "life is largely what you make it." He recalls how a big, strapping tramp appeared at the front door asking for a hand-out one Sunday morning when the children had assembled in the "sitting room" waiting to go to Sunday school. "Look at these youngsters," his father advised the tramp. "If I can provide for all of these, don't you think you ought to be able to take care of yourself?"

Was Printer's Devil

At the age of 12, Ray [illegible] began work on his father's [illegible] paper as a printer's devil an[illegible] has never known an idle [illegible] since. He helped put him [illegible] through Wabash College by r[illegible] ning a printing office for the c[illegible] lege. Today when there is a ru[illegible] on "press day" he can still oper[illegible] ate the linotype and "make-up" the paper. His own experience has made him want to be sure young people in the United States shall always have the opportunity to rise as he has done.

Mr. Willis married Mary A. Taylor, of Angola, in 1902. She has been an invalid since shortly after their marriage. A girlhood chum of Mrs. Willis keeps house for them.

The Willises have no children of their own, but he has served as guardian for three nieces, daughters of a deceased sister, guiding them in their education until they were ready to establish homes of their own. Many young people in Angola, including students at Tri-State College, have been befriended by Mr. and Mrs. Willis.

Cares for Crippled Child

A daily caller at the Willis home is pretty, 15-year-old Mary Rowe, a crippled girl whom the Angola Rotary Club rescued from destitution a few years ago. Mary is the ward of the county, but Mr. and Mrs. Willis have given her special attention, soliciting the best medical aid for her and contributing to her support.

For years Mr. Willis has served as Superintendent of the Congregational Sunday School in Angola and even during the campaign, Sunday finds him in his accustomed pew.

Mr. Willis' newspaper, the Steuben Republican, is a weekly. He and his brother, Edward D. Willis, own it jointly and are partners in the Steuben Printing Company. The Republican office, on Angola's main square, is a center of political discussion for farmers, business men and other Steuben County citizens. It is especially lively now that Mr. Willis is running for the United States Senate and his brother is slated for re-election as Angola's mayor.

Traveling over Indiana means for Mr. Willis the renewing of many friendships made when he was Governor of Rotary Clubs in the state in 1934-35 and when he served two terms in the state legislature in 1919-21.

Heads Movements

The citizens of Angola will vouch for the fact that Ray Willis has been at the head of practically every community improvement project there for years. Many of them he initiated. There's the imposing Civil War monument on the public square that forms a focal point for many a pleasant view down the town's wide, tree-shaded streets. That was Mr. Willis' idea. [illegible] after he moved to Angola [illegible] up petitions, promoted [illegible] ject in his paper, and got [illegible] officials to act, then he [illegible] names and wrote inscrip[illegible] on the monument. To[illegible] nds as a tribute to the [illegible] iness of Ray Willis as [illegible] Steuben County's mil[illegible].

[illegible] dent of the Angola C[illegible] of Commerce in 1923, Mr. Willis initiated plans for the establishment of Pokagon State Park, on the shores of Lake James. He made the park project a major aim of his administration, first interesting state conservation officials in it, then launching a drive to acquire as much land as possible by private contribution and finally directing passage of state legislation that enabled the county to buy 700 acres with $35,000 of tax-raised money and present it to the state for preservation. The state has added to the original tract until today the park embraces some 1,200 acres and offers all-year round recreational facilities centering around an attractive stone inn overlooking the lake.

Is Rotarian

Mr. Willis was a delegate to the International Rotary Convention at Mexico City in 1935 and served as chairman of an international press conference held there. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta and of the Scottish Rite.

There is plenty of precedent in the Willis family for Ray's going into public life. His maternal grandfather, Timothy Dickinson, of Auburn, was a member of the State Senate during the Civil war. His father, Frank W. Willis, served in the legislature in 1895.

The candidate does not pretend to be an orator. He prefers to talk simply and directly with as many people as possible. Before election day he expects to have covered approximately 15,000 miles and visited every county in the state.

Ray Willis Says:

I am opposed to intervention in Old World affairs in any form—whether by covenant, prejudiced neutrality, or membership in a World Court.

In November, 1934, we had twelve millions of unemployed and a national debt of twenty billions of dollars. In June, 1938, we had thirteen millions totally unemployed, six millions working only part time and a national debt of nearly forty billions of dollars. Such is the folly of "bootstrap" recovery!

We will propose such legislation as will maintain the American markets for goods made by American labor from materials produced on American farms and from American mines.

After five and one-half years and the expenditure of three billions of dollars, the net result of the administration's farm plans has been to bring the price of wheat down to fifty-seven cents per bushel—and that fifty-seven cents is being paid in a dollar that has a purchasing value of less than two-thirds of that which the dollar carried when the experiments began!

A vote for Samuel A. Mumaw is a vote for a man of experience in the office of Township Trustee. 43t2.

Miss Eloise Bowman was made a member of the literary section at the teachers institute held in Ft. Wayne last week. R. K. Butler, of Central high school was named chairman of the section and Mrs. Darval Ross, of South Whitley, the third member completing the committee.

We wonder whether the political speakers believe, that our farmer friends are not fully acquainted with their situation, and that they can make them believe that they are now enjoying prosperity, when in the same breath they are defending the exportation of farm crops. Shame on such speakers who think the farmers are so easy hypnotized.

How good a driver are you? Can you answer this question?

If a pedestrian starts to cross the street at an intersection on the "go" signal, but the light flashes "stop" before he reaches the other side, does he continue to have the right of way over vehicles until he gets across?

Many drivers make mistakes in this situation. Do you? Is the responsibility here entirely with the pedestrian or with the driver?

Here is the answer: It is the responsibility of the driver to see that, in such a case, pedestrians are permitted to get to the sidewalk.

COUNTY AGENT MYERS RESIGNS HIS POST

County Agent T. E. Myers, at a meeting of the DeKalb County agricultural advisory committee Thursday night in his office in the court house, tendered his resignation, effective December 1. Mr. Myers, who has been the DeKalb County agent for the past eight years, resigned to accept a position with the Farm Security administration at Vincennes.

At the meeting, the advisory committee, which is composed of leaders in all agricultural organizations in the county, voted to employe C. E. Baker, who is the present assistant county agent of Lake County. He will assume his duties December 1.

Mr. Baker is a graduate of the University of Illinois with the class of 1927. He also obtained his master's degree in horticulture, and his doctor's degree at the same institution. Immediately following, he taught one year at the Illinois University extension at Champaign, Ill., then was employed for two years as a field representative of the Campbell Soup company. From that position he went into the county agent's office in Lake County.

Mr. Baker has done a great deal of experimenting with tomato production. His experiments aimed to increase the tomato yield have gained wide acclaim throughout middle western states. He is especially interested in the 4-H Club program.

Mr. Baker is married and the father of two small daughters.

Mr. Myers stated that he has received remarkable co-operation with the farming groups in the county and that he has enjoyed working with them. He will be a manager of co-operative farms in the southwestern Indiana area.

Mrs. Glen Cole visited Mrs. Wm. Henderson at Ashley Wednesday.

REPUBLICANS WIN ALL BUT ONE OFFICE

Make Clean Sweep in DeKalb County With Exception of One Councilman—Burley Ensley Leads Ticket with 2,727 Majority

The republicans staged a great come-back in the general elections in DeKalb county Tuesday.

They carried the county for their state and congressional tickets and every county candidate excepting one county councilman. The only survivor of the landslide is Claude P. Fitch, now county treasurer, who was chosen for councilman. The republicans elected all their city candidates in Auburn.

The democrats, however, claim eight of the fifteen township trustees and all the city officers in Garrett.

Jas. I. Farley of Auburn, present congressman, lost his home county to Dr. Geo. W. Gillie of Fort Wayne, by 7,251 to 5,210, a majority of 2,041.

Raymond E. Willis of Angola, topped the vote of Frederick VanNuys, now United States senator, in this county by 1,198, the vote being 6,699 to 5,501.

The largest majority among the county candidates was given Burley Ensley of Auburn, who was elected auditor over Clyde C. Deetz of Ashley, by 7,421 to 4,694, a majority of 2,727.

Auburn Congressman Loses in Race with Dr. George Gillie—G. O. P. Candidate Carried All But One County

Dr. Gillie carried his home county of Allen 36,181 to 25,260, a majority of 10,921. Mr. Farley was defeated in his home county 7,251 to 5,210, a majority of 2,041.

The only county in the district lost by Gillie was Wells, where the margin for Mr. Farley was only 67 votes. The vote there was 4,614 to 4,547. The figures in the other counties follow:

"Also at this time I wish to thank all of my friends for their support of me in this and other campaigns. Their generous efforts in my behalf are deeply appreciated.

"It is the part of good Americanism to accept the verdict of the people expressed at the polls. This I do without complaint.

The Choice of Fourth District

Congressman George W. Gillie, Ft. Wayne

"Above all other considerations is the welfare of the people of this district and the United States. I hope that Dr. Gillie will enjoy his tenure in Washington as much as I did mine.

"I know that at all times he will be guided by the highest motives. And again I extend congratulations."

He was appointed meat and dairy inspector in Allen county in 1908. He was elected sheriff in 1916 and re-elected in 1918. He was again elected sheriff in 1928 and in 1934, but was defeated two years ago for that office.

WILLIS LEADING IN U. S. SENATE RACE

Angola Publisher is 4,429 Votes Ahead with 2,906 Precincts Reported—Republicans Elect Five Ind. Congressmen

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 9.—With one million votes tabulated in Indiana's hectic election, Raymond E. Willis, republican senatorial nominee, today took a lead of 4,429 voters over Senator Frederick VanNuys.

When unofficial returns from 2,906 of the state's 3,872 precincts had been counted, the vote stood:

Willis, 581,868.

VanNuys, 577,439.

It was the third time that the lead changed hands during the day, each time by a margin of less than 5,000 votes.

The race, however, was narrowing down to several specific counties. These are Knox county, a democratic fortress where only one precinct for senator has been counted; Vigo county (Terre Haute), where about one-third the votes have ben counted and where the democrats have a preponderance of organization power; Evansville, another democratic stronghold where a few precincts are outstanding; Cass county, which on the basis of congressional returns is going republican; and several other key counties among the uncounted precincts.

VanNuys is dependent upon these organization-controlled areas for the margin that may pull him over reelection. Willis still has many precincts in the farm areas yet to be heard from where his strength is greatest.

Allen county (Fort Wayne) was chiefly responsible for the latest swing to Willis when complete returns gave Willis an edge of about 5,300 votes out of approximately 61,000.

Returns yet untabulated from Elkhart county will boost Willis' total materially but untallied returns from Martin county will give VanNuys a slight edge to maintain the nip and tuck character of their contest.

Republicans have elected five congressmen with the possibility of picking up a sixth, according to incomplete returns.

Republican congressmen far in the lead are Charles Halleck in the second district; Robert A. Grant in the third; George W. Gillie, conceded election in the fourth; Forrest Harness in the fifth; and Raymond Springer in the 10th. Gerald Landis, the republican nominee in the seventh district, is running 88 votes ahead of Congressman Arthur Greenwood with about half the district's vote counted.

Democratic congressmen elected were William Schulte in the first district; John Boehne in the eighth; Eugene B. Crowe in the ninth, and Louis Ludlow in the 12th. Congresswoman Virginia Jenckes is trailing by about 2,200 votes in the sixth district but the democratic vote in Terre Haute is expected to re-elect her. Congressman William H. Larrabee in the 11th district has a lead of 3,300 votes with the totals nearing completion.

SPORTING NEWS

The local high school opened its Basketball Season against Butler Friday evening, Nov. 4th. The second team winning by a score of 17 to 13 and the first team losing to Butler 9 to 28.

The second team did not score a basket the first half however played a very good defensive game. The score at the end of the half was 7 to 2 in favor of Butler.

But as the boys left the dressing room to begin the second half they went with the determination to win a ball game and that they did. They immediately got busy. When the third quarter ended the score was 9 for Butler and 8 for St. Joe. In the last quarter they stepped right up to Butler and scored four baskets and allowed Butler only one.

These boys are to be congratulated on their performance. By keeping physically fit and developing skill in performance they will win some more games for St. Joe. The line up:

St. Joe	Butler
Pugsley, F	Houlton, F
Curie, F	Provines, F
Rude, C	Cruminger, C
Davis, G	Dove, G
Goodwin, G	Bellamy, G
Paul Cook, C	Campbell
	Dielman
	Pellett
	Steffe

The second game of the evening was not as impressive as it at first appeared to be. The first quarter ended 6 to 1 in favor of Butler. At the end of the second quarter Butler was getting baskets with ease. The score at the half 18 to 1 Butler. The big boys had not scored a basket. They appeared to be in need of a big long rest. They allowed Butler three baskets and were threatening to score the first basket for St. Joe.

However the quarter ended Bulter 24 St. Joe 1.

The big boys with their much needed rest, were now ready to again enter the game. In this quarter St. Joe scored 6 points and Butler 4. This would have made a fine game had the entire game been played as the fourth quarter was.

St. Joe	Butler
Zimmerman	Alwood
Draggoo	Kepler
Don Cook	Johnson
Harter	Knox
Fetters	Weicht
Freeburn	Oberlin
	Osborn
	Wasson

The gumnasium was almost filled Friday night with loyal supporters. We are looking forward to a much larger crowd Friday night when St. Joe meets Farmer, Ohio, in the local gym.

We are expecting to have an electric score board installed by Friday evening. It will give the score of each team, the quarter and the exact number of minutes and seconds to be played.

No other game has been scheduled for November. The next game following will be December 2.

LOCAL MISSIONARY GROUP ENTERTAINED

The ladies of the Missionary Society will entertain the ladies of the Butler society at the home of Mrs. F. B. Leighty, Friday, Nov. 11.

On Friday, Nov. 4th the St. Joe ladies were entertained at Butler. Each year the two societies choose a mission study book for review, holding one meeting at Butler, at which time they give a review of half the book, the local society reviewing the other half at their meeting. The book studied this year was "Moving Millions" or "A Pageant of Modern India." These study classes are very interesting and also create a wonderful fellowship between the two groups. The two groups are always ably assisted by Rev. and Mrs. Kunkle, of Albion, and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway, of Kendallville.

"DONT'S FOR HUNTERS" BEGINNING TODAY

Observance of the following precautions by hunters was urged today by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, to prevent accidents during the hunting season which begins Thursday—

Don't Point A Gun At Anything You Do Not Intend To Kill!

Don't Pull A Loaded Gun, Muzzle-First, Through A Fence!

Don't Load A Gun Until You Are Ready To Start Hunting!

Don't Place A Loaded Gun In A Car Or On The Bottom Of A Boat!

Don't Lean A Loaded Gun Against A Tree Or Fence!

Don't Shoot In The Vicinity Of Houses, Buildings Or Other Places Where People May Be Working! (This is especially important in the case of WPA and CCC projects.)

Don't Neglect To Secure Prompt Medical Attention For Gunshot Wounds, Or To Take Proper Precautions Against Infections From Scratches, Cuts, Etc.

Hoosier sportsmen preparing to celebrate the opening of the hunting season Thursday, (Nov. 10) were cautioned today by Virgil M. Simmons, commissioner of the Department of Conservation, against carelessness in the handling of firearms in the hope that the annual toll of hunting accidents might be reduced.

At the same time a plea was made for the cooperation of hunters in guarding against further outbreaks of fires in areas where leaves, grass and other vegetation is tinder dry and easily ignited. Hunters were urged to be sure that matches and tobacco were really out before they are discarded; to see that camp fires are so located that sparks will not reach dry leaves or grass, and that all such fires are carefully extinguished—down to the last spark—before they are left.

With the open seasons for hunting cock pheasants, quail, rabbits and Hungarian Partridge beginning in Indiana on Thursday, it is anticipated that more than a hundred thousand sportsmen will be in the field that day and on Friday when Armistice Day is observed as a holiday throughout the state.

Reports from over the state indicate that birds and rabbits are plentiful in most areas although the dry weather is expected to be a handicap to bird hunting as dogs find it difficult to locate the birds under such conditions.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

How are your brakes? If you were to drive an unfamiliar car you would probably immediately ask about the condidtion of the brakes. Yet we often step into our own cars knowing that the brakes are not up to standard, and we drive at unusual speeds.

Where standards have been set the results of investigations are usually surprising. Often 50% of the vehicles are not able to make a stop from 20 miles per hour in 37 feet.

Grease on brake drums, delayed action on all brakes, and other causes are responsible for poor brake action.

Have your brakes checked regularly. They should be up to standard at all times. When an emergency arises you want to be prepared, and you can not be prepared with poor brakes.

HORSE SENSE

A progressive farmer will make more opportunities than he finds.

The best method of preventing damage by ground moles is to remove them with traps.

When disease occurs in your poultry flock, get an accurate diagnosis from a competent veterinarian as soon as possible.

Keep an eye on the trunks of your trees for mouse injury. To prevent complete girdling of your young trees, wrap loosely around the trunks a piece of ¼ inch mesh hardware cloth.

Mrs. Emma (Hull) Slentz, of South Haven, Mich., sister of the late John C. Hull, passed away Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. St. Joe relatives received a telegram and will go to Michigan Thursday morning.

Jesse Loftus reports the loss from his barn last Thursday night of 50 pounds of chop, 2 sacks of corn and 30 pounds of tankage. The offender was tracked by Mr. Loftus on the north side of the B. & O., west past the coal office, by the sprinkling of the chop from the sack.

Please notice that this issue carries ads of chicken supper at Cedar Chapel, chicken pie or penny supper at Newville U. B. Church and rummage sale at Auburn, all of which proves to us that these folks know the value of advertising and the pulling power of The News circulation. Be wise and advertise.

The county election commissioners, County Clerk Carl Walter, W. W. Ketcham and Paul G. Parker, were assisted in canvassing the vote Wednesday by Fred W. Knott and Miss Jeannette Hoff, Democrats, and Joseph King and Miss Martha Faika, Republicans. They prepared the canvassers' sheets Tuesday night and began tabulations Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock.

A telegram from Littleton, Colorado, announces the birth of a son to Donald F. and Priscilla Borthwick Drummond on November 8, at the Greeley Hospital in Greeley, Colo. The young man weighs a bit over eight pounds, and has been named David Borthwick. Both mother and babe are reported as being fine. This is the first grandchild of Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Drummond, of Haxton, Colo., and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Borthwick of this place.

Lee Ports Holbrook, Auburn, miraculously escaped death Tuesday morning at 5:45 A. M. at the Eleventh St., New York Central railroad crossing, in Auburn, when his auto was struck by a box car, crushing the 1930 Chevrolet and dragging it for 60 feet. Mr. Holbrook escaped uninjured except for shock. He was returning from taking a friend to work at the Auburn Rubber Corporation, and was headed east. An engine was switching eight box cars, pushing them north. The rear car struck the Holbrook auto, catching the right front fender, and tipping the automobile onto the left side. Holbrook was defeated for sheriff in the Republican primary and is well known to our readers.

TOUGH TO HANDLE

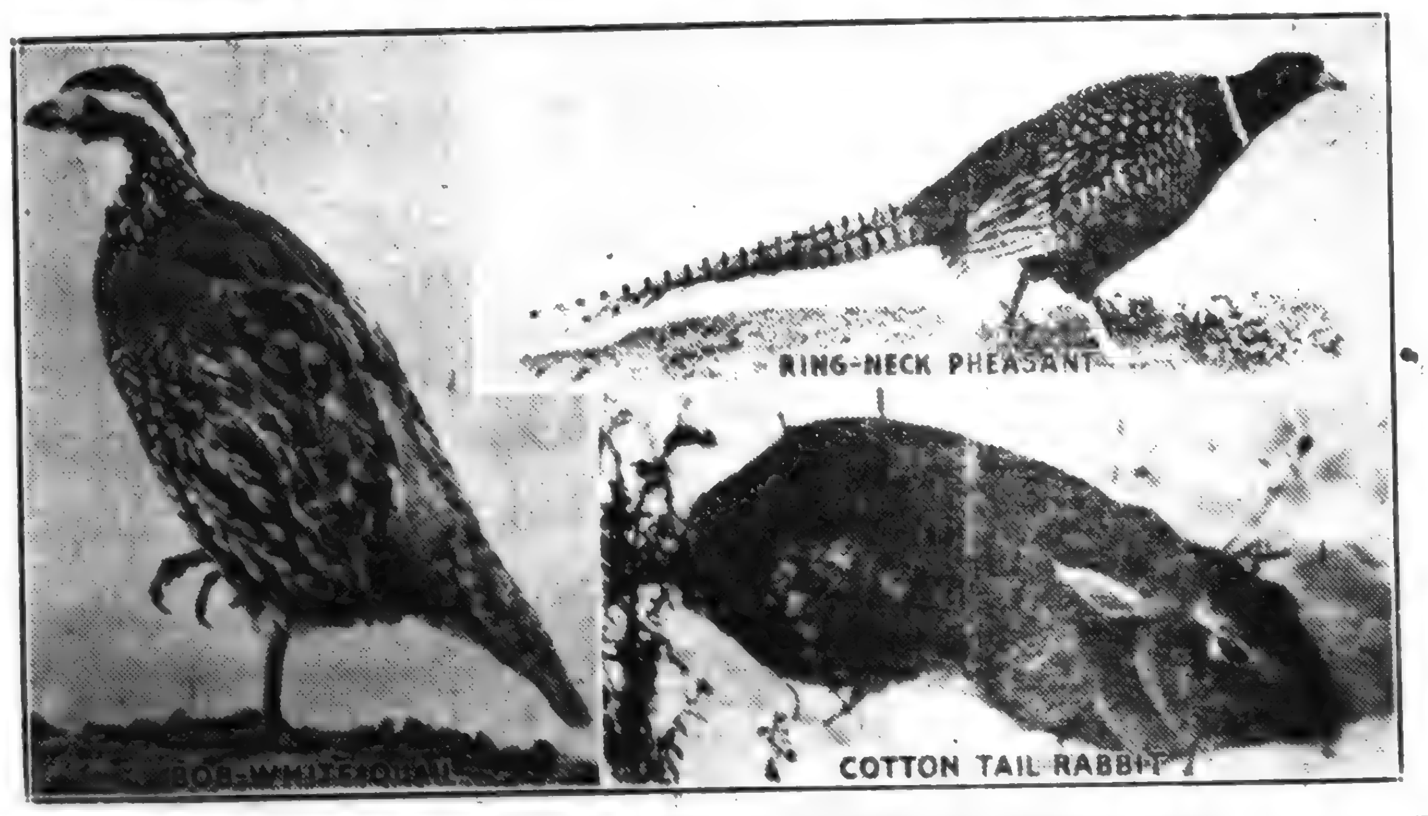
(6 Reels)

Running Time: 60 Minutes
Story by: Peter B. Kyne
Director: S. Roy Luby
Cast: Frankie Darro, Kane Richmond, Phyllis Fraser, Harry Worth, Johnstone White, Lorraine Hayes, Burr Caruth, Stanley Price, and others.

TOUGH TO HANDE is hailed as a thoroughly suspensive thrilling story, into which the methods of counterfeiting activity and its ultimate exposure, have been woven, as the basis for a strong story which is assured as not lacking in its romantic element and lighter touches of comedy. The entire film has been staged on a pretentious scale, with a view toward satisfying even the most critical audience.

It is the action that ensues that supplies TOUGH TO HANDLE with its tense excitement and breath-taking pace as the young lad, in company with his sister and a newspaper man pal, takes up the chase and tracks down the counterfeiters and sees that they are brought to justice.

Rabbit, Quail and Pheasant Hunting Seasons Begin Thursday, November 10, for Hoosier Nimrods



Thousands of Hoosier sportsmen will take to the fields today, celebrating the opening of the hunting seasons for rabbits, quail, Hungarian partridge and pheasants. With reports all through the Summer and early Fall indicating a plentiful supply of rabbits and game birds, hunters are looking forward to the opening of the season with real anticipation.

This will be the third consecutive year that Hoosiers have had an open season on cock pheasants, and the season has been lengthened this year as a result of a large increase in the number of these birds. Only cock birds may be taken, the hen pheasants being protected by law.

Bag limits and other regulations to be observed by the Hoosier sportsmen during the hunting season, include:

Rabbits—open season: Nov. 10 to Jan. 10, both days inclusive; daily bag limit—10 rabbits; possession limit, 20 rabbits.

Quail—open season: Nov. 10 to Dec. 20, both days inclusive; daily bag limpossession limit, 4 cock pheasants. days hunting.

Pheasants—open season on cock birds only: Nov. 10, 11, 12, 14, and 15; daily bag limit, two cock pheasants; possession limit, 4 cock pheasants.

Hungarian Partridge—open season: Nov. 10 to Dec. 20, both days inclusive; daily bag limit, 5 partridge; possession limit, 10 partridge for two days hunting.

The Indiana law requires every person who hunts to have a license, with the exception of owners of farm land, their wives and children living with them, and tenants of farm lands, their wives and children living with them—who can hunt on such lands only without a license.

Indiana laws also prohibit hunting on Sunday, make it unlawful to hunt on the lands of another without permission; provide for the confiscation of hunting equipment used in violation of the fish and game laws; and prohibit the shooting of game birds or animals along, upon or across any public highway.

Thousands of quail and pheasants have been liberated by the Department of Conservation and the conservation clubs since the close of the 1937 hunting season, while conditions for natural propagation have been unusually favorable during the year.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid Society has been postponed for this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Trostel had as Sunday dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Worden and children, Garnet, Charles, Robert and Calvin, of Spencerville, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Worden and son, Arnold of Hicksville.

Night Officer Art Coyle, of Auburn, suffered a broken right forearm at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon when he lost his balance on the cellar steps of his home at 340 West Ninth St., and fell. Mr. Coyle is the successful Republican candidate for the office of county sheriff at the polls Tuesday, and was unable to be about at headquarters on Tuesday night and greet the vast crowd assembled for receiving the returns.

Many a father says its about as hard to pronounce dirndl dresses as it is to pay for them.

Marriage is the only life sentence that is never commuted for good behavior.

Don't you hate to start giving a man a lot of good information and have to pause a dozen times to hear him say, "don't I know it "

"It is amusing to see an old bachelor petting a baby,' says Pop, "especially if the baby is about 18 years old.

Now and then we meet someone who doesn't seem to realize that a flea has as much right to live off of a person as persons have to live off of each other.

Corrigan showed us the ocean in good time, darkest Africa is now an automobile boulevard, the North Pole is no secret—but no one has discovered how to collect bad debts.

GIVE IT AWAY

This is an opportune time to clean out the cloak closet of old overcoats and give them to needy people, instead of letting them hang again another season. Give away your useless wearing apparel and household articles that would help to make someone else a bit easier. There is usually outgrown underwear stored away in most every home. There are few folks in St. Joe who have not something that is of no use to them but that would be greatly appreciated by some person in want. A change of season finds most people changing their wardrobes to an extent. There are always people in one's own family who are on the list for "hand-me-downs," but even in this case there are, no doubt, clothes of no use to anyone in the circle but which might find a welcome place in another closet. In this Thanksgiving season let us do a bit of giving of used things. Someone will be thankful for your thoughtfulness and generosity.

TWO-HANDED DRIVING

Why is it that most automobile drivers feel that steering is so simple that two hands aren't necessary to do the work? We are all apt to take our hands off the wheel to point to some spot, we lean back and slam car doors while a car is travelling, and there are many drivers who eat with one hand while they steer with the other. This custom would be perfectly harmless if emergencies did not arise where two hands were necessary to insure safety. Steering is made so easy on modern cars that it is possible to steer with one finger, but this is not enough when you come to a hole or bump in the pavement or sudden obstacles that need quick action for brakes. A sudden turn needs a two-handed driver. You mak be successful for years and not be faced with an acute situation where one-handed driving lands you in a hospital, but there a few drives in St. Joe who haven't found circumstances arising where two hands clamped to the wheel kept them out of the hospital.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1938 NUMBER 46

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283
Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month. . . . .

Sixteen members of Post 283 marched in the Armistice eve Parade in Ft. Wayne, Thursday evening, placing two musical organizations in the parade, the Harlan High School Band and the Concord Twp. High School Band.

The Post, by the wholehearted cooperation of its officers, committees and members, have made an outstanding success of its membership drive for the coming year. Having reached a total of 170% of its membership quota for November 11th. Its membership of 51 will entitle the Post to two delegates at the next State Convention.

A delegation from the Post visited the Harlan Schools at 9:30 on Armistice Day, participating in the parade and services. The parade formed at the High School. Led by the High School Band of Harlan, the delegation of Legionnaires, High School, and Grades of the Township, marched to the gymnasium where, after posting the Colors, Commander Lehr Wilder, acting as Master of Cremonies, presented the speakers. Comrade Ralph Sechler gave a talk on "Americanism." Adjutant Dean offered the American Legion School Awards and gave the merits required for winning the medals. Rev. Goff, of Harlan, gave a short talk on "Armistice." After selections by the band, the parade formed and marched to the school building where it disbanded.

Owing to the limited amount of time, the Legion delgation did not arrive in St. Joe in time for the services down town at 11 o'clock. However, we feel proud of the way our Auxiliary backed us up, that the show might go on. The school paraded from the gymnasium to the Lutheran Church lawn. Leading the parade, the Concord Township High School Band, followed by Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, the Grades and High School.

After the song "America" the Colors were posted followed by one minute of silence in honor of our soldier dead.

A song by the Grades entitled "How Betsy Made the Flag" was followed by a talk on "Peace" by the Rev. Stevenson of the Lutheran Church. After a reading "In Flanders Fields" by Kathryn Belle Curie, the band played the National Anthem, followed by Taps and dismissal.

In the afternoon the school award committee visited the schools at St. Joe, Spencerville and Newville, where talks were given on the American Legion's School Awards and Americanism program.

The annual Armistice Party was well attended with forty persons being present. After a bounteous supper at 6:30, served cafeteria style, the meeting was presided over by Comrade Reidenbach. A few of the ladies of the Auxiliary gave their impressions of the Armistice of twenty years ago, after which a True or False contest was staged between the Legion and the Auxiliary, and for once, the men had the last word. After a session of group singing, the benediction was given by one of our new Legionnaires, Rev. Goff, of Harlan.

RABBITS ONLY GAME TO BE SOLD LEGALLY

Attention of hunters and others is called to a provision in the state laws which prohibits the sale or purchase of quail, pheasant and Hungarian partridge. The statute does not apply to rabbits.

The regulation concerning the sale of game birds provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person to sell or offer to sale, buy or offer to buy at any into the state, except as hereinafter chicken, Hungarian partridge, pheasant, ruffed grouse, chukar partridge or wild turkey, whether taken in this state or some other state and brought into thi sstate, except as hereinafter provided. The term sale shall include serving the same as a part of a meal by any hotel, restaurant, boardinghouse or eating house keeper, but such restaurant, hotel, boardinghouse or eatinghouse keeper may prepare and serve during the open season to a guest, patron or boarder and his family any of the above mentioned game lawfully taken by such a guest, patron or boarder during the open season provided therefor in this state.

A BIT OF ADVICE

The right way to get rid of ground moles is to make a hole in the ground where they have the ground rooted up and drop a castor oil bean in the run way, then press the ground down about three inches wide. When they root the ground up they find the castor bean and you can not find that ground mole. One castor bean kills one ground mole and they are cheaper than the trap. Try it and see.

HOOSIER TRAPPERS WILL OPEN SEASON, TUESDAY, NOV. 15

OPEN SEASON FOR TAKING FUR-BEARING ANIMALS

Opossum	Nov. 15 to Jan 15
Raccoon	Nov. 15 to Jan. 15
Skunk	Nov. 15 to Jan. 15
Mink	Nov. 15 to Jan. 15
Muskrat	Nov. 15 to Jan. 15
Red Fox	Open until Jan. 15
Grey Fox	No Closed Season
Beaver	NO OPEN SEASON

Indiana's open season for the taking of fur-bearing animals began Tuesday, (Nov. 15) with every indication that the thousands of Hoosier trappers will find an increased supply of opossum, raccoon, skunk, mink, muskrat and fox. The trapping season means a potential income of more than a half million dollars to the men and boys who participate in this activity.

Virgil M. Simmons, commisisoner of the Department of Conservation today reminded trappers that the Indiana law requires every person who traps to have a license. Only exceptions are that resident owners of farm land and tenants of farm land and members of their families living with them, may trap on such land only without a license.

Other regulations make it unlawful to trap on land without permission of the owner; to take or molest any beaver or to buy or sell a beaver hide; to dislodge or attempt to dislodge a raccoon from its den; to set a trap closer than five feet to the opening of any tile drain; to injure or destroy a muskrat house; to smoke, chop or dig fur-bearing animals from dens; and to require all persons engaging in the business or buying fur, to have a license.

Indiana licenses for fishing and hunting are also good for trapping during the calendar year for which they are issued, no special license being required to trap. These licenses expire on Dec. 31 and a 1939 license must be secured by persons trapping on and after Jan. 1, 1939.

Dr. George W. Gillie, Congressman-elect from the Fourth Indiana District, has announced the appointment of Charles A. Baird, political writer for the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel, as his secretary.

Mr. Baird will be in charge of the office staff of the Republican Congressman during his first term in the House of Representatives, which starts January 1, 1939.

Mr. Baird is known to readers of The News, having written a weekly column on the Congressional Campaign for this paper and a dozen other newspapers in the district.

Dr. and Mrs. Gillie will leave next week for a short visit in Washington, D. C., where the new Republican Congressman will confer with leaders of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Baird will leave for the Capitol in mid-December to open quarters for the new district Congressman in the House Office Building.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Auxiliary Unit Number 283 meets on every second and fourth Tuesday night of each month at 7:30 o'clock in the Legion rooms of the K. of P. Hall in St. Joe.

Remember the jell or jam that mother used to make when you were a little child that appealed to you especially? Perhaps you make that same kind of jelly yourself right now. Our world war orphans at Knightstown home would enjoy it as much as you used to, so why not get some ready and bring to meeting next Tuesday night, so they can have it for the coming holidays.

ATTENTION CONSERVATION CLUB MEMBERS

Thursday night, Nov. 17, the Conservation Club and public will meet in the gymnasium to witness pictures to be shown by Milt Wysong, of Syracuse, under the auspices of the Department of Conservation of Indiana.

Some women have a knack of making a fool out of a man and then are smart enough to work him off onto some other woman for keeps.

As any happily married couple in St. Joe will tell you, a shoemaker's success may depend upon his stick to his last, but sticking to the first is a sign of a successful marriage.

The trouble with some citizens who ride hobbies is that they want to take up the whole road with them.

Most men call a spade a spade, until they happen to let it drop on their toes.

Compliments from his friends don't make a man feel any better after he has heard his wife's description of him.

We are all cowards at heart. Most of us would rather buy a useless remedy for the toothache than go and have it pulled out.

A News reader tells us that physicians say hash contains vitamins. We are of the opinion that if anything in the world contains them, then it's hash.

It may be true that a willing horse gets the heaviest load, but he also gets the most oats.

Wouldn't it be nice to be rich enough to take a doctor's advice when he tells us we need a six month's vacation?

Notwithstanding the fact that no man can be expected to lay aside entirely his political preferences and prejudices and become a perfectly neutral investigator, all must admit that the election returns are of little consequence if considered only insofar as they bear upon the welfare of the Republican and Democratic parties. Each, as best, is no more than a convenient grouping of those holding similar views, a flocking together of birds whose feathers are alike. The snowing under of Mr. Taft, and the hardly less chilling and complete burial of Alfred E. Smith, show that upon occasion, most voters either profit by what they consider to be the lessons of the past, or govern their actions by hopes or fears of the future, the party being left to look out for itself.

What effect the recent election will have on the affairs of the country, in the days to come, is a matter of pure conjecture. What the people had in their minds when they went to the polls, can be probed with more certainty, although the point of the exploring instrument perhaps has to be sharpened by some speculation and surmise.

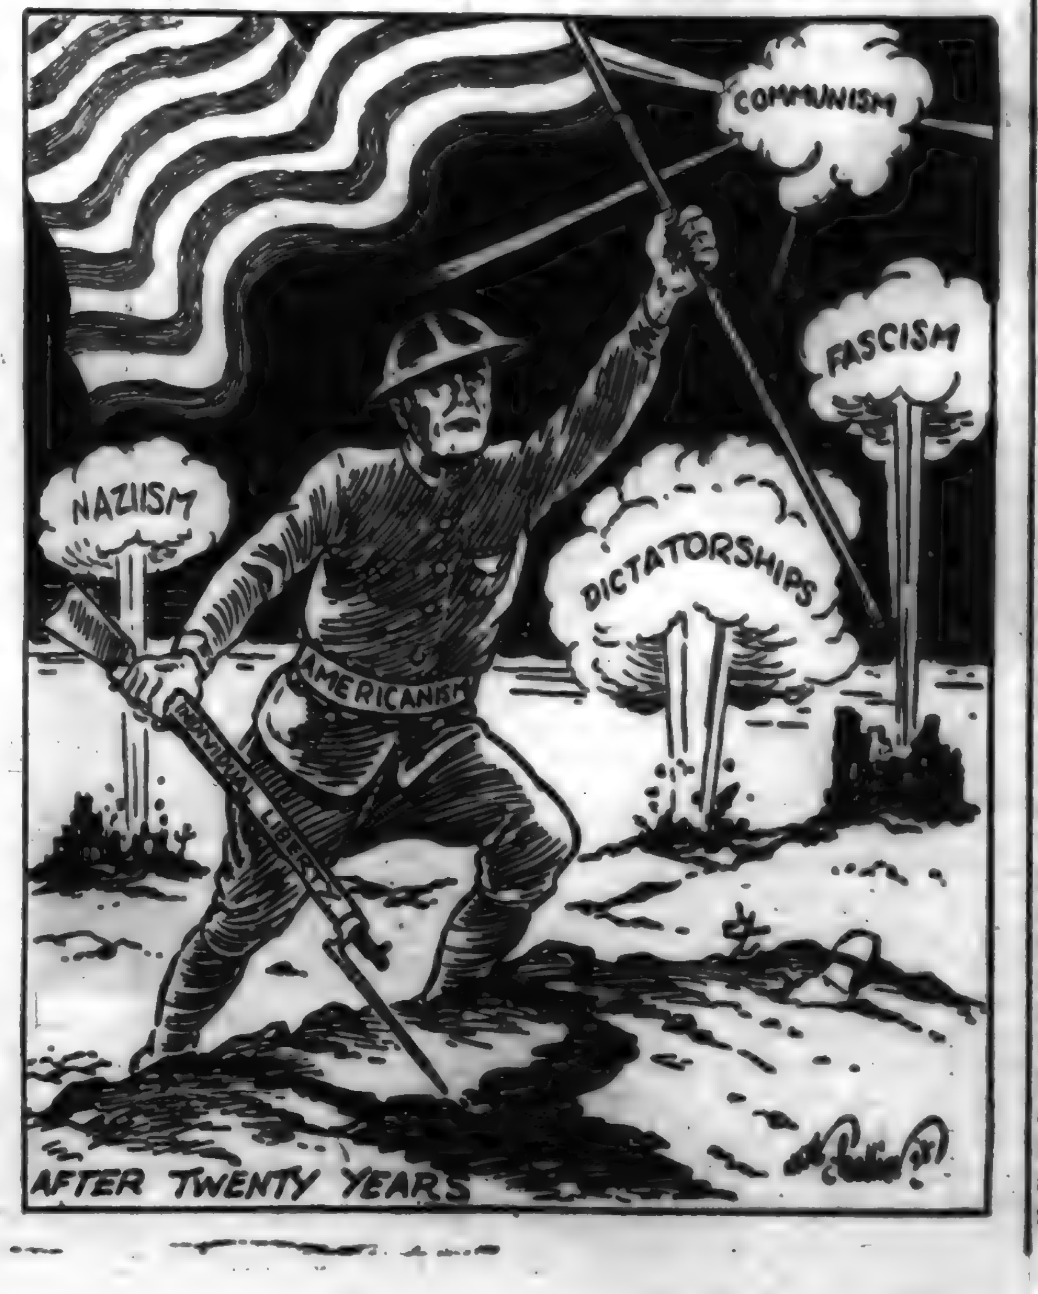
In a moderate and reasonably judicial editorial, the Washington Post asserts in substance that a more conservative governmental policy is demanded, that there is a mistrust of the administrative course of action, and that the electorate has a desire for a more clearly refined White House program.

Whether or not the Post has hit the nail squarely on the head is something that the coming years, alone, can confirm or repudiate. The New Deal may have started to travel a path leading down hill, the declivity at the head of the trail being scarcely more than perceptible. Upon the other hand, the course of things other than true love, never runs smooth. The vision of George Washington was realized in principle, and it is usual to assume that the respect for his ideals, and the veneration now accorded him as the Father of his Country, were as unanimous in the opening years of the Republic as in 1938. A small amount of reading will promote the conclusion that rough and rugged roads have to be traveled on the way to success, quite as surely as on the way to failure. The election returns may be an omen that the New Deal, if not down, is on the way out. They may be nothing more than a manifestation of the impulse that prompts a person to take off his hat now and then and look at it, without having the slightest intention of throwing it away.

Disregarding degree, the personnel of the next Congress will be changed. It will be a new Congress, and already there is talk about what it will do, a matter governed partially by what it is forced by circumstances to do. During 1939, many important pieces of legislation will have lived their allotted span, and must be reenacted, replaced by substitutes, or forgotten.

Among the laws the obituaries of which will be written automatically, is the one authorizing federal loans to states for what may be grouped under the heading of "projects." The list includes measures for the control of oil production, the insuring of loans made in view of flood disasters, the fixing of interest rates on farm loans, the authority of the President to regulate exports, and the purchase and relief distribution of surplus commodities. Even though the incoming law makers tackle nothing new, they will have an inheritance of work that will give them something to think about.

STILL FIGHTING FOR DEMOCRACY



JUNK'EM

Did you come from a Sunday drive last week and make nasty remarks regarding that fellow who drove in front of you in a worn out rattle-trap of a car, who went so slow up an incline you were ready to back down th hill and come on home? His motor sounded weak and unable to make the grade, while you hoped to pass him before the next hill or curve. This has probably been the experience of every driver around St. Joe. Many of us have often wondered why there isn't a law to make him get rid of this antiquated menace to traffic and safe-guard himself as well as others. Of course we are aware that there are many older models of automobiles that with care and consideration have withstood the years in good shape and are as safe as up-to-date cars that have not been checked and gone over for safety's sake. It would be difficult to enact a law to remove certain models of cars from the road but there should be some sort of action to remove the dilapidated affairs that often cause accidents to their owners and other traffic.

TOWN "KICKERS"

There are many boosters of St. Joe who are always satisfied with their town and who let folks know it. But every city, no matter how large it may be, has its allotment of kickers. There is no community that does not need some improvements. Nor is there a community where no controversy exists among its citizenry when attempts are made to do something about the needs of the town. There are always defects in management and public service and there are always those constant fault finders who call attention repeatedly to these defects. As a general rule the biggest home town kicker is usually last to try to do something constructive to remedy the fault. A bit of bustling about to get folks interested in repairing the need, to create sentiment in favor of the improvement, is much more apt to carry results. We will always have the man who thinks the small town should have all the advantages of the large one, who is eternally dissatisfied with things in his home place. The majority of us feel that we in the small town have much that a large place can't offer us.

A REMINDER OF SERVICE

We are far advanced from the days of nursery stock, linament and lightning-rod salesmen, when the average man's possessions consisted of salt pork, a feather bed, six pounds of horseshoe plug and a change of underwear. We have come a long way and for many reasons, one of the main ones for progress and enlightment can be credited to the newspapers of the country. Journalism has marched with time and has its place on the front line of the advance. The fact that the oldest newspaper in the world is the Peking Gazette, first issued in 1340 A. D. and still published, shows that this newspaper business is no new thing. The first American paper was the Boston News-Letter published in 1704 and since that time journalism has advanced with the country, developed with education and through modern mechanical appliances. Telegraph today brings news much quicker than when it was carried by stage coach and sailing vessel. More capital and continued growth in circulation, with increased advertising upon which the paper depends for its greatest source of income, all tend to give the reader his newspaper of today. The printed word through these many years remains most powerful as it shapes the thoughts and actions of millions of people. Journalism has as important a responsibility as any profession and by its conduct you may recognize it as a blessing or a curse. Justice and mercy, be thorough but with a thought for others, to be sincere and truthful are requisites of your paper. The press serves politically as well as socially and must guard against radicalism and extravagances in expression. May it not fail in its purpose to you in St. Joe and every community like you, not abuse its privilege of freedom of the press, but serve well and keep journalism on the high plane it has achieved after these many years.

ANOTHER SPORTS EVENT

Football can have its Saturdays, but corn-husking comes in for its day. Without the rah-rahs of school cheers and songs for Alma Mater, minus the band music and colorful uniforms, the cheerleaders and swinging batons, we received this past week a stirring recital of the national corn-husking contest. The fact that it lacked the frenzied shouts and hoarse voices of a filled stadium did not mean a lack of interest and participation by thousands of folk from near and far. This is the fifteenth annual contest and was enacted before thousands of corn-husking fans. The entrant in what has been termed the nation's most grueling sports event, requires training, strength and technique to play the game. He is not permitted to be a professional but must play the game as an amateur shucker. The time of year is apt to bring unseasonable weather but the corn-husker strips his ears of corn wet or dry field. The husking takes 80 minutes of non-stop work and for those not fortunate enough to view the scene a michrophone is placed within range of the activity where it is possible to hear the ears pound against the wagon bang-boards as the husker works his way down the rows. As you listened to the thump and bang as the ears were thrown into the wagons, the shouts of the people to their favorite husker, you thought that the next best thing to seeing it was to hear it described so vividly. The sports of America may be criticized, and often rightly, for being crooked and yellow, but America can't be all wrong when she enjoys such a clean and wholesome contest as staged by these corn-huskers. "Keep-'em in the air, boys."

UTILIZING COTTON

The cotton surplus has given rise to various suggestions and solutions for the use of cotton in new ways. The Mellon Institute for Industrial Research is one of the agencies studying the case and they have been trying various methods of utilizing the cotton plant. Cellulose is one of the new uses and cellulose is used to make paper, rayon, explosives and so on. This would require the stock, cotton and all parts of the plant. They are trying shoe polish and furniture polish made of the wax that is washed out of the cotton cloth in the bleaching process. The proteins in cottonseed oil seems to have possibilities for the making of plastics, this would mean the use of cotton in the manufacture of fountain pens, panels, vases and picture frames. The report also suggested fancy shingles, floor tiling, insulating material and wall board. Invention found the cotton gin, invention will find new uses for the cotton.

THE OPEN DOOR

The arrival of Fall and cool weather brings another danger besides careless handling of guns and slipping on leaves on wet pavements. There arises the danger of starting the car in a closed garage on a cold morning. Escaping gasoline fumes are mighty hard to detect. You may know all there is to know about the mechanical end of your car but do you know about the elusive death of carbon monoxide? It comes suddenly and is very deadly. Few survive it's fumes. Remember this and keep those garage doors open when you start the car, and keep them open while you have your motor running.

IT IS EXCUSABLE

We are always eager and willing to wave the flag and shout hip-hip-hurray for any American scene displaying our democracy and the red, white and blue. But there have been times in all our lives when the refrain of the Star Spangled Banner has caught us where we weren't in a position to be so patriotic. Our problem has been answered for us by the retired President General of the U. S. Flag Association who answered a woman writing in for information. It is all right not to stand during a rendition of the national anthem if you are:—in bed, eating, telephoning, playing cards or taking a bath. This knowledge will be a relief to us who never knew what would be the action of a true American under situations as stated.

Address, "School Discipline," Carl Stahlman, Supt.
Duet, Frances Chapman and Princess Rectenwall

In his address Supt. Stahlman mentioned various forms of discipline used in schools from the time of the little one room school down to modern times and consolidated schools.

"Some teachers during the present time do not urge their pupils to learn but rather they attempt to create a desire for learning." He illustrated this with the story of the twin boys who were finally made desirous of reading with the aid of one father, one paddle, and one basement. He further explained that "whipping by teachers is right according to law" but in his personal opinion not always justifiable. He further explained the state law regarding punishment by citing the court case which made case history years ago. In this case the judge found that this teacher was entirely within his rights in whipping the child but the punishment was not within reason according to the crime.

During the business meeting a committee was appointed to organize a mother's chorus. It was also decided to buy a director's stand for the school band. The next meeting will be held on Dec. 7th at the Community Hall. The meetings are open to the public and anyone desiring to do so may attend.

The November meeting was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Crothers and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Washler with business conducted by the president, Mrs. B. O. Shook.

At the Dec. 7th program we are pleased to announce that Mr. Forest Gerig, of Auburn, will be with us and entertain us with his motion pictures of Florida and California. APPRECIATION

Deep appreciation to the voters of the Fourth Indiana District was expressed by Dr. George W. Gillie, Congressman-elect, in a simple statement following his election victory over James I. Farley, of Auburn.

"Folks," he said, "I'm almost overcome by the fine tribute you have paid me.

"I can honestly say that this wonderful expression of confidence has made me the happiest man in northeastern Indiana.

"I give you my sincere pledge that I will serve you to the best of my ability in Washington.

"To my friends in the Fourth Congressional District," I say, "Thank you," and to my opponent," I say, "It was a clean fight and I earnestly hope that there are no hard feelings."

"I am especially grateful for the fine Hoosier receptions I received in Adams, Whitley, Wells, DeKalb, Steuben, Noble and LaGrange Counties, where I campaigned for the first time.

"I feel deeply indebted to all of you. Thank you again from the bottom of my heart."

AGED WITNESS FIRST ON MURDER TRIAL CASE

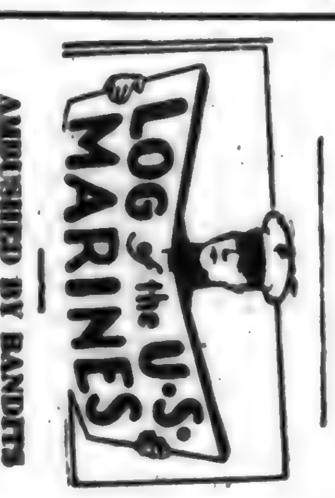
"I knew who it was—it was Otto Himmel," declared Mrs. Lydia Maxwell of two miles west of Corunna, in the DeKalb Circuit Court Monday afternoon when asked by Prosecuting Attorney Wm. H. Husselman who murderously assaulted her and clubbed her housekeeper, Miss Sarah Murphy, to death on the morning of Jan. 25, 1934.

Mrs. Maxwell was testifying in the trial of Himmel for first degree murder. She is ninety-two years of age and her voice shook, but she gave a clear narrative of her acquaintance with Himmel and the happenings on the day of the murder. She spoke repeatedly of Himmels prominent nose. She said that when he entered her home that morning he wore a heavy overcoat and a large hat.

She said he struck the blows with his left hand and that he was a "fairly large" man. In response to questions on cross-examination by Capt. H. C. Springer, appointed by the court as counsel for the defendant, Mrs. Maxwell repeated that she was sure the assailant was Otto Himmel.

While the old lady was testifying, Himmel was sitting at the counsel table a few feet away and he listened intensely. Mrs. Maxwell told the jury that when the murder took place her vision was good and she could read. Now, however, she is nearly blind and cannot identify persons close to her "unless the light is shining just right." She was carried to the third floor of the court house in a chair, but could walk to the witness chair with the aid of one person.

The jury was selected by noon Monday and consists of four women and eight men. Its members are Mrs. Esther Bowman, Frank Baker, Vernon Culbertson, Emil Warren, Harry Watson, Harry Kraemelmeyer, Mrs. Blanche Nugen, U. M. Swaysgood, Clara Beber, Ford Jackson, Mildred Wise and Clark H. Webster. In response to questions by the prosecuting attorney, those accepted said they had no conscientious scruples against the death penalty. Ernest Rohm, of Franklin Township, and Chas. A. Timmerman, of Spencer Township, were excused because they did not qualify in respect to the death penalty.



LOG of the U.S. MARINES

AMBUSHED BY BANDITS

Deep in the tropical jungle of Nicaragua ten U. S. Marines were engaged in the routine task of repairing a telephone line in Decber, 1930, when a sudden hail of leaden death blazed forth from all sides. It was the only time in history that an entire Marine unit was either killed or wounded in a single engagement.

Ten miles from their base at Ocotal the severed telephone wire had been found and a marine climbed the pole to repair it, while others busied themselves on the ground beneath. At the first burst of hostile fire the man on the pole thudded to the ground with a bullet through his head. The remaining nine deployed for battle against an unseen foe.

For more than two hours the unequal battle continued, with the marines surrounded on all sides by the bandits and rarely catching a glimpse of their attackers. Hidden marksmen picked the trapped men off one at a time. Finally, when only half of them remained alive, one marine was directed to crawl through the hostile lines to seek help.

The messenger was wounded before he was fairly started on his mission, and the remaining marines settled down to sell their lives as dearly as they could. Meanwhile, a friendly native had carried the news to Ocotal and a relief party hurried to the rescue, arriving to find only two of the original ten men alive. One was the messenger; the other a private, and both were badly wounded.

The marines had stuck to their guns, asking no quarter, fighting until all were either dead or wounded, while estimates placed the bandit casualties as eleven killed and four wounded. t was the worst disaster that the marines suffered in Nicaragua, but was bravely fought against overwhelming odds without a thought of flight or surrender.

WASHABLE GLOVES

Washable fabric gloves may be kept clean and retain their shape by careful laundering. Use only a mild soap dissolved in warm water. Do not rub soap directly on gloves or gloves on a board. Try soaking soil from gloves by gently squeezing suds through fabric. If spots do not come out, brush soiled area gently with flexible brush. Rinse thoroughly in tepid water, squeeze dry and lay on towel after forming glove into shape.

The one that keeps you in transports of keen suspense, clutches your heart with spasms of alternate excitement, that makes you LIVE through what you are watching on the screen, that whirls you along with tempestuous action through scenes of romance and high adventure into a grand, satisfying climax. That diagnosis comes pretty close to the truth, only so few pictures make altogether good along those lines.

But wait until you've seen Johnny Mack Brown in BETWEEN MEN. Then, you'll acknowledge that the bill has been filled completely.

You'll see Johnny, first as a little boy, then as a youth who fears nothing and can shoot, ride, fight, make love with the best of them in a breath-taking romance of the West.

Safetygrams

BY FRED R. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Fall weather is approaching and with it we can expect fog, rain, and sleet. Streets will be wet and slippery and windshields will be coated with ice. Driving under such conditions makes extra precautions essential.

In these articles I have tried to stress the importance of constant attention when driving—not one second should be given to any other matters while you are driving. Long strips of pavement encourage higher speed, driving becomes more or less monotonous and invites inattention. Just one moment of inattention, especially when weather conditions are not very favorable, may put you out of circulation forever.

Don't let anything distract you! Pay attention to your driving.

Deer hunting season will soon be open. Here are a few things to remember when you go on that hunting trip:

Be careful when you climb under or over fences. Pulling a loaded gun through a fence by taking hold of the barrel is a dangerous stunt.

Never leave a loaded gun leaning against a tree or rock, or lying on the ground or the bottom of a boat.

A loaded gun should not be taken into a house, hunting shack, or car. Many times some other person tries out the "sight," pulls the trigger, and a fatality is the result.

Do not clean up a gun until you have made positive inspection of chamber and barrel. NEVER point a gun at anybody. It's a foolish and senseless action.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1938 NUMBER 47

Economic Highlights...

The most obvious observation to make on the elections is that they marked a notable popular victory for the long-dormant Republicans. And there is no denying that. Experts not connected with either party decided the GOP would gain about 50 seats in the House—they actually gained 81. The same experts thought it extremely unlikely that they would win more than 4 Senate seats—and they took 8.

Still another victory was won, too—and it is an extremely important one. It was won by the conservatives, anti-New Deal wing of the Democratic party. This wing is dominated by the Southern Senators and Representatives, all of whom were returned to office as usual. It includes a number of Eastern, Western and Middlewestern Congressmen, some of whom were on the President's "purge" list—who also again received the stamp of approval of their constituents. From the standpoint of the Administration, it is not unlikely that the victory will prove a great deal harder to swallow than that of the Republicans. Any Administration expects and can stand opposition from the other major party—few Administrations have been able to withstand a strong and growing dissention within their own ranks. Democratic revolt, coupled with Republican resurgence, brought the Wilson Administration to swift collapse. Republican revolt, coupled with Democratic resurgence, was a major factor in bringing on the crash of the Hoover Administration. And now the Roosevelt Administration faces the same thing.

This is best seen in the House.

Next January a coalition of but 48 revolting Democrats with the Republican minority—which can be trusted to vote almost en bloc against what is regarded as unwarranted New Deal experiments—would give the combined force a bare but workable majority.

During certain bitter legislative battles of past sessions, notably the Judicial reorganization and governmental reorganization battles, considerably more Democrats than that voted against White House "must" orders. And now to make matters worse, from the Administration's standpoint, a number of Representatives who could be safely trusted to "vote with the President 100 per cent" were beaten by other Democrats who pledged themselves to accept dictation from no one.

What will come of this? It seems plain that one of two things must result. The President can "veer toward the right," as many of his advisers are now strongly urging, and by adopting a more conservative line, hold his Congressional majority. Or he can go ahead with a more radical program and take a chance on a legislative deadlock such as those which occurred at the end of the Taft, Wilson and Hoover regimes. Such a deadlock can almost paralyze government. Congress can refuse to pass any measure the President proposes. And the President, with the veto weapon at his disposal, can make Congress virtually inoperative. This method reached an extreme at the end of the Wilson second term, when some of the boards and commissions could not do business at all because they were unable to obtain a quorum—Congress having refused to even consider Wilson's appointments to vacancies.

The outlook, according to some commentators, is for the President to bow to the inevitable, and take the conservative line. Time will prove or disprove that.

In the meantime, much talk is going the rounds concerning the effect of the elections on Mr. Roosevelt's third-term ambitions, if any. Some thing that the Republican comeback will kill those ambitions, on the grounds that the President will take them as an indication that he would be heading for almost certain defeat. On the other hand, a school of experts think that the opposite result may follow—that the Democrats may be forced to draft Mr. Roosevelt, on the theory that no other candidate would have a chance of winning.

It seems to be a fact, as many surveys indicate, that an army of voters still like and support Mr. Roosevelt personally, though they oppose most of his policies, and tend to vote for Republicans for other offices.

From a purely political point of view Democratic losses of Governorships are even more important than their losses in Congress. It is from state capitols that the bulk of patronage, life-blood of any party, flows. Few of the Congressman control more than a score or so of jobs—Governors control thousands in the big states.

Major blows to the Administration were the losses of Governorships in Michigan and Pennsylvania. If the Democrats had likewise lost New York, it would have been a staggering blow. But Governor Lehman got through, although by an extremely small margin. Yet this victory was not unmitigated. Mr. Lehman is known to disagree with many New Deal policies—and he openly broke with the President on the Supreme Court "packing" issue.

California was about the only non-Southern state where everything went just as the White House desired. The new senator, Mr. Dewey, describes himself as a "110 per cent New Dealer." The new Governor, who defeated the Republican incumbent, has similar views.

TO EMPLOY EXTRA HOLIDAY SALES CLERKS

Approximately fifty extra employees will be hired during the Christmas shopping rush by merchants in cities served by the Auburn office of the Indiana State Employment Service. Fifteen retailers of Auburn, Waterloo, Kendallville, Ligonier, and Angola, made this information known to members of the Employment Service staff who just completed a survey of holiday employment opportunities in this vicinity.

A majority of the merchants interviewed indicated they would use the facilities of the employment office in recruiting their extra personnel, according to E. Raymond Ellington, in charge of the Auburn office. He said that two employers have discontinued taking job applications and are directing all workers who wish to be considered for employment in their stores to register with the State Employment Service. Some merchants have a regular contingent force from which extra help is drawn whenever needed.

The Employment Service files at this time contain the application cards of nearly 60 persons with qualifications entitling them to favorable consideration for one or more of the variety of occupations found in retail establishments, Mr. Ellington said. However, he anticipates that his files will be depleted rapidly after Thanksgiving.

Mr. Ellington suggested that all persons in this community interested in temporary work before Christmas should call at the Employment office within the next few days. Those already registered should make sure their applications contain a complete record of their retail experience.

Applicants are selected for referral to an employer because of their qualifications to fill the specific job that is open. An applicant's need for work or the length of time his application has been on file has nothing to do with the selection so far as the Employment Service is concerned, Mr. Ellington explained.

NNETEEN OLD AGE AWARDS ARE MADE

The County Welfare Board, at its November meeting Wednesday night, granted nineteen new old age awards. These include three married couples and in seven other cases the awards are to persons whose spouses already are receiving assistance.

Three applications for old age assistance were rejected and one was withdrawn voluntarily. Seven other awards were ordered increased and three were continued without change. Two deaths were reported and one award was cancelled because of change of residence.

One new award to a blind person was recommended, one application for eye treatment was rejected and one increase was recommended in an award to a blind person.

One new children's assistance award was ordered. Of three children's cases reinvestigated, one was increased, one was decreased and the other remains the same. One application for treatment of a child at the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital at Indianapolis was approved.

See those new record books at News office. Splendid assortment for any ordinary need. 47tf.

CITY LIMITS

(7 reels)

Running Time: 70 Minutes

Story and Screen Play by: George Waggner

Director: William Nigt

Cast: Frank Craven, Sally Blane, Ray Walker, Claude Gillingwater and a strong supporting cast.

CITY LIMITS affords an insight into the working of mergers between railroads, the ways of banks in their financing, as well as the benefits afforded the public through the medium of a newspaper that will print the truth in a manner understood by all its readers.

Frank Craven plays the part of a dyspeptic old despot who rules his road with an iron hand, but at the same time is a slave to his doctor and his sister, who insist on loading him with pills and never permit him to have a square meal.

Ray Walker, as a wise-cracking reporter, provides the sense of humor. His newspaper is trying to get the inside story of a merger which Craven has just put over to gain control of a rival road. Walker, masquerades as the doctor's assistant and beards the magnate in his home. The reporter is side-tracked by the railroad head's pretty daughter, Sally Blane, but his subterfuge finally gains him his story although it enmeshes him in a fast-moving action plot that utilizes such means of fast transportation as automobile, motorcycles and railroad trains, before it comes to its smashing finale.

JUDGE COMPLETES 16 YEARS ON BENCH

Judge Wm. P. Endicott Saturday completed sixteen years of service as the presiding officer of the DeKalb Circuit Court and a tabulation shows that during that period the number of actions filed, disposed of or now pending, is 12,554.

Civil cases number 6,200; criminal cases, 1,643; estates, 1,780; and estate trial cases, 2,922. In addition, several hundred guardianships have been disposed of or are now pending. The exact number cannot be determined without considerable effort as they are arranged alphabetically.

JUDGE WM. P. ENDICOTT

In addition to his services as judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, Judge Endicott presided as judge of the Steuben Circuit Court, as a part of the old thirty-fifth judicial circuit, from November 20, 1922 to March 1, 1927. Since the latter date, DeKalb County has been under a separate circuit known as the seventy-fifth judicial circuit. Since March 1, 1927, the Steuben Circuit Court has been presided over by Judge Clyde C. Carlin, Steuben and LaGrange Counties now being consolidated in the thirty-fifth judicial circuit.

Judge Endicott has been elected as judge of the DeKalb Circuit three times and his third six-year term will expire two years hence.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Since we, the people of Indiana, last joined with the world in giving thanks to the Lord for His blessings, Autumn has changed to Winter, to Spring, to Summer and now to the season of the harvest.

Once again we set aside this day for a prayer of Thanksgiving for the blessings He has chosen to bestow upon us.

Throughout the length and breadth of our state, from the sandy shores of Lake Michigan to the Ohio River, we are grateful for the health, the freedom and the security we now enjoy.

Our harvests have been plentiful, our industries have increased, and our general economic well-being has improved during the last twelve months. There is no home, however humble, that has not received some blessing.

In giving thanks to the Lord for the benefits of the past, we gain new inspiration and hope for the days to come.

Now, therefore, I, M. Clifford Townsend, Governor of the State of Indiana, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November 24, as Thanksgiving Day, to be observed as a time for thanksgiving and the renewal and strengthening of family ties and friendships.

(Signed)
M. CLIFFORD TOWNSEND.

MORE FUR BUYERS TO OPERATE THIS YEAR

Indications that trappers will receive a higher return for their catch this year were seen in the increased number of fur-buyers licensed to operate in Indiana.

During recent weeks licenses to buy and sell furs have been issued to approximately forty dealers who did not operate during the previous season. The Indiana law requires that all persons dealing in furs shall be licensed by the Department of Conservation, the license being good for the calendar year. Each dealer is also required to file a report showing the number of hides bought, the name of the seller and the price paid.

Reports on the trapping season show that the quality of the fur taken during the opening days has not been particularly good but trappers predict that the quality will increase with the arrival of colder weather. Opossum in great numbers are being caught by hunters in every community in DeKalb County.

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

Slippery roads, icy windshields, more hours of darkness—these are the hazards motorists must contend with for the next several months.

What have you done to prepare for driving under such adverse weather conditions? Is your windshield in good condition? Are your brakes good?

Regardless of how mechanically perfect your car is, if you do not change your driving habits, the possibility of your having an accident is great. Good brakes won't be of much help on a stretch of icy pavement if you are traveling fast and are required to make a sudden stop. You apply the brakes, but the car merely slides along. Control your speed: approach intersections, stop signs, and traffic signals with caution.

Winter driving requires much more alertness, less speed, and good common sense.

FAREWELL TO NOVEMBER

The very unusual Fall we have enjoyed in almost every section of the country is memorable in many ways. Sections where there has been severe frosts accompanied by heavy snows and icy rains by this time every year, are commenting upon the beautiful days, the balminess of a November breeze. To make readers in St. Joe more aware of the remarkable November, spring flowers have been found along a stream in Maine. The first of this month found cowslips, or marsh marigolds, growing in a field in this same state, while one woman displayed strawberry blossoms found in her field. This is indeed an indication of a warm season. There have been many predictions that there will be mild weather until Christmas, but if not, those who live in zones where noses are usually red during this time of year, are grateful for the loveliest of Autumns.

YOUR PATRIOTIC DUTY

Nothing less than the complete eradication of the scourge of tuberculosis from this country should be the aim of every citizen in giving support to the annual Christmas Seal Sale of the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated groups, President Roosevelt said in endorsing the Association's thirty-second annual campaign which opens on Thanksgiving Day. Such support, says the President, "becomes a patriotic duty."

President Roosevelt said that the work of the tuberculosis associations in teaching people that the disease is preventable and curable and that people can be returned to health and strength is of the highest value.

"With the approach of the holiday season we are again forcibly reminded that the nationwide attack on tuberculosis is a year around campaign, made possible through the proceeds of Christmas Seals," President Roosevelt said. Since 1907 these well known seals, which will go on sale throughout the United States on Thanksgiving Day, have played an important part in stamping out tuberculosis and saving the lives of countless numbers of people stricken with this dread disease.

"The work which the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated organizations are doing in teaching people that tuberculosis is preventable, that it is curable, and that great numbers of tuberculosis patients can be restored to health and strength, is of the highest value. It deserves the support of our citizens everywhere. Such support in a very real sense becomes a patriotic duty.

"The proceeds from the sale of the Christmas Seals will furnish the sinews of war with which to attack this menace on all fronts: through preventive measures, education, free clinics, hospitalization and nursing service. Our goal must be nothing less than the complete eradication of this scourge of tuberculosis from our nation. Through the power of the Christmas Seal everybody can help in attaining that goal. In the true spirit of Christmas let us as a nation give generous support to this campaign to protect the health of every man, woman and child within our borders."

MEMBER OF COUNTY COUNCIL IS NAMED

The new official staff of DeKalb County, with the exception of three holdovers, has become solidly Republican with the selection of Ward Baughman as a member of the county council.

Claude F. Fitch, who was elected county councilman from the third district, was unable to qualify by reason of serving as county treasurer until Jan. 1 and the six qualified new members in special session Saturday afternoon chose Mr. Baughman to fill the vacancy. He qualified at once.

Mr. Baughman resides in Keyser Township just west of Auburn Junction. The council will not meet until next September unless convened in special session.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

OUTDOORS AT NIGHT

Above — taken at twilight. The "campfire" can be an amateur flood bulb on extension cord. At right—silhouette against real campfire, using a time exposure.

PICNICS, campfires, and hayrides are events which offer a wealth of picture opportunities. Some picnics are daytime affairs, but others take place at twilight or after dark —and there are no times more opportune for charming campfire snapshots.

For twilight snaps, wait until the sky is almost dark. Set the camera for a "time" exposure, place it on a firm support, and take a picture that includes the campfire, the group around it, and some sky. With proper choice of time the sky will reproduce deep gray, the campfire warm and brilliant—giving a picture full of the mystery and atmosphere of an ending day.

Campfire shots taken well after nightfall are wonderfully effective. They show the fire, the faces of the group about it—but everything else in rich, mysterious shadow. These can be taken just like the twilight shots, with a short "time" exposure. It is best to have someone sit between the camera and the brightest part of the fire—his silhouette will add interest and keep the fire from appearing too bright.

Modern films are fast, so exposures need not be long. With a good bright fire, try two to five seconds at f.6.3, or ten to thirty seconds with a box camera.

To show added detail in an outdoor night scene, use a flash bulb. It's easy. Have the camera on a firm support, shutter on "time," lens set at f.11. Open the shutter, flash the bulb, close the shutter—that's all there is to it. Flash bulbs can be used in a "synchronizer" that fires the bulb and trips the camera shutter at the same time—or they can be used in inexpensive holders that resemble a pocket flashlight.

Campfire effects can be obtained with flash bulbs, without a campfire. Set up the camera for a snapshot of your group, and flash the bulb from the ground, below or slightly behind the camera. The low angle of lighting produces the campfire effect. Amateur flood bulbs can be used on an extension cord in the same way.

Take the camera along on your next evening picnic or other outing. You'll come home with snapshots that are distinctive and different!

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1938 NUMBER 18

CHANGES IN FISH AND GAME LAWS EXPECTED IN INDIANA

Numerous changes in the statutes protecting fish and game will be embodied in measures to be introduced at the coming session of the legislature by the state conservation committee.

One that is of considerable current interest is a suggested bill to reduce the daily bag limit on rabbits to five and the possession limit to ten. After all, lugging five big fat rabbits around all forenoon is something of a job.

Another would add the black squirrel to the list of protected animals. Ever see a black squirrel?

One measure under consideration would provide for the yearly issuance of free hunting, fishing and trapping permits to war veterans. The present law provides for issuance of permits that are good as long as the printing and writing thereon are legible. Game wardens report that some of the veteran permits have not kept pace with the march of time—that the permittees have developed gray hair and wrinkles, whereas the descriptions on the permits treat of younger persons.

The department of conservation would be authorized, under another proposed measure, to declare an open season on female pheasants in the event they become abundant enough for shooting.

Other approved measures call for correction of language in the law governing the taking of minnows for bait, for inclusion of the fitch in the statute controlling the ownership of ferrets, for extension of the non-resident fishing licenses from ten days to fourteen, for a two-day open season on Chukar partridges and amendment of the motor boat law to place enforcement under the state police.

The conservation committee, which met last month to pass on suggested legislation, was not impressed particularly with measures to close the fishing season from January 1 to June 15 each year, to create a fifty-cent wife's fishing license, to open up commercial fishing in the Wabash River from Lafayette to Delphi and to change the fur buyers' law.

A proposal to limit each fisherman to two poles was voted down promptly.

CULTURE CLUB OBSERVES THANKSGIVING

The Culture Club met on a Thanksgiving capacity on their regular meeting schedule at the home of Mrs. Mayola Kinsey on last Wednesday evening at the hour of six. At the hour of six-thirty, Mrs. Neva Hursh gave the devotional, followed by a minute of silent devotion, which was then followed by a buffet lunch. Earl William Kinsey started the entertainment for the evening by a piano solo. The entertainment committee introduced a white elephant exchange, which furnished merriment for the evening.

The club, having voted to sponsor the junior organization of the Girl Scouts known as the Brownies, discussed plans for this new work. The club sees in this sponsorship, a golden opportunity to carry its cultural activities into the club life of the community. This new field, they believe, is to be among the most pleasant of all their literary activities.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Doris Yeiser. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Borthwick, at 1:30. Singing was led by Mrs. Beulah Coburn and the Home Bureau creed read in unison. The 1939 membership committee was appointed during the business session which is composed of Mrs. Arline Koch, Mrs. Vada Wyatt, Mrs. Mary Krise, Mrs. Maude Jenkins and Mrs. Huldah Reasoner. This committee will also work out a plan for a larger percentage of attendance of the membership of the club throughout next year. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Roll call was responded to by sixteen members, while only a few responded with "Gifts You can Make," they were demonstrated and considered well worth while.

This being Armistice month a reading "Hate War, My Son" was given by Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley, this number was well given and enjoyed by all. In the absence of Mrs. Harriett Johnson, Mrs. Helen Schondelmayer assisted Mrs. Laura Washler in the singing of a duet "Good Old Pumpkin Pie." This number was followed by a reading "Deep Dish Pumpkin Pie" by Mrs. Clara Foltz. The ladies who gave these numbers have the thanks of the club for the excellency of the numbers and the pleasing presentation thereof.

Mrs. Katie Storer conducted a cranberry contest which was won by the group represented by Mrs. Maude Jenkins and Mrs. Laura Washler, the winning group especially enjoyed this contest. The meeting closed with a round table discussion on Thanksgiving table decorations, and Christmas menus led by Mrs. Arline Koch. Many good suggestions and ideas were exchanged. The Christmas party will be on Dec. 9 at the home of Mrs. Millie Shull. The usual Christmas exchange will be a feature of the program.

Members will please keep this date in mind as it is one week earlier than the usual meeting date. Mrs. Yeiser, assisted by her committee composed of Katie Storer, Rosse Watt and Helen Ulm, served a delicious luncheon of salad, cake and coffee.

FORMER ST. JOE BOY WEDS THANKSGIVING DAY

Miss Marian Newman of 1115 So. Cowen St., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Newman, of Willard, O., became the bride of Olen Waltz, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Waltz, of 401 So. Randolph St., Garrett, in a ceremony performed at the United Brethren parsonage in Decatur, Ind., on the morning of Thanksgiving Day. The couple was unattended.

The bride was attired in a dress of blue velvet with accessories of white. Following the wedding service the happy couple went to the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Zimmerman at Bluffton, where a wedding breakfast was served. They returned to Garrett Friday and will make their home with the groom's parents. Mr. Waltz is employed by the DeKalb County Farm Bureau.

The bride's family were formerly residents of Garrett and after they moved to Willard she made her home with an uncle, Charles Newman, and family. Mrs. Arline Rhoades, of Spencerville is a grandmother of Mrs. Waltz.

SISTER-IN-LAW OF MRS. WM. RANDALL KILLED

"As the result of an automobile collision on an icy pavement on U. S. Highway 112 near Ypsilanti, Mich., Mrs. Jennie Pinchon, age 70, wife of H. H. Pinchon, a Fremont, Ind., lumber mill owner, was killed Thursday. Pinchon escaped with minor chest injuries and lacerations. Five Detroit persons were seriously injured in the crash."

Imagine the shock to Mrs. Wm. Randall when she read the above notice in her paper Saturday, Mr. Pinchon being her brother, and had visited in her home on the Sunday previous to this. Mrs. Randall had gone to Chicago on Tuesday, with her brother from Milwaukee, to visit her son, Harry and family. Only recently had Harry moved in Chicago, and none of the relatives knew his address, hence they were unable to get in touch with Mrs. Randall. She arrived home Saturday noon on the B. & O., and Mrs. Pinchon was buried in the afternoon.

Mr. Pincohn was still in the hospital the first of the week.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION,
403 OLD TRAILS BLDG.,
INDIANAPOLIS.

Readers of the St. Joe News are invited by the State Highway Commission to co-operate in a state-wide survey of public opinion to determine future safety regulations. Each of the above blanks should be filled in or checked and the questionnaire returned to the Bureau of Traffic, State Highway Commission, 403 Old Trails Building, Indianapolis.

The survey is being conducted in an attempt to get the ideas of motorists in cities, towns and rural areas on the seven questions propounded. The survey was inaugurated at the Indianapolis Auto Show and is being extended to include all parts of the state, since a majority of the replies received at the automobile show came from persons in the metropolitan area.

While all answers have not been tabulated, reports from the first thousand questionnaires indicated that the persons filling out the blanks favored pedestrian obedience of stop-and-go signals; favored compulsory inspection of motor vehicles; favored a driver testing clinic and were almost evenly divided on the question of a speed limit. A majority of those in favor of establishing a speed limit, fixed 50 to 60 miles an hour as a maximum.

The survey is to be completed Dec. 10 and all questionnaires should be mailed on or before that date to be included in the tabulation being prepared by the Bureau of Traffic.

TRAPPERS WELCOME LOWER TEMPERATURE

The colder weather of the past few days has been welcomed by Hoosier trappers for it means an improved quality of fur and better prices for their catch. Fur taken during the early part of the trapping season was not of particularly good quality and did not bring especially good prices.

Reports from trappers, since the season opened on Nov. 15, indicate that the fur-bearing animals are plentiful in most sections of the state. Muskrat, opossum and raccoon make up the major part of the annual catch by Hoosier trappers. The supply of raccoon has been increased materially during recent years by the artificial propagation of these animals by the Division of Fish and Game and their liberation in suitable areas. During the past year fourteen conservation clubs assisted in this program while others established dens under the sponsorship of the Department of Conservation.

NEW AUTO LICENSE PLATES ON SALE DECEMBER 12

Distribution of Indiana's 1939 blue and yellow auto license plates will begin Monday, Dec. 12, Frank Finney, auto license commissioner, announced today.

The application blanks for license plates and drivers' licenses will be mailed a week before, Dec. 5, Mr. Finney said. Since Nov. 1, the auto license division has been printing the forms, which are sent to each motor car owner.

The system of mailing application blanks was inaugurated by Mr. Finney a few years ago, and greatly facilitates the purchasing of plates. Long waiting lines at the branch office have been eliminated, since owners may now fill out the blanks before going to the license branches.

The auto license tags are manufactured at the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City and delivered by truck to the 156 branches, including 20 temporary ones set up in Marion County, where a tenth of all licenses are issued. The blue letters on the deep yellow background correspond to the colors of Notre Dame University. The 1938 plates honored Indiana University, and the 1937, Purdue.

The color scheme for the 1940 plates has not been decided upon. Mr. Finney will contact auto license departments of neighboring states to avoid selecting similar color combinations for Indiana. Work on the 1940 plates will begin at the prinson in December.

Mr. Finney pointed out that the bar appearing over part of the word Indiana on some plates signifies that the plate is a duplicate, issued to replace one lost or stolen. It is done to aid police.

License branch managers will go to Indianapolis to attend one of four meetings, arranged for instruction in procedure in issuing licenses. The first meeting was Nov. 28, and the others will follow on successive days, each beginning at 1:30.

Mr. Finney has received word that plate colors for neighboring states for 1939 will be: Illinois, yellow on black; Kentucky, white on green; Michigan, black on buff, and Ohio, blue on white.

POOR GRANDPA!

It may be that your Grandad never saw a movie, an aeroplane, or listened to a radio, or owned a modern automobile. But there is one thing on Grandad's side, he never had to wait in a barber shop until a girl got her neck shaved, he probably never went swimming with a lady, he didn't smoke mentholated cigarettes, have his fingernails manicured or his toe-nails doctored. We doubt if he drank nearbeer and he didn't divorce Grandma; he undoubtedly did not shoot a filling-station bandit, didn't sleep in broadcloth pajamas and was satisfied with a heated game of checkers as an active sport. But somehow, Grandad lived to a ripe old age and never knew what he was missing. He never got behind with his work on account of golf and he was always up to scratch when it came to paying his bills. And there are a good many of the offsprings of Grandad who could profit by his example.

NOT THE SIZE

Maybe it is due to the many movies we have seen of vast hills, the estates, the castles of the English gentry but we have been of the opinion that England was a land of mighty palaces and huge beamed ceilings. But when we learned that their last year demand for Christmas trees dwelt on those three to five feet high, our sense of proportion was upset. We couldn't figure a three foot cedar in some of those rooms we have seen on the movie screen! Seems that the trees of large size that were formerly in demand were sold last year to hotels.

But this buying of smaller trees does not mean a dwindling of the "Christmas Spirit." Voices raised in carol-singing sound the note that what difference does the size of a tree make? Many St. Joe folk prefer the simple holly wreath tied with a large red bow, while others would rather decorate a mantle with branches of pine sprinkled with artificial snow. Whatever you use, or whether you use no holly or pine, as long as your spirit is wholehearted and seasonal—the size of the tree doesn't matter.

AUTO REASONING

A judge has ordered a young PWA worker "either to sell or give away" his automobile. This was due to the fact that the man's wife testified that her husband spent most of his $12 weekly wage on the car. We can believe this as anyone who owns a car realizes the upkeep is a major part of the family expense. Yet there is the side of the WPA worker too, for in many cases a car is necessary in securing and holding a job. It has happened many times that unemployment relief has been refused on the grounds that persons applying owned an automobile. There have been many tales of cases where families have called for relief checks and grocery supplies, in their cars. One story goes about the woman, living in the city, who called a taxi from relief headquarters as her car battery was run down. Most anyone can relate stories of cases where relief was undeserved. But the thousands of worthy cases suffer due to these fewer outstanding instances of selfishness.

It would be hard to draw the line as to who should own a car and who can afford a car. There are many families where incomes are far above relief checks and WPA salaries where wives have had to go without Fall millinery and husbands without new suits, because the auto needed new tires, valves ground and a new brake lining.

HERE'S A GIFT

It might be just what you are looking for and perhaps this suggestion from us will help you in figuring one worth-while gift for a worth-while fellow. Almost anyone in St. Joe is open to hints at this time of year. Here is ours. In order to give comfort and happiness all the year round your gift must be a lasting one, so why not send that relative or friend who has moved to a distant section, your home-town paper for the year of 1939? It means a present each week for 52 of them and would cost little in comparison to his appreciation for your thoughtfulness. What is nicer than a letter from home—your home-town newspaper. We will gladly drop a note to tell of the gift and who is sending it, with our personal good wishes for the Christmas-tide. Think it over!

HISTORY REPEATS

The many Bible students of St. Joe will tell you the story of how Joshua trumpeted on a ram's horn and fell the walls of Jericho. This took place in 1450 B. C. when the armies of Israel crossed the river Jordan and invaded this city inhabited by an idolatrous peopel called the Canaanites. After forty years of wandering the Israelites made a miraculous achievement in taking Jericho, a stronghold, and the first possession in the Promised Land.

On Novembr 13, 1938, Jericho again fell but under British army hands this time, after being occupied for two months by Arab rebels. It has been too long for us to calculate the years, but Jericho again falls. Not to the sound of a ram's horn but with the rumble of British army tanks, artillery and trucks. The population slept as the Britishers took them by surprise. It is indeed a far call from the day of Joshua, not only in years but in army manoeuvres and war equipment. Yet again the historic Jericho falls.

WHY GUNS?

A woman told us she had read, in a magazine for parents, the sound advice of watchful and careful buying in regard to toys for children's Christmas gifts. The move to forward instructive toys rather than destructive ones goes on each year by various groups interested in the moral welfare of the nation's youth. And each year the counters and windows display war toys, guns—big guns and little guns—but guns! You have seen children of sensible parents engaged in a battle of gangster. Wise heads have already warned us in St. Joe and every other American community of the dangerous results of playing at crime. In New York state a Grand Jury advocated a law prohibiting the manufacture of toy pistols. This body also deals with the parents who permit their children to flourish guns. This latter has not the meaning without the success of the former idea. With all the modern games on the market today, the wood-burning sets, carpenter outfits, printing sets, chemistry outfits, erection sets, modeling clays, puzzles, books, and on and on—why guns?

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY ANNOUNCES RESIDENTIAL RATE REDUCTION

Domestic electric customers of the Indiana & Michigan Electric Company will benefit after New Year's Day by a substantial reduction in rate, according to an announcement made today by Mr. Thos. F. English Vice President and General Manager of the Company.

The tariff which contains the reduction effective January 1, 1939, has been filed with the Public Service Commissions of the States of Indiana and Michigan. It also provides for two additional reductions which take place at six-month intervals. Within twelve months from the original filing, household customers of the company will enjoy a rate which starts at five cents a kilowatt-hour and breaks rapidly to extremely low levels.

With the new rate fully effective in the final stage, the savings to customers below the present rate will amount to $282,192 a year.

The immediate reduction which becomes effective with bills rendered on and after January 1, 1939, will result in a cut in cost to six cents a kilowatt-hour for the first block of 30 kilowatt-hours. On July 1, 1939, the first block will again be reduced to five and one-half cents a kilowatt-hour and, finally, on January 1, 1940, the final reduction will be made, when domestic customers of the company will receive monthly service under the following tariff rate:

First 30 kilowatt-hours 5 cents per kilowatt-hour.

Next 30 kilowatt-hours 4½ cents per kilowatt-hour.

Next 240 kilowatt-hours 2½ cents per kilowatt-hour.

Over 300 kilowatt-hours 1½ cents per kilowatt-hour.

An additional clause in the tariff provides for the continuation of the company's water heating service plan.

Under this plan the customer who has installed a standard water heater of specific capacity is permitted the monthly use of a fixed block of energy above 200 kilowatt-hours, sufficient for normal household use, at an extremely low rate.

In connection with the announcement of the rate reduction, Mr. Thos. F. English said: "On November 1, 1938 your electric company reduced the rate to its commercial service customers to a maximum of five cents a kilowatt-hour. The new commercial tariff is estimated to effect annual savings to this class of customers of approximately $97,000. Now we are announcing a progressive reduction to household customers through an immediate cut to six cents a kilowatt-hour for the first block and final reduction to five cents within a year.

"During the year 1938 the Indiana & Michigan Eelctric Company filed schedules for various classes of service reducing the cost of electric energy $131,295 per annum; with the filing of the new domestic service tariff, an additional savings of $282,192 is offered to our residential customers, making a total savings of $413,487 per annum.

"This rate reduction is a continuation of our policy of reducing rates wherever economies in operation and more extensive use of the service by our customers make this possible.

"In the past ten years, twenty-two reductions have been made resulting in substantial savings to all cutsomers served by the Company. More and more the people in the territory we serve have realized that the completely electrified home not only provides convenient, care-free living but it is sound economy to buy electricity in quantity and thereby to secure what is equivalent to a 'wholesale' rate. Under these new rates the price of electricity to our domestic customers drops to two and one-half cents after 60 kilowatt-hours' monthly use. No home is too small to enjoy the many electric services made possible by this low rate."

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS SEAL DRIVE STARTS

A total of 3,000 letters containing Christmas seals has been mailed from the DeKalb County Tuberculosis Association office in the Auburn city hall, according to a statement made last Wednesday by Mrs. Mabel Browand, executive secretary. The annual seal sale opened Friday, November 25, the day following Thanksgiving. In addition to the 3,000 mailed from the county office, about 350 are being sent from the Garrett headquarters. Each letter contains a minimum of one dollar's worth of seals.

The entire scope of the tuberculosis association's work is carried on with the proceeds of the annual seal sale and from the sales of the Health Bonds which are priced anywhere from $5 to $100.

Of the money taken in by the association, seventy-seven cents of each dollar remains in DeKalb County. It is used to provide X-rays, for tuberculin tests, and for examinations for persons unable to pay for their own, and to defray office expenses in the county headquarters. Mrs. Browand states that often a doctor cannot complete his diagnosis of a case without X-rays and these are often provided by the association.

Rev. H. F. Craven, of Auburn, is the organization's president, with the following as assisting officers: Herbert C. Willis, of Waterloo, honorary president; H. M. Messenger, of Auburn, C. B. Hamilton, of Garrett, and Dr. Harry Covell, of Auburn, vice presidents; Miss Aileen Willennar, of Auburn, secretary; Mrs. E. W. Atkinson, of Auburn, treasurer, and Mrs. Browand, executive secretary.

The board of directors is composed of T. H. Bookmiller, of Waterloo, Calvin Beard, of Butler, Merritt Sechler, of St. Joe, William Patterson, of Corunna, Arthur Gallatin, of Garrett, and Fred Knott, of Auburn.

Township and city chairmen are as follows: Miss Cecile Hudgel, Auburn schools chairman; Butler, Miss Kathleen Haviland; Garrett, Mrs. Margaret Blair; Waterloo, Mrs. Eva Hamilton; Ashley and Smithfield, Township, Mrs. Vern Sparks; Corunna and Richland Township, Mrs. Angilla Mason; St. Joe and Concord Township, Mrs. Fred B. The Bible can be man's best possession as it may be his worst enemy. It is here that he learns of God's will for him. To know and do God's will is eternal life; to know God's will and do it not, is to condemn oneself to eternal torment.

MORTUARY

COBURN

Wilmot P. Coburn was born near Coburn's Corners, June 6, 1857, and died in the same vicinity November 23, 1938, at the age of 81 years, 5 months and 17 days. His father was John F. Coburn, one of the original group that formed the Christian Church at Coburn's Corners, and his mother was Betsey Anna (Wilmot) Coburn.

Mr. Coburn was married to Sarah L. Hildebrand, who died March 17, 1931. To this union were born four sons and two daughters: Floyd J. Coburn, Coburntown; Ralph C., deceased in infancy; Kenneth D., living with his father; Rev. Walter H., North Liberty, Indiana; Mrs. Mae Willard, Marshalltown, Iowa; Mrs. Delphia Shaffer, deceased. There are also thirteen grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mr. Coburn lived continuously in the vicinity of his birth. He became a Christian early in life, in a meeting which was conducted by his own father. He possessed a simple, unquestioning faith which was not disturbed by trivial matters. To him the church was essential to the well-being of the present world, and the only hope for the future. He gave himself to its service fully. Doubtless he knew the local church more completely than any of its living members, and with his passing much of its past work will become obscure to those who remain.

He lived on a high moral level through his entire life. He was a good father, a good citizen, and a good neighbor. He answered to his family and community duties as truly as the steel responds to the magnet. And now that he is gone the place that he occupied so quietly looms large before us.

His funeral was from the Coburn's Corners Church, Friday, at one-thirty o'clock, conducted by J. N. Scholes, assisted by J. O. Rose, and his burial was in Alton Cemetery.

AUTO LICENSE APPLICATIONS BEING RECEIVED

Applications for 1939 motor vehicle license plates are now being mailed from Indianapolis to every motorist in Indiana. Two application forms for drivers' licenses are to be included with each application for plates.

In order to procure plates, auto owners must present poll tax receipts or other evidence that poll tax for 1937, payable in 1938, has been paid. No truck weight tax tags will be issued in 1939, pending outcome of an appeal testing constitutionality of the weight tax law.

As in the past, applications can be made at News office and plates will be obtainable in a few days, thus saving time and trouble of waiting in line for service at branch office.

Safetygrams
BY
FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Many times in this column I have pleaded for sane and sensible enforcement of traffic laws. We must have officers on our highways and streets to properly enforce the regulations pertaining to driving. More, we must have judges in our courts who can appreciate the danger involved when people become reckless in their driving habits.

Recently, in my own country, two cases of drunken driving were dismissed by the court. This is not only discouraging, but it is a deplorable condition and one that should not exist. When the evidence clearly points to the fact that drivers were picked up because of drunken, reckless driving and that the officers were unbiased in their opinion, the court should enforce the laws on the statute books.

It is the duty of every citizen to protest lenient decisions on the enforcement problem. Leniency only encourages the man who has no respect for the rights of others and who, on the highway, is a menace to the safety of ourselves and our children.

Please, Mr. Citizen, help enforce the traffic laws.

Economic Highlights...

If you want to spoil a pleasant day for a politician, just whisper the word "pension" to him. It's an odds-on bet that he will be visited with a terrific headache. For the old-age assistance problem is rapidly reaching the stature of our Number 1 domestic issue. As an AP writer, John Hightower puts it, "Voices to feeble to carry across the family parlor may echo in stentorian tones throughout the halls of Congress this winter." The next Congress may do little or nothing about it. But, unless a miracle occurs, some not far distant Congress is going to be forced to tackle the problem and get down to cases.

The issue is not a political one, in any partisan sense. The idea that came into the mind of Dr. Townsend when he looked out of his window a few years ago and saw a pathetic old woman searching in a garbage can for food, has reached gigantic proportions—and has come to bedevil and worry Republicans as well as Democrats. It is especially embarrassing to the Democrats now, because they are in power. A shift in party power would put it up to the Republicans.

The pension leaders are definitely dissatisfied with the Administration's enacted social security legislation. They feel that it offers the indigent old a bone, instead of a decent meal. They are convinced that the government should and could substantially increase the amount of pensions. They think that the Federal government should take the lead, and that then the states will follow and agree to do their part of the job.

From the standpoint of our lawmakers, the whole thing is a nightmare. They feel that the country could not stand increases in benefits to anywhere near current demands. They can produce well-known economists by the bushel to testify that such ideas for financing pensions as Dr. Townsend's "velocity dollar" are unworkable and fantastic. But this does them no good when they are confronted with the fact that the pension-advocates represent and command millions of votes. And that is why there has been so much political pussy-footing on the subject of pensions by candidates for office. Almost all job-seekers endorse, in the vaguest terms they can get away with, the principle of adequate and even lavish aid for the aged needy. Most of them, once they've successfully convinced the voters of their worth, try to get the whole topic as much out of the linelight as possible.

This does not necessarily mean such men are insincere. Some of them strongly feel that benefits must be increased, yet do nothing about it—simply because they haven't got the answers to the tremendous questions, principally financial, that arise. They want to more—but they can't see a clear path ahead.

Still another weakness of the pension movement is found in internal bickering. The Townsend Plan organization, for instance, is split into a dozen factions. Some of the early leaders have deserted the Doctor, and are leading opposed blocs of their own. Furthermore, the fact that there is competition in the field—such as the California thirty-dollars-every-Thursday proposal (which was beaten last election, though the movement's gubernatorial and senatorial candidates were elected) makes a united front impossible.

President Roosevelt has definitely turned thumbs down on the more extreme proposals, calling them "short cuts to Utopia" and referring to their sponsors as "the lunatic fringe." It is known that he has introduced his Congressional lieutenants to do anything they can to keep the issue on the sidelines, as he believes that it imperils the success of his own more moderate program. But it begins to look as if matters are approaching something of a crisis, where no one can long keep the pot from boiling over. And when that happens, you'll see fireworks such as you've rarely seen before.

The resignation of Attorney-General Cummings did not come as a surprise. It marks the start, in the opinion of a number of Washington experts, of what is likely to be a major Cabinet shake-up. Some of the members want to return to private life, largely for economic reasons. Others, it is said, have incurred presidential displeasure.

It has long been said that Jim Farley planned to leave the Cabinet, and was only restrained because party leaders pled with him to keep his job long enough to handle the elections. It is possible he will now resign shortly.

Newsweek also names Secretaries Swanson, Perkins, Roper and Woodring as being among those who may leave Washington, of their own volition or otherwise.

In the meantime, it is the accepted opinion that Solicitor General Jackson will take Mr. Cummings' place.

It is taken for granted in most informed quarters that Harry Hopkins will be tendered a Cabinet post before long—and that there will be a white-hot battle in the Senate when his name comes up for confirmation.

"THE GREAT WALTZ"

ST. JOE YOUNG LADY WEDS EASTERN YOUNG MAN

Miss Ersa Reidenbach, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, of St. Joe, was married to Mr. Curtis W. Roney, 23, of Ft. Wayne, Saturday, by Rev. Floyd Garrison, pastor of the Auburn First M. E. Church.

The bride was a graduate of St. Joe High School in 1937, and since that time has been employed at secretarial work in Ft. Wayne, and for the past three months, for the Anthony Wayne Oil Co., and the groom is employed as salesman for the Remington Arm Co.

After spending a short time in the bride's home here Saturday nigth, they left on their six weeks vacation and honeymoon trip East, visiting the grooms parents at North East, Maryland, and will also visit other points of interest.

Upon their return to Ft. Wayne, they will take up housekeeping.

The announcement came as a surprise to the bride's large list of St. Joe friends, but they all join The News in extending congratulations.

"SOUND YOUR HORN"

"Souny Your Horn" is the three act comedy to be presented by the Junior Class of St. Joe High School at 8:00 P. M., December 16, 1938.

The action takes place in A Hot-Dog Stand, which is being run by Christine Eliot, an attractive college graduate. Etta Lamb, an ordinary, carefree young waitress and Homer Bird, dirver of a delivery truck, very much in love with Etta, provide much of the comedy throughout the play.

Mrs. VanDyke, a strong, overbearing, self-willed woman, about sixty years old, who owns the property and insists on having the Hot Dog Stand removed, is very irate to find that Christine is a very good buisness woman, who has a non-breakable lease for the ground, and is making money from the Stand.

Dione and Theodore Webster are the orphaned niece and nephew of Mrs. VanDyke, who tries to do all their thinking, planning and acting for them. Theodore or Ted, as everyone calls him, has decided to strike out for himself as he is quite tired of being dictated to by his Aunt and finally is hired as the dispenser in the Hot Dog Stand and falls in love with Christine.

Mr. Angus is the successful lawyer who tries to carry out Mrs. VanDyke's wishes in all legal matters and becomes very disgusted with her ideas of precedure.

Mr. Beasley is the man who has been looking after Mrs. VanDyke's property and is the one responsible for the lease over which the trouble is brewing.

Upon realizing Christine's ability, Mrs. VanDyke changes her tactics and becomes more tractable and sides with her against the lawyer.

Phyllis and Drusilla are two young girls who can never make up their mind as to what they should order.

The play ends with Etta Lamb deciding it makes no difference that her name will be changed, as she will be called Mrs. Bird, rather than Etta Lamb, and Christine and Ted make up their minds to close the stand for the evening to walk and talk in the moonlight. 48t2.

He is now serving in the office, but the term expires Dec. 31. Frank H. Langley was elected Justice of the Peace Nov. 8, but the county board was advised by County Attorney Edgar W. Atkinson that the township is entitled to two justices under the law and that the board possessed authority to appoint Mr. Baxter.

Victor Dermott has been having strawberries up until this week. He brought The News a nice one Wednesday just beginning to ripen.

NEW DEKALB COUNTY AGENT STARTED WORK ON THURSDAY

DeKalb's new agricultural agent, C. E. Baker, Thursday took over his new duties, replacing T. E. Myers, who resigned to accept a position with the Farm Security Administration at Vincennes. County Agent Baker comes to this county backed by an exceptionally fine record.

The new official was born in 1905 near Robinson, Ill., and was graduated from the Hudsonville, Ill., high school. He then attended the University of Illinois, majoring in agriculture, and was graduated with the class of 1927. In 1928 he was given a master's degree from the same institution and three years later a doctor's degree. Mr. Baker majored in horticulture, with minors in soils and plant physiology. While at the univeristy, he was a member of Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity.

While an undergraduate, Mr. Baker was employed for two summers as a European corn borer scout in western Ohio. After receiving his doctor's degree, he was employed as a manager of a commercial orchard in western Illinois, and for some time by the Campbell Soup Company. Mr. Baker comes to DeKalb County directly from Lake County, where he was assistant county agent for the past three years.

The Bakers are the parents of two small daughters, Ellen, 7, and Jane, 4. Mr. Baker was a member of the Crown Point Rotary Club.

HERE'S A GIFT

It might be just what you are looking for and perhaps this suggestion from us will help you in figuring one worth-while gift for a worth-while fellow. Almost anyone in St. Joe is open to hints at this time of year. Here is ours. In order to give comfort and happiness all the year round your gift must be a lasting one, so why not send that relative or friend who has moved to a distant section, your home-town paper for the year of 1939? It means a present each week for 52 of them and would cost little in comparison to his appreciation for your thoughtfulness. What is nicer than a letter from home—your home-town newspaper. We will gladly drop a note to tell of the gift and who is sending it, with our personal good wishes for the Christmas-tide. Think it over!

A SUGGESTION:

It isn't too early to talk of things regarding the Yuletide, for along about this month various agencies, mostly children, let you know the number of shopping days left! We are not trying to tell any man or woman their business or to suggest how they spend their money, but if we know of a way they can add to their own happiness and state of mind by showing them when to spend, we are not going to pass up the opportunity. In this case we want to suggest that before you are tempted to answer mail-order ads that offer something attractive for Christmas, before you drive to a nearby city to buy gifts, first visit your home merchants and see what they have to offer you and if you can't get it in stock, let them order it for you. You can usually find what you want in your own stores and you are doing your duty as a citizen and fulfilling an obligation to your neighbor. If there is a better way of making your Christmas happier than buying at home and giving the local merchants the patronage and respect due them—you name it!

VISITING ROYALTY

The fact that King George VI has told his Parliament that he would be happy to accept, as an expression of good feeling, President Roosevelt's invitation to visit the U. S. during the royal Canadian tour this next spring, means the strengthening of ties which bind these two countries. It will be the first time in her history that an English ruler has visited this land during his reign. It is an act of friendliness and a move for a continuance of peaceful relations between this nation and her mother country. Mrs. Roosevelt, when asked if she would kneel and bow to the crowned heads, says she will not but will extend to them the American style of greeting, the hand-shake. This is America and the hand-shake is the American custom in greeting, be it King and Queen, Lord and Lady or plain Mr. and Mrs. We folks figure that perhaps King George would prefer his American reception to be purely natural and unaffected—honestly American.

WE GO ON

Another election day has passed with all the necessary fan-fare and political didoes which accompany it. We resume our ways of life wondering what changes of administration will affect us, or satisfied that the old regime remains in office to affect no changes. Despite the good of it and the bad of it, there can be no true democracy without this procedure of electioning. To be a free people we must conduct elections to get differences of opinion and interest in public policies. A campaign preceding an election often developes into a fight, but the popular verdict is decided only in the polls. One side wins, the loser must submit and whether you win or lose you place the victory in the hands of the majority with a prayer that the majority is right. To refuse to submit to the larger vote would need force and violence and lead to war. We are a free nation and can vote as we please, and may the government continue to respect these rights by placing the power of election in the hands of its people.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

THRILLING SKY RESCUE

Hemmed in by bandits on all sides of them, a little group of U. S. Marines were fighting desperately in the village of Quilali, Nicaragua, in January, 1928. Several of the marines had been killed, many were wounded. The chances of their comrades coming to their rescue of the survivors seemed remote. Fortunately a n aviator, zooming high over Quilali, witnessed their plight.

After the marines had worked feverishly to tear down a part of the village for an improvised landing field, the plane swooped down to a bumpy landing on its rough and irregular streets. It was piloted by Lieutenant Christian F. Schilt, who risked life and limb to make a landing. Quickly the more seriously wounded were placed in the plane and removed to a point of safety.

Ten times the village was visited by the daring pilot. Ten times he landed safely and got away with his precious cargo. Parts of his airplane were ripped and torn, bullets pierced the fabric of his wings, his plane nearly turned turtle each time he landed or took off, but he accomplished his mission.

Lieutenant Schilt not only effected the rescue of badly wounded marines, but he brought supplies and succor to others who were in desperate need. His heroic action won the praise of his grateful comrades.

Some months later the Congressional Medal of Honor was pinned to his uniform by the late President Coolidge—the first living aviator to receive this award for heroism "above and beyond the call to duty."

It was a dramatic interlude in the life of a versatile aviator who had won prizes in air races, had flown to the assistance of flood sufferers in the Mississippi Valley, had helped to make an aerial survey of the West Indies, and who later experienced many thrills as a test pilot of naval planes.

SOUTHWARD HO!

Remember the cry that was raised against the trailer when it first came into popular being? They continued to grow in numbers until a trailer no longer existed as a novelty but became an established modern convenience and a means of sensible transportation for tourists and short-term pleasure seekers. There isn't a village today the size of St. Joe or even smaller, where someone living there hasn't a trailer, who has been in one or is well-acquainted with a man who owns one. In other words, trailers are accepted in good society. No longer is the trailer a menace to the people but a boon to the man with the wherewithal to seek his climate. At this time of year the southern highways are alive with trailers of northern citizens who migrate to the sunnyland to cut out coal and cough-syrup. There are towns all over the country where residents are getting things in shape to leave for the south. Other folks have already arrived in the warm zone and, no doubt, started in to acquire a tan.

The man who tried to keep out the horseless buggy and the man who would pass a law against the invasion are living in the same world, apart from a changing universe. There are fewer communities barring the trailer than last year and as time goes on those who have placed regulations against them will realize, as have the states, that the trailer home is here to stay.

HERE'S A DELICIOUS UNCOOKED CHRISTMAS CANDY

Candy is as much a part of the holiday season as the Christmas tree itself. It's a clever idea to make several varieties of unusual confections, as well as some of the old favorites, to pack in gift boxes.

Here's an unusual and delicious chocolate fudge:

Favorite Refrigerator Fudge

3 ounces unsweetened chocolate
1 egg (unbeaten)
2 tablespoons butter
1 pound confectioner's sugar
3 tablespoons evaporated milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate over low flame, add egg and beat together for 1 minute. Remove from flame and add butter and sugar alternately with the milk. Stir in the vanilla. Spread in buttered pan and place in refrigerator to chill.

Cause of Our Present Day Ills

Too much oats and too much wheat,
Too much corn and too much meat,
Too much cotton and too much oil,
Too many hours that we don't toil,
Too many highways, too many cars,
Too many people behind the bars,
Too much poverty, too much wealth,
Too many people in ill health,
Too much politics, too much booze,
Too many wearing high-heeled shoes,
Too many loafing, too many bets,
Too many failing to pay their debts,
Too many spending dough on gas,
Too many talking of European sass,
Too many living beyond their means,
Too many buying canned corn and beans,
Too many sowing their crop of wild oats,
Too many candidates after votes,
Too many people who don't give a damn,
Too many people looking to Uncle Sam,
Too many people, too much prose,
Too many girls without underclothes,
Too much reform, too much law,
Isn't it the darndest mess you ever saw?

One half of the taxes assessed for state, county and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1939.

The second installment is due and payable on the first Monday in November, 1939.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and others, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and make separate receipts therefor. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay taxes on is included in their receipts.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1938. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1939.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owing delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the second Monday in April, 1939.

VOL. LIII (53 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1938 NUMBER 50

PASSENGER TRAIN ON B. & O. WRECKED NEAR HOLGATE

All ten cars of Baltimore & Ohio passenger train No. 8, known as the Fort Pitt Limited, left the rails four miles west of Holgate, O., early Saturday morning.

Sleeping passengers were thrown from their berths and three were treated at the Defiance hospital. They are:

Mrs. James Knowell, 40, of St. Paul, Minn., severe scalp wounds and lacerations.

Mrs. Helen Rowland, 42, of Chicago, cuts.

Mrs. Michael Shaughnessy, of Willard, O., cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Knowell was the only one who remained in the hospital today. The cars were all of steel construction, keeping the number of injured to a minimum.

The train left Garrett at 1:11 A. M., with two locomotives, the engineers being Frank L. Maurer and John M. Young of Garrett. The conductor was Roy A. McKinley of Garrett. The train was running at high speed when, it is believed, some part dropped from the second engine. This derailed the locomotive and all the passenger cars. Several cars turned onto their sides. Porters used ladders to help remove passengers through windows. Blankets and clothing were thrown out to protect the passengers from the cold wind. The injured passengers were removed to Defiance in ambulances and automobiles.

A relief train took the train on east while wreck trains worked to clear the tracks, which were damaged for several hundred yards.

B. & O. trains were rerouted over other railroads until late Saturday when one track was in condition for traffic.

INDIANA MAY EXTEND ITS BOUNDARY LINES

Indiana had acquired several hundred square miles of territory, because the Indiana Interstate Co-operation Commission dug up an original United States land survey.

When the Commission opened up its offices several weeks ago, William Treadway, secretary and former member of the State Legislature, decided that so long as the state was going to co-operate on several interstate problems, he'd better find out what the exact boundaries of Indiana are.

Mr. Treadway was surprised to learn upon reading the Indiana Constitution that the western boundary of Indiana was "a line drawn along the middle of the Wabash River, from its mouth to a point where a due north line, drawn from the town of Vincennes, would last touch the northwestern shore of said Wabash River; and, thence, by a due north line, until the same shall intersect an east and west line, drawn through a point ten miles north of the southern extreme of Lake Michigan."

He looked over all the official maps of Indiana in the state library, and none of the maps claimed any territory for Indiana in Lake Michigan. Persistently, Mr. Treadway searched through U. S. land documents and the U. S. geological survey. They proved his point.

The newly acquired territory in Lake Michigan includes some valuable gravel deposits, Chicago's Calumet Park beach and the pier of the Calumet Harbor.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

Due probably to the nice weather, our meeting on Dec. 7th was well attended. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Glenn Cole. A short article, "Christmas Reminder," was read by Mrs. C. C. Woodcox. A resume on "A Call To Life," taken from the Reader's Digest, was given by Mrs. Hollis Dilley, followed by an outline of the "Life of the Quintuplets," by Mrs. Fred Leighty. We then had a general reading on "The Importance of Living," after which Mrs. Chas. Krise gave a very interesting book review on, "Here I Stay." Little Nancy Monroe sang a Christmas Carol for us.

After the meeting was adjourned our hostess, Mrs. Vernie Monroe, served us refreshments. Our next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. O. K. Shull, the Christmas party.

OLD FRIENDS GATHER AT SHILLING HOME

Friendships formed in the days of childhood are those of lasting memory, and when the opportunities for association in later years come, in the way of visiting those friends, time seems to be fleeting, and that the parting comes all too soon. Such was the experience Sunday, when a number gathered at the J. R. Shilling home last Sunday, bringing with them well filled baskets.

Those friends who were present included Mr. and Mrs. Israel Layman, of west of St. Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Will Farner, of Jackson Township; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Cobler and Mrs. Minnie Shilling, of Auburn, besides the immediate family of Mr. and Mrs. Shilling including their son, Cecil, of St. Joe, and daughter, Mrs. Lela Northrup and son, Curtice, of Fort Wayne, and Miss Rosamond Furnish, of near Spencerville.

The older people in this group had set a number of times to meet, but for some reason they were unable to get together until last Sunday.

Mrs. Farner and Mrs. Cobler are sisters of Mr. Layman, and the event had double pleasure for them. The entire afternoon was spent in talking of events that happened in the earlier years of their lives, which were spent about two or three miles west of St. Joe.

The day will long be remembered by all present, and the carry-in dinner was enjoyed immensely, as they sat about the table eating and chatting.

COURT UPHOLDS TOWN OF BUTLER IN SUIT

A decision of widespread interest was handed down in the DeKalb Circuit Court Saturday when Special Judge Clyde C. Carlin, of Angola, held that the Butler town ordinance regulating peddlers and hawkers is valid as to the Master Bakery, of Auburn, excepting section 7, which, according to the court, sets prohibitive fees.

The town board stipulated that licensees under the ordinance pay $2 a day. As this amounts to more than $600 a year, Judge Carlin held that the charge is prohibitive as to the Master Bakery in the conduct of a continuous business and therefore that section 7 is invalid as to the plaintiffs. The court expressed the opinion that weekly and monthly fees should be fixed and that a radical reduction should be made for those who choose to secure annual licenses.

It is expected that the Butler board will take action at once to lower the fees for periods of more than a day and it is probable that the yearly fee will be about $250. It is understood that the plaintiffs have the right to sell their products in the town until the ordinance as amended goes into effect. If they deem the new fees unreasonable they may appeal to the higher courts, but in the meantime it is understood they would not be able to sell their products in the town by the present method, which is by house-to-house canvassing daily.

Judge Carlin also commented as follows:

"Merchants are essential to a town's existence. They encourage civic pride. They stock a varied assortment of merchandise that in itself attracts folks to come to town. They rent store buildings, employ clerks, usually chosen from young men and women of the town. They extend credit in time of need, contribute to the churches and other civic enterprises, pay local taxes, head subscription lists and usually take the lead in civic enterprises. Without them the local newspapers, the churches, lodges and fraternal orders would decline.

"A town supplied wholly from delivery wagons might exist. It would have no civic consciousness.

"Those selling wares from door to door are citizens of our state and nation. They have the same inherent right to sell their wares to whom they please as has the local merchant. But they pay no taxes to the town to whose citizens they sell. Surely in equity and good conscience under the police powers the legislature may authorize the town to exact such license fees from them as places them on a parity with the merchant. Neither should possess an advantage over the other. While the license fee may not be high enough to discourage peddlers."

The city of Kendallville also passed an ordinance similar to that of Butler and the same plaintiffs have attacked it in Noble circuit at Albion. This case is pending.

A STORY WITH A MORAL

It is right and fitting that every so often we repeat the ancient tale of truth and circumstance, a story with a moral and a moral that might be remembered by a number of St. Joe News readers. The story concerns a preacher who closed a sermon on indebtedness with this request: "Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up." Everybody in the church, with the exception of one man, stood up. The preacher seated the congregation and said: "Now, let everybody who is not paying his debts stand up." Then the one man who had remained seated, a care-worn fellow wearing last spring's suit, slowly rose to his feet. "How is it, my friend, that you are the only one in town unable to meet your obligations?" asked the preacher. The man replied: "I run a newspaper and the brethren who stood up are all my subscribers and haven't settled for their subscriptions." The preacher hurriedly remarked: "Let us pray."

IN THE AIR

Already the feel of Christmas is getting in the air with package wrappings and Christmas cards finding their place on local counters. Each day, from now until the twenty-fifth, you will find this air grow stronger. Even though it might have lost a lot of the zest and some of the joy for some of the older citizens that it held in the days of their youth, we are sure there is not a man or woman in St. Joe who would abolish it.

We like to look back to Christmas in years gone by and compare the many changes in custom in it's celebration over these years. You can remember when it was not considered good form for any young man to give his best girl any article of wearing apparel. It was too personal a gift and also might indicate that her folks had been neglecting to clothe her. The proper gift under these circumstances was an album, a toilet set or candy. Today our Christmas giving is on a sensible basis and gifts of service are the more appropriate and usually the most appreciated. We buy more frequently for the home than formerly with occasional chairs, rugs, lamps, dishes, silverware and household appliances. To possess comfort for all the family every member can make his giving one which all can enjoy. Human nature hasn't changed much, even if Christmas celebration has. Let's make it a servicable Christmas.

WORDS OF WISDOM

It has been an unpleasant occurrance, this aviation difficulty that has involved Lindbergh in a large amount of unpleasant publicity regarding his alleged stand on the deficiencies of Great Britain, France, Russia and Czech air fleets. His reported criticism was brought up by Russian air officials and made an unpleasant situation worse. Following this affair Lindbergh flew to Berlin where he met with Hitler's airmen and where he was publicly decorated with a Nazi medal. This did not relieve the situation either, as Europe isn't in a mood to receive and exchange pleasantries and medals from Adolph Hitler. To be associated with him in any way made it appear that Lindbergh was acknowledging and preferring the Nazi air force. Following this public acknowledgment of Nazi approval of the Colonel, an English magazine, offended by his criticism and activities in Berlin, published an article headed "Better Go Home, Lindy." They state that English people have been kind and hospitable to him and that he has enjoyed England, but that now British people "would be happier if he went home." We are not certain whether this is being unfair to Lindbergh as we are not certain of his statements against foreign aeronautics, and too, he may have had good intentions whatever he has done. But the nations over seas are not to be held up to scorn or even to constructive criticism at this time, and to be entangled in affairs of state where matters are difficult at best, may be unpleasant to Colonel Lindberg. He left America to seek peace and seclusion in England, perhaps he had better come home before he loses it.

LOG of the U.S. MARINES

LOST IN SAMAR

Lost in the tropical jungles of Samar in the Philippines, a little group of U. S. Marines stumbled blindly through the dense foliage, closing in on them like the tentacles of a giant octupus. I was a tragic sequence in a partly successful campaign to pacify the natives in 1901.

The lost marines were all that remained of an expedition which had started out to select a route for the erection of telegraph wires from coast to coast. The tentative route lay westward from Lanang across the island of Basey, some thirty-five miles away.

Fate had dogged the party from the beginning. Led by unreliable native guides, they started in boats, which were beached when the Lanang River proved no longer navigable. They then cut their way through the thicket until their rations ran short, and soon they were lost.

Faced with this dilemma, a part of the group forged ahead on a perilous trek across the island and, after overcoming many difficulties, they eventually reached Basey. At this point a rescue group was promptly organized, but their search for the last marines proved fruitless.

Meanwhile a handful of men from the lost party managed to make their way back to their starting point at Lanang, after suffering hardships which left them more dead than alive. Here another rescue party was organized in an attempt to locate the remaining marines.

With their shirts and shoes torn to ribbons and their bodies wracked with tropical fevers and stinging insects, the survivors of the original party were discovered after they had endured three weeks of almost superhuman suffering. On one occasion they had been attacked by their native guides. Before they were found, ten men had died or disappeared.

Records of the Corps fail to reveal a more harrowing experience. Until time had dimmed memories of the tragedy, it was the custom of marine officers to rise and pay homage to the survivors with the salutation: "Stand, gentlemen, he served in Samar!"

SAVED FROM BURNING PLANE

The motor of a seaplane piloted by a naval flyer roared noisily over the flying field at Pensacola, Fla., where Private Albert J. Smith, of the Marine Corps, was on duty as a sentry on a February morning in 1921.

From time to time other planes skimmed over the waters of Pensacola Bay, rose into the air to circle over the naval reservation, and descended to safe landings on the water again.

Suddenly the plane piloted by Machinist's Mate P. M. Phelps went into an erratic spin and crashed to the flying field, imprisoning the pilot. Almost at the same instant the gasoline tank exploded and the plane burst into flames.

Without a moment's hesitation, and without knowing whether the pilot was alive or dead, Smith hurried to the burning plane, worked his way under the wreckage, cut the pilot loose and dragged him out. The plane flamed like tinder and both Phelps and his rescuer were badly burned.

Before they were clear of the wreckage, however, a second gasoline tank exploded, spraying both men with the flaming liquid, but fortunately both recovered from the ordeal. At that time, such safety aids as asbestos suits to protect fire fighters from flames were not in general use.

Smith could have performed his full duty by merely seeking help in the emergency. His heroic conduct was "above and beyond the call to duty," and he was awarded a Congressional Medal of Honor.

When the medal was pinned on his uniform some months later, Smith was serving in the West Indies, carrying out his duties in the traditional manner of the Soldiers of the Sea.

HERE'S A GIFT

It might be just what you are looking for and perhaps this suggestion from us will help you in figuring one worth-while gift for a worth-while fellow. Almost anyone in St. Joe is open to hints at this time of year. Here is ours. In order to give comfort and happiness all the year round your gift must be a lasting one, so why not send that relative or friend who has moved to a distant section, your home-town paper for the year of 1939? It means a present each week for 52 of them and would cost little in comparison to his appreciation for your thoughtfulness. What is nicer than a letter from home—your home-town newspaper. We will gladly drop a note to tell of the gift and who is sending it, with our personal good wishes for the Christmas-tide. Think it over!

Watler F. Danielson, successful Republican candidate for the state house of representatives, led his Democratic rival, Martin T. Krueger, by 36 votes in a recount of ballots in the November election. Nine of Laporte county's 58 precincts remain to be counted. They probably would be completed by Wednesday, the recount board stated. If Krueger should win, the house would be equally divided, 50 Republicans and 50 Democrats. Danielson gained one vote in the recheck of voting machines but has lost 13 in the paper ballot precincts.

A penny saved is a penny earned, is a truthful saying, and it comes to us very forcibly each week as our week's deluge of mail matter is opened. Now that the Christmas season is here and many cards and letters are being purchased and mailed, we call attention to this one way to save a few pennies. Where a piece of mail is sent locally or in other words a drop letter can be sealed and mailed for 1 cent. If sent on the rural route, sealed at 2 cents same as any letter but if open will carry 1½ cent postage to any point you may address them. To remember this will save you many pennies, thus you can remember all your friends.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Here is another question against which to check your driving habits:

Should a car which is following another at 5 miles an hour leave more space between this car and the one ahead than he would if the rate of speed of both cars were 20 miles an hour

What is your answer? What do you do? Here is the correct answer:

Yes. A car traveling 20 miles an hour can be stopped in approximately 30 feet (2-wheel brakes) or 20 feet (4-wheel brakes.) At 35 miles an hour the stopping distances are 120 feet (2-wheel brakes) and 61 feet (4-wheel brakes.) These figures will vary with drivers, cars, and the condition of the roads; but the fact remains that a car traveling 35 miles an hour cannot be stopped as quickly as one traveling 20 miles an hour, consequently, more space should be left between cars when they are traveling at a greater rate of speed.

How good a driver are you? Can you answer questions on rules of the road correctly? Here is one: When you make a right turn from one street into another, should you turn from the lane nearest the right edge of the street? You sohuld, but many persons drive in the middle of the street and then make the right turn.

Drivers should get in the lane nearest the right edge of the street when making a right turn from one street into another; otherwise, there is danger of collision with cars in the right-hand lane.

Do you agree, and do you make your right turns correctly?

One half of the taxes assessed for state, county and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1939.

The second installment is due and payable on the first Monday in November, 1939.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and others, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and make separate receipts therefor. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay taxes on is included in their receipts.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1938. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1939.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owing delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the second Monday in April, 1939.

Auburn, Indiana, December 1, 1938.

INSPIRATIONAL

Here you stand at the parting of the ways; some road you are to take; and as you stand here, consider and know how it is that you intend to live. Carry no bad habits, no corrupting associations, no enemies and strifes into this New Year. Leave these behind, and let the dead Past bury its dead; leave them behind, and thank God that you are able to leave them.

Home for the Holidays! What a happy thought and what happy expectations! Do not mar this vacation by thoughtless driving. Visiting your friends and relatives always brings happiness and pleasure to all, but one thoughtless act of ours on the highway might bring suffering and grief.

Roads may be slippery. Weather conditions might not be ideal for driving. Therefore, it behooves every one of us to drive safely during the holidays.

Safety preserves Happiness!

DONT'S FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS

A Merry Christmas to You and Yours! And remember—it can't be merry unless it's safe.

Fire is the great hazard of the holiday season. It has turned many a gladsome celebration into a horrible tragedy; for the victims of holiday fires are usually children.

So—here are some dont's for the holidays that will pay you tremendous dividends in the coin of happiness and safety:

Don't use candles on your Christmas tree—the tree itself is highly inflammable and it, together with tinsel decorations placed near flame, may cause a holocaust in your home. Electric light sets are inexpensive, safe and satisfactory.

Don't permit children dressed in flimsy cloth or paper holiday costumes to be in a room with open flame of any kind. Fatal burns can be suffered in an incredibly brief period of time.

Don't give children gifts that require the use of explosive chemicals, fire, steam or other hazardous elements.

Don't allow a mess of discarded Christmas package wrappings to accumulate. A carelessly disposed match or cigarette may cause them to burst into a fire that will swiftly get out of control.

Dry Christmas trees present a major hazard—dispose of yours as soon as the holidays are over.

And—last but not least—don't take a chance of any kind. Be constantly alert. Have your fun safely.

Many a St. Joe man figures that the average American is a fellow who worries this week about going to the poor house, and next week goes out and buys an automobile.

Just because you look down on the other fellow is no reason that the other fellow is looking up to you.

There is many an oldster who can remember when it took only five cents to buy a ham sandwich.

A wit has mentioned, seriously, that the average man needs some one to tell him what to do. And all the time we thought that was the reason he got married.

By this time every man knows whether the moths got much enjoyment out of his overcoat last summer.

There may be a lot of complainers around, but this editor has never yet heard any one of them complaining about his tax assessment being too low.

Maybe we will live to see the day when all highways will be widened so that two cars can start around you and meet two more cars and tangle six at one time.

Many a reader went to school where they were taught that "Knowledge is power." Today their children believe everything is horsepower.

More and more news is beginning to leak out concerning the Administration's vast re-armament plan. It seems certain that hundreds of millions will be spent next year for battleships, planes and expansion of all the arms of the military service. This forthcoming "war budget" will doubtless be the largest, for peace time, in our history.

In the meantime, there is considerable talk about possible ways of financing it. The President has said that he does not want to do that by adding to the debt—that he favors a pay-as-we-go plan so far as possible. At the saem time, sentiment generally in Congress seems to be against new taxes.

One suggested solution is for the Administration to liquidate some of the tremendous assets held by the RFC. This bureau is a big partner in American industry, and its holdings run into the billions. They are, however, difficult to realize on—no one believes the RFC would dump securities on the open market, as that would be certain to cause a sharp break in values.

So, even though Congress is unwilling, it may become necessary to pay for rearmament with new taxes, or higher old taxes. If the latter course is chosen, it is likely that the income tax on all or most brackets will be increased one or two per cent.

WATCH THEM BURN

Keep the home fires burning but watch them burn! When the thermometer sinks too low and the coal bin shows a lot of floor space, the home fires are kept busy. It is necessary to take precaution during any heating season for many fires are caused by over-heated stoves and furnaces during winter months. The loss in money due to winter firing to keep the homes warm, runs into millions of dollars each year. The fires on farms alone, in the United States, cause an average loss of $7,500 a day. The equipment of the local fire department of St. Joe may be sufficient to serve the needs of the community but there are always fires that win despite the efforts of man and fire apparatus. Most of us are aware that fire insurance is the best guard against complete loss but all of us haven't fire insurance. Be on your guard and carefully watch the home fires burn.

NO EXCHANGES

There is a young boy of 18 years in Georgia who says he would not swap his job for any office position that might be offered him. He has a 55-acre farm which he owns and this year he made 200 bushels of sweet potatoes, 230 bushels of corn, 800 gallons of syrup, 5 acres of cotton and a tobacco crop that was profitable. He owns 60 head of hogs, 15 beef cattle, a good cow, a storeroom containing 80 quarts of string-beans, 80 quarts of tomatoes and a number of jars of peaches and other fruits. This young man asks for nothing more, is satisfied and pleased with his labor and his earnings. The worry of paying the groceryman is not for him—he grows his own. But a case like this is not exceptional, it is only brought to the attention of The News readers to remind them that if it can be done in Georgia it can be done here.

There is always some one to remark that folks don't think about religion like they did in the old days. They usually follow this up by saying it is a "Godless Age." This is not true, we feel sure and are aware of various instances where the inclination is more for religion than in other years. The average man is as interested in religion as always, and perhaps he doesn't talk about it but the reverence and respect is nevertheless present. There are plays on the stage of religious subjects and trends of thought, there are numerous moving pictures with religious backgrounds and themes. There are many current books, fiction and non-fiction, dealing with the subject of religion. There are new folks joining churches, many of them of this younger generation. We are not living in a godless age as long as man retains his faith in his fellowman and leads an honest upright life.

DON'T TURN BACK THE CLOCK

It's a curious paradox that there is no question as to the necessity and merit of mass production of goods—yet, at the same time, there is an aggressive, politically-inspired campaign underway to destroy mass production's essential ally—mass distribution.

It would be ridiculous to suggest that we go back to the handicraft age in the production of motor cars, electrical devices, building materials, furniture or almost anything else in common use and demand. The cost of these necessities would be inflated many times. Where almost all the population can purchase them now, only a small per cent could enjoy them at anywhere near the extent they do now, if they were produced by the slow, hand methods that preceded the industrial age.

It would be equally ridiculous to attempt to turn back the clock and outlaw mass distribution. Most everyone knows that the cost of distributing a product has often been as great as the cost of making it—and in many instances much greater. Mass distribution reduces this cost and makes it possible to pass on to the consumer the great savings effected by modern manufacturing and producing methods. Efficiency in manufacture is of no service to the consumer—if waste in distribution offsets it.

Today's real problem is not how to destroy mass distribution, but how to extend it—how to bring still more of the economics of manufacture to the hard-pressed buyer. If the public welfare is the determining question, there should be an end to the senseless harrying of those groups which are working to perfect distribution—and, in its place, policy of the utmost encouragement.

THEY SAW THE STAR

In this day of rapid changes and fleeting fads it does the heart good to know that one cutsom has never changed since it was originated almost 2000 year ago—the custom of celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace.

Again we are approaching the anniversary of that memorable event, the night when a new and brighter star gleamed in the Eastern skies, and men in far places paused to point it out and marvel at its brilliance. It has been almost two thousand years since shepherds, tending their flocks in the still hours of the night, stretched forth their hands as a greeting to the newest heavenly diadem, and read within it the greatest, sweetest message that has ever come to gladden and comfort the human heart. In its brilliant rays they read that "This Day There Has Been Born To The World A Savior."

Almost 2000 years, and yet we find ourselves as firm in our belief that that message is true, and as steadfast are we in our rejoicing as were those who first read in it, freedom from an earthly bondage that had kept heavy the hearts of all mankind. Since the moment we first learned the meaning of Christmas more of the brilliance surrounding it has been dimmed, and passing years only make dearer the story that the star told in centuries long gone by. Faith and Hope are as strong in the breasts of humanity today as on the morn following the appearance of that star, when the world awakened to find that in truth there had come One capable of saving all who might look up and believe. And not alone has this grand message of cheer gladdened the hearts of that part of the world in which it was first read, but it has spread to even the darkest corners until today every heart can feel the solace of the sweetest story ever told and they take on new hope.

To the citizens of St. Joe and vicinity, we extend the greetings of the season. We Wish You A Merry Christmas. For each of you we hope that the star in the East shines as brightly and with a message as comforting as it did on that Christmas eve more than 1900 years ago. We want to hope that the year fast drawing to a close has found you stronger in your faith and love for your fellowman, and that the blessings that come from a life honestly and sincerely lived have been yours in abundance. Just as men have lived by the star in years gone by, men must, if they would truly enjoy living, be guided by it in all the years to come. And we broaden our hope that by it you have lived and shall continue to do so.

May Joy and Happiness and Peace be the portion of every one of you as you pass this Christmas milestone and push on down the road of Life to a glorius sunset.

France, inspector from the state Gross Income Tax Division was assigned to the DeKalb County's assessor's office for a final check-up on the gross income tax information listed on the property tax assessment sheets. As soon as the information obtained by Mr. France is correlated with other information in the central office in Indianapolis, tax offenders will be summoned to appear before officials of the tax division to be stationed in the local auto license branches. In a campaign by the tax division in the early part of 1938 to bring the requirements of the Gross Income Tax Act to the attention of the rural population of the state, 9,878 new taxpayers were added to the tax division's list in thirty days.

REVERED BY MARINES

Apart from George Washington himself, no hero of the Revolution is more revered by men of the U. S. Navy and Marine Corps than John Paul Jones, whose return to the land of his adoption, after he had been long forgotten, forms one of the strangest chapters in the annals of American history.

While he was not a member of their Corps, the U. S. Marines cherish his memory as one who inspired them to deeds of bravery when our infant American Navy was doing its share toward winning Independence.

Of Scottish birth, and an experienced sailor, Jones quickly joined the revolutionary movement and became a lieutenant aboard the Alfred, flagship of the little fleet which carried sailors and marines on a successful expedition to the Bahamas in 1776.

Later he commanded the Ranger, and directed that the Marines should wear red uniforms, even more colorful than the brilliant green usually worn by sea soldiers of that time. Marines also served under Jones on the Bon Homme Richard, when he met the British ship Serapis and won the most brilliant sea victory of the war.

With the Revolution over, Jones went to Europe, served for a while in a Russian naval campaign against the Turks, and eventually returned to Paris where he died in 1792 at the age of 45. For more than a hundred years his burial place was unknown.

Then a search was made for his grave, which was finally located and the remains positively identified. A squadron of warships was sent to bring the hero back in 1905, and his body is now buried in a handsome sarcophagus in the chapel of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Proud that their forebears had served under him in life, U. S. Marines were equally proud to be with the squadron which escorted the body to Annapolis, and to render final honors to a naval officer who had inspired the sea soldiers of an earlier generation.

One half of the taxes assessed for state, county and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1939.

The second installment is due and payable on the first Monday in November, 1939.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and others, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and make separate receipts therefor. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay taxes on is included in their receipts.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1938. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1939.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owing delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the second Monday in April, 1939.

PUBIC ASSISTANCE ROLLS ON THE RAPID INCREASE

The age assistance rolls of DeKalb County rose to a new high at 334 Wednesday afternoon by action of the county welfare board at its monthly meeting in the court house.

Of the 30 new applications considered, 19 were granted, ranging from $8 to $23 a month. Four of the awards were represented by two couples and one given aid is the spouse of a person already on the list. The board rejected 10 applications because of failure to qualify and one application was withdrawn voluntarily. Of eight age cases reviewed, five were continued the same and three increases were granted.

The board recommended to the state board that one application for eye treatment be granted. Of 2 new children's cases, one award was granted and one application was rejected. Of two children's cases reviewed, one was decreased and one was increased.

Two deaths took place among the age assistance beneficiaries between the November and December meetings of the board. Two burial bills of $75 each were ordered paid. It was reported that the number of applications for age assistance had been increased by the action of the WPA in dismissing men who are more than 65 years of age because of lack of funds.

No action was taken by the board on the recent order of the state tax commissioners to restore the salaries of employes to the figures set for 1939 by the county board and to restore the age assistance appropriation to $80,000 as fixed by the county but reduced $10,000 by the county tax adjustment board.

RING IN THE NEW!

We have come a long way since last tolled the bells to herald the arrival of a new year. We have travelled many paths and byroads to lead us to the birth of a 1939. Many of us have prospered with this passing of time, others of us can scarcely say we are sorry to bid it adieu, but however our personal feelings regarding the old—the new is before us and we look upon it as bright. This community and thousands like it, have received blessings of civic advantages and face the new year with the hope of added improvements and bounties for the home town.

This closing of the book on 1938 is sad, as we grow older with its passing and life is far too short for most of us. This year has been bountiful, as all years are bountiful in some way, to all of us. The sadness that it has held has only seasoned us for experiences that might await us in other years ahead. We rejoice in the pleasant memories it holds for us and we plan for other glories and gifts in the coming new one. The local and national chapter in this book of years has had items of importance for all of us and we profited in experience in civic affairs, national crises and international entanglements. We are a much wiser people, and let us remember this—in 1939.

As hard as one may try there are always opportunities missed, tasks left undone from one year to the next. We are determined to avail ourselves of every situation which might arise in this new year that would be for the betterment of our homes and our community. We must make a program for city, government and home improvement and we must stick to that program until completion. There are none to say this is not a good town, an ideal community and they are proud to be a citizen. But there is no community where improvement is complete. . It is our desire to give our message of good fellowship and well-wishing to all the citizens of St. Joe and its surrounding territory, with the hope that they join in making the new year a shining one in our local history through their willingness to cooperate. Opportunities to better ourselves and our town lie ahead and if a man looks back over a dying year and cannot say to himself, "I have gained in both spiritual and material things," that man has himself to blame. After all, a new year is born a baby with but 365 days of life. We hope to have many years ahead to fill with accomplishment and achievement, but time flies!

Miss Patricia Fluke is spending this week in Ft. Wayne visiting friends.

The Sam Armstrong Christmas dinner was held Sunday in Auburn at the Delvin Armstrong home. The entire family was present and enjoyed the day.

These Were Among Highlights in the Year's News

PERSECUTION
FLOODS POLITICS
AGGRESSION

PERSECUTION—The world sought a new home for the wandering Jew, driven from Germany, Czechoslovakia and Italy, battled by Arabs in the Holy Land. FLOODS—Raging torrents swept California in the spring, Texas in the summer, New England in the autumn. POLITICS—Primary and general elections in every state of the union focused attention on national affairs and brought Republican gains in many sections. AGGRESSION—Germany's Adolf Hitler marched through Austria and Czechoslovakia, Japan marched through China and fought with Russia on the Siberian border.

CULTURE CLUB

The anual Christmas party of the Culture Club was held at the home of Dema Curie, December 21, 1938. The rooms were tastefully decorated in keeping with the holiday season.

After a short business period conducted by the president, Pluma Hamilton, the meeting was in charge of the committee, composed of Neva Hursh, Lula Armstrong and Huldah Reasoner.

Twenty-one members responded to roll call with "Something pertaining to Christmas." Then a Christmas reading by Dorothea Kessler. Next each member was asked to write a prophecy of some one present, saying something they would say or do during the evening. At the close they would be read. After which several Christmas contests were enjoyed. The evening's entertainment was closed with the gift exchange.

All were then invited to the dining room where covers were laid for twenty-one. The table was beautifully decorated with tall red tapers, the center piece being a tiny Christmas tree. At each cover was a small candy favor.

A delicious two-course luncheon was served. The first course consisted of nut bread sandwiches, olives, red beets, pickles, and potato chips; second course, individual cakes, ice cream and coffee. Between courses Helen Schondelmayer and Dorothea Kessler sang "Silent Night" accompanied by the accordion.

EXTENSION OF TIME GIVEN FOR AUTO LICENSE PLATES

For the second consecutive year, Governor M. Clifford Townsend granted to motorists of Indiana an extension of time for the purchase of auto license plates.

At the same time, the Governor expressed the hope that the 1939 session of the General Assembly will change the date of license sales to some time between March 1 and July 1.

The Governor's statement read:

"I have made arrangements with the Bureau of Motor Vehicles to extend the time for the purchase of motor vehicle licenses, and have asked law enforcement officers to co-operate in permitting motorists to operate with their 1938 plates until March 1, 1939.

"I believe it unjust to require a motorist to pay his license fees at a time of the year when his obligations are the heaviest. In the past many motorists have been unable to drive their cars for several weeks, because they were financially unable to pay their license fees at the first of the year.

"An automobile is no longer considered a luxury, and for many persons the loss of their automobile is a real tragedy.

"Last year we extended the time required for the pruchase of new licenses, and I do so again with the hope that the coming session of the Legislature will enact such laws as may be necessary to change the date of license sales to some time between March 1 and July 1 in future years.

"This extension of time does not apply to the driver's license. These must be secured by January 1st."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook entertained the Cook family for dinner on Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Randall had a very pleasant Christmas at the Clyde Beard home at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Zay Sailer were in Ft. Wayne for Christmas guests in the Charles Stull home.

Safetygrams
BY
FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

1939 is just before us. Many people who started out in 1938, who paid little attention to their driving habits or were reckless and careless in their conduct on the highways, were unable to see the end of '38.

Do not let this happen to you in 1939. Face the year with the determined effort to drive safely, to drive carefully, and to drive courteously.

A resolution such as this will not only stimulate your own interest in safe driving, but will be an example to your associates and friends.

Make 1939 the safest year!

All feminine readers will agree that the woman in St. Joe wro drives from the back seat of a car is no worse than the man who cooks from the dining room table.

A Spencerville resident was overheard to remark that the fat of the land had a streak of lean far too wide.

We wish to remark that the average modern girl knows as much about a quilting-bee as the modern boy knows about a sawbuck.

The wisest words in this world are those that are not spoken by a man when he is angry.

From what we have seen of gas masks, it is our belief that the Europeans may succeed in making war look awfully silly.

Many a voter thinks that about the only thing that will cure some fellows of the itch for holding office, is for them to have to scratch for a living.

Have you noticed that the children raised according to the books do almost as well as those who just happen to grow up?

Most people can remember when an application for divorce attracted a lot of unpleasant attention. It is a lot different now.

START TO SAVE

It is of interest to all readers to remark about the yearly Christmas Savings Clubs throughout the nation who distribute a goodly sum of money at this time of each year. The last three days of December sees $330,000,000 paid to 7,000,000 depositors, which is a distribution about three per cent greater than in 1937. The number of club members shows a six per cent increase. The average check for 1938 was for $47. There are 4,500 banks in the U. S. that have these Christmas Clubs. This seems like a lot of figures when you fully realize that the weekly deposits are very small. However, the constant savings of 25c a week will give you a snug little sum, coming at a time when you need it most.

It would be wise, for those who do not belong to a Christmas Savings Club, to start out the New Year with a baking powder can and a quarter a week to drop into it. It would add up in a short time and you would get the habit. See how much happier your Christmas next year will be with this extra amount to spend for gifts or personal needs. There is no monoply on happiness and we can have it in St. Joe by preparing for the future now. All children should be taught the saving habit, whether it be a penny or a dime. The child that begins at an early age to appreciate the results of foresightedness and thrift will develop into a prudent manager in the economy of government, agriculture, politics, religion, civil and household control.

IT PAYS YOU

No matter what paper you pick up, don't overlook the ads. A recent survey in a farming district, a community about the size of the Tri-Townships, showed that the readers of the weekly newspaper paid more concern to their local advertisers than to those of nearby shopping centers. The wise buyer knows that his advertising merchants are the pointers of economy. Today there are none to say that advertising doesn't pay, with such companies as Wrigley, Campbell and Ford spending millions each year to tell you of the advantages of their gum, soup and automobiles. The nice feature about advertising is that it pays both those who buy and those who sell. It is a two-way gain.

PREVENT IT

If there is one thing of which you can get too much, it's everybody's special remedy for treating colds. There are always pet remedies that have cured the patient and never fails on the friends for an equal cure. Some of these favorites are good remedies but you would probably be a long time deceased if you tried all of them! After all is said and done about it, there is one item that stands out in the cold control situation. That is known as cold prevention. As far as your medical man has advanced he still is a bit reluctant to make drastic statements about the common cold. The fact that it is so common is the big reason we take extra precautions to prevent catchng it. The best remedy, the one that seems to be the most tried and true, is to prevent colds through comfortable, senisble dress, good, clean air and a well-chosen diet. What man refuses to believe that the best cure for a cold is to go to bed until relief is obtained. Two days of complete rest in bed may be the prevention of two weeks of misery on your feet. The association of folks with colds is the easiest way of passing the complaint around the neighborhood. Use common sense with the common cold.

WE LIKE IT

In reading over an item dated ten years ago that stated Americans were ruining their stomachs and digestive organs by indulging in the tooth-some "hot dog," we were compelled to line it up with a recent bit of hot dog news. The promoters of the Golden Gate International Exposition have figured that the number of hot dogs to be consumed, if stretched out together, will reach 273 miles. This doctor, ten years ago, tried to take from us the best square meal a nickel can buy, but present day figures show that Americans continue to eat and enjoy them. So often folks in St. Joe find that what they like most is put on the "mustn't touch" shelf, but it seems that the hot dog is still in favor, it least the carnivals, country fairs, roadside stands, and town "beaneries" can attest to the fact that the stomach of America still likes its hot dog.

REMEMBER THIS CASE

It is always wise to profit by the experience of someone else. It is often a costly thing to be heedless of the outcome and shut our eyes to the circumstance that might happen to us—if! How often you will hear someone say, "you can't tell him anything, he has to find out for himself. Too bad we don't listen. For instance, here is a recent accident that is well worth remembering. Up in Canada a farmer caught the cuff of his trouser leg in his combine while examining it. It took only a few seconds for the undressing of the amazed and somewhat bruised farmer. He was left standing in only his hat and boots. Folks say it gets awfully cold in Canada!

The truck was loaded with hogs. The blaze was put out with an extinguisher carried on the truck. The Auburn fire department was called but the fire was out when the firemen arrived.

The annual holiday pest hunt is on and the usual severe weather is here also, making the hunt very difficult. The reports will be made by Saturday night at the town hall when the committee will count the pests and give credit for each kind. The dinner will be held at the school house on January 5th, and Ira P. Nelson will represent the department of conservation with pictures and a talk. He will visit the school at 2:15 in the afternoon.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

John Wright, 68, who spent the major portion of his life as a worker in handle factories, died Saturday at 1:30 A. M. at his home in Hicksville, after several months illness due to complications.

A number of newspaper friends, of Hon. Geo. W. Gillie, newly elected representative in Congress, from the fourth district, found time to eat dinner with him at the Y. M. C. A. in Ft. Wayne, Friday evening. The meal was enjoyed and the social time around the table was more than pleasing. Men from Wolcottville, Angola, Columbia City and St. Joe were among the guests.

Sunday evening supper guests in the Arthur Furnish home on the County Line were Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Rhoades, their two daughters, Joyce and Alice, with their husbands, of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Olen Waltz, of Garrett; Harold Furnish and family; a granddaughter, of Mrs. Arline Rhoades, Tressa, and family, of Bluffton. F. B. Leighty and D. D. Burley, made a call in the afternoon.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nicholls, of Orangeville, were all home for Christmas, the first time in several years. They were Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Lemon and five children, of Pleasant Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Nicholls and three children, of north of St. Joe, and Mrs. and Mrs. Harvey Hull and son, Calvin, of Ft. Wanye. Preston Roberts, a brother of Mrs. Nicholls was also a guest.

In a collision of automobiles, Mrs. Ed Deneve, 64, of near Hicksville, O., was instantly killed Friday. Cars driven by her husband and by George Houk, 28, Hicksville dairyman, collided at the intersection of two county roads one mile north of Hicksville. Houk suffered lacerations of the face in the crash. Deneve escaped with bruiess. Both autos were badly damaged. Dr. Fred W. Watkins, of Defiance, coroner of Defiance County, investigated and absolved Houk of any blame. He said Mrs. Deneve died of a broken neck and also suffered a fracture of the left arm. Funeral services were held from the U. B. Church at Newville Monday afternoon, with burial in Evergreen Cemetery.

To add to the AAA's worries, the National Grange, oldest and perhaps most potent of all the farm organizations, has served stern notice that it will not stand by and let liberty be driven from the farms. The Grange notified the AAA that it will "permit no legislation to be adopted which will result in either immediate or eventual regimentation of the farmer."
